“Or sweetest Shakspeare, Fancy’s child,
Warble his native wood-notes wild.”

L' Allegro.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE following Work embraces the whole system of Shakspeare's philosophy and ethics, apart from the machinery of his Plays and Poems; together with as much of his poetry and humour as admits also of general application; being, in fact, a Philological Concordance to every passage of independent reference, and comprehensive register of his maxims and wise sayings; exhibiting views and sentiments on upwards of five hundred subjects, applicable to human life and manners in all ages.

The subjects are alphabetically arranged, and so classified that Shakspeare's various treatment of any particular topic may be found under one general head.

Each quotation is headed by an explanatory analysis, with the view of giving prominence to the leading sentiment involved in the passage, and of simplifying the general meaning.

To which are annexed the Proverbs and Songs introduced in Shakspeare's Works.

INTRODUCTION.

OF the Mind of William Shakspeare, at once Dramatist, Poet, Philosopher, Humourist, and Critical Delineator of Human Nature, it may fairly be affirmed that it ranked among the very highest orders of human intelligences. It possessed a power of comprehension capable of grasping all subjects submitted to it, from the humblest to the most exalted ; and, at the same time, a strength of concentration that enabled it to explore the very root and essence of things. By virtue of its gigantic compass it produced harmonies and combinations beyond the range of any ordinary intellect, that astonish by their peculiar originality, and charm by the native simplicity of their beauty. From that Mind issued views, maxims, and sentiments, whose application and reference time can never destroy, so long as human nature remains substantially unaltered, and whose influence on mankind has perhaps exceeded that of the productions of any other genius. Thus Dr. Johnson asserts of his works, that “they have passed through variations of taste and changes of manner ; and, as they devolved from one generation to another, have received new honours at every transmission." The true secret of this special immortality he further ascribes to the fact that "Shakspeare was above all writers, at least above all modern ones, the Poet of Nature ; the poet that holds up to his readers a faithful mirror of manners and of life."

Now the effusions of this marvellous Mind have reached us principally in the form of Dramas, written from time to time, apparently to satisfy the immediate requirements of the Playhouse, rather than with any well-defined intention of informing and edifying posterity. Johnson indeed goes so far as to say that "Shakspeare does not appear to have thought his works worthy of posterity, that he levied any ideal tribute upon future times, or had any further prospect than of present popularity and present profit. When his plays had been acted, his hope was at an end ; he solicited no addition of honour from the reader."

However this may have been, it is certain that he did not act like a man even commonly ambitious of literary renown ; for, after retiring from theatrical life, he made no effort to collect or arrange his productions, or even to give the world a genuine edition of them ; although what were really his own had already become considerably corrupted, and many in which he had no hand were openly attributed to him.

We may therefore conclude that he at least never formed an adequate estimate of the golden treasury of wisdom and thought which he was bequeathing to perpetual generations ; that the self-complacent feeling of Horace was far from him,—

"Exegi monumentum ære perennius."

But

“ It is the witness still of excellency,
To put a strange face on his own perfection.’

And perhaps no man ever so thoroughly confirmed in his own person the truth of this remark, as he in whom it originated.

It seems to have been greatly due to accidental circumstances, that the chief emanations of his Mind were embodied in the form of Dramas. There has been much controversy on the subject of his pecuniary means at the commencement of his career; but, upon the whole, it seems tolerably well ascertained that, though far from destitute, he was in the position of one whose only prospect of gaining an independence lay in his own exertions, by working his own way in the world. He accordingly chose the composition of Plays, in conjunction with the career of an actor, at a particular emergency of his life, as the most promising method of securing a livelihood; and in those Plays he poured forth the richest treasures of his Mind and Genius; for, with the exception of his Sonnets and a few occasional pieces, we possess no other spoils of the great hero.

Now the composition of a Play is not perhaps the best field for the free exhibition of a lofty intellect; as it necessarily involves much matter of a purely special and constructive order; much also of a merely personal kind connected with the characters introduced. In these parts the mind of the author has little or no scope for independent action, or flights of excursiveness; so that, in fact, his own individual sentiments on abstract subjects can only be occasionally and incidentally intro-

at every transmission." The true secret of this special immortality he further ascribes to the fact that "Shakspeare was above all writers, at least above all modern ones, the Poet of Nature ; the poet that holds up to his readers a faithful mirror of manners and of life."

Now the effusions of this marvellous Mind have reached us principally in the form of Dramas, written from time to time, apparently to satisfy the immediate requirements of the Playhouse, rather than with any well-defined intention of informing and edifying posterity. Johnson indeed goes so far as to say that "Shakspeare does not appear to have thought his works worthy of posterity, that he levied any ideal tribute upon future times, or had any further prospect than of present popularity and present profit. When his plays had been acted, his hope was at an end ; he solicited no addition of honour from the reader."

However this may have been, it is certain that he did not act like a man even commonly ambitious of literary renown ; for, after retiring from theatrical life, he made no effort to collect or arrange his productions, or even to give the world a genuine edition of them ; although what were really his own had already become considerably corrupted, and many in which he had no hand were openly attributed to him.

We may therefore conclude that he at least never formed an adequate estimate of the golden treasury of wisdom and thought which he was bequeathing to perpetual generations ; that the self-complacent feeling of Horace was far from him,—

"Exegi monumentum ære perennius."

But

“ It is the witness still of excellency,
To put a strange face on his own perfection.’

And perhaps no man ever so thoroughly confirmed in his own person the truth of this remark, as he in whom it originated.

It seems to have been greatly due to accidental circumstances, that the chief emanations of his Mind were embodied in the form of Dramas. There has been much controversy on the subject of his pecuniary means at the commencement of his career ; but, upon the whole, it seems tolerably well ascertained that, though far from destitute, he was in the position of one whose only prospect of gaining an independence lay in his own exertions, by working his own way in the world. He accordingly chose the composition of Plays, in conjunction with the career of an actor, at a particular emergency of his life, as the most promising method of securing a livelihood ; and in those Plays he poured forth the richest treasures of his Mind and Genius ; for, with the exception of his Sonnets and a few occasional pieces, we possess no other spoils of the great hero.

Now the composition of a Play is not perhaps the best field for the free exhibition of a lofty intellect ; as it necessarily involves much matter of a purely special and constructive order ; much also of a merely personal kind connected with the characters introduced. In these parts the mind of the author has little or no scope for independent action, or flights of excursiveness ; so that, in fact, his own individual sentiments on abstract subjects can only be occasionally and incidentally introduced ; and, even then, must be put into the mouths of others. Nevertheless, it is in this comparatively limited field that the Mind of Shakspeare has so wonderfully displayed itself. In spite of the constraint and imprisonment imposed by the machinery of the Drama, the great Sampson has burst from the "green withs" that bound him, and uttered a host of sentiments, ideas, aphorisms, and doctrines, capable of being withdrawn from all special application, and made available for the edification of the world. On upwards of five hundred subjects connected with the mysteries of Providence, the order of Nature, Human Life and Manners, the general course of the World, and Philosophy at large, he has lavished thought, and amplified instruction. His profounder meditations at the same time are constantly relieved and varied by such genuine touches of humour and playfulness, that the very antipodes of thought seem to have been brought in contact ; and he, who is now soaring above the heavens, discoursing with the gods, and uttering celestial strains in almost more than mortal language, may anon be seen mingling with the humblest upon earth, condescending to their weaknesses, levelling himself to their harmless follies, and distilling mirth from the most commonplace things and occurrences of life.

In order then to form an estimate of the Mind, the feelings, and opinions of Shakspeare, the most obvious course seemed to be the following ; to gather together every independent passage to be found in the whole of his works ; every passage which could be disconnected from the machinery of the plots, or thread of the context, and made to bear a general character, and universal application; and then to classify them under their respective heads. By this means a comparative view might be obtained of his various comments on any one topic, and a comprehensive system formed of his Philosophy and Ethics; while at the same time such a portion of his Poetry and Humour would be included as equally satisfied the above conditions.

This is precisely what has been attempted in the present volume; in the compilation of which a most profound, if not idolatrous, respect has been shown to the very humblest blossoms of that fertile Mind, and no flower rejected, however small, that seemed capable of being transplanted from its native soil without injury to its vitality. As the modest primrose exhibits the hand and art of Nature equally with the rarest exotic, so this principle has been acted upon in dealing with the creations of this great mind; and if Shakspeare's personal sentiments are to be found anywhere, they are assuredly here.

It may however be objected that, as regards the extracts from his Plays, they cannot be fairly taken to represent his opinions, as he has put them into the mouths of others, and interwoven them with the thread of the narratives, and dialogues of the characters. But whatever show of justice this objection may present, the alternative is indeed lamentable, if we admit its reasonableness and receive it as conclusive; because then we may be said to be literally without any knowledge whatever of the Poet's personal impressions, feelings, or sentiments on a single subject, as far as his Plays are concerned ; and are thrown entirely on his Sonnets, and few occasional Pieces, to ascertain the bent and convictions of his Mind.

I cannot therefore help concluding that the present compilation may be regarded as a fair exhibition of that mind ; and as such it is submitted to the reader, with whom still rests the privilege of exercising his own judgment in the matter. I would however venture the observation that, whatever opinion he may form on this subject, if he will only thoughtfully peruse the present volume, he will find therein such exalted ideas of the World and its Great Creator, so pure a system of Morality and Virtue, so sublime an estimate of the Soul, such sound maxims of Philosophy, so keen a delineation of Human Nature, such practical rules for the control of the passions ; and, in general, such admirable suggestions for a life and conversation worthy of himself and his fellow-men, that, whether or no these sentiments represent the personal convictions of their Author, the reader may without fear conform to them himself, and adopt them for his own.

A cursory survey of some of the profounder and more prominent subjects on which Shakspeare has treated, and which will be found under their respective headings in the present volume, may tend to substantiate the preceding remarks.

And here,

“ Quid prius dicam solitis Parentis
 Laudibus ; qui res hominum ac deorum,
 Qui mare et terras, variisque mundum
 Temperat horis ? ”

With respect, then, to the great First Cause of all things, the sentiments of the Poet are not only of the sublimest order, but also in the strictest accordance with what He has revealed to us of Himself. His watchful oversight, and continued maintenance of all His creatures; His scheme of salvation, represented as the great crowning miracle of Mercy; His gift of Free-will to man; the inspirations of His Spirit to those who are willing to work with it; His chastisement of those whom He loves, for their ultimate benefit; His considerate Goodness in concealing from men the future; His special Providence, associated even with the fall of a sparrow: these and other collateral doctrines are alluded to, briefly indeed, but emphatically, and touched with a chastity of reverence worthy of hallowed lips.

On these fundamental truths, as a basis, must be reared a superstructure of moral duties, whereof the love of God is the stimulus, and the love of our neighbour the witness and manifestation. Agreeably to this law, we find all the chief Christian graces of charity, mercy, compassion, forbearance, patience, almsgiving, referred to among the duties we owe to others; while self-denial, repentance, sincerity, pureness, resignation, humility, integrity, are commended as obligations which we owe to ourselves. By promoting such tempers of mind and feeling, the true loveliness of life is realized, and man's high destiny fulfilled.

Many obstacles, however, both from within and from without, beset the path of him who would reach this standard of human perfection. The passions, for instance, with restless activity, war against the mind, and warp the judgment. The mastery of these, in their various forms of hostility, is accordingly a frequent theme with our great Moralist.

Lust, inordinate affection, excesses, avarice, anger, envy, jealousy, revenge, ambition, vain-glory, are all dealt with and reprov'd ; while the personal disquietude they produce, their interference with the great business of life, and the proved unsatisfactoriness of their issues, are all adduced as dissuasives.

The keen weapons also of satire and ridicule are freely used, as being often more effectual than formal expostulation or harsh reproof, agreeably to the remark of Horace,

“Ridiculum acri

Fortius ac melius magnas plerumque secat res.”

In addition to these more formidable stumbling-blocks to peace of mind and purity of body, there are sundry minor forms of moral failing, which greatly bias man's character for the worse.

Conceit, self-love, self-praise, self-deceit, self-neglect, self-reliance, idleness of body, inertness of mind, peevishness, discontent, hypocrisy, rashness, gloominess, unthriftiness, procrastination, are all qualities or habits that militate, more or less, against human happiness. None of these are accordingly without their appropriate censure ; it being laid down as a kind of axiom by our Author that even a single fault in a man, however slight and trivial, may so grow upon him by encouragement and indulgence, as eventually to absorb his whole moral being, swamp all his other excellencies, and lay waste his character.

“The dram of base
Doth all the noble substance often dout*
To his own scandal.”

Besides the foregoing subjects, various subordinate ones are introduced, bearing upon man's well-being. Amongst these may be mentioned the influence of habit, either for good or bad, the graces of condescension and affability, the luxury of contentment, the blest estate of mediocrity, the hopelessness of pursuing happiness beyond certain limits, the claims of personal honour and self-respect, the improving uses of adversity, the advantages of earnestness, perseverance, promptitude, the importance of mental culture, the folly of flattery, the choice of friends.

Again, every man, as a member of the commonwealth, has duties in connection with his citizenship which cannot be omitted from the moral code. Constituted as the world is, it appears a sort of moral necessity that different ranks and degrees shall exist among men. Hence arise the peculiar obligations of Loyalty to the ruling Sovereign, or Head ; submission to the powers that be ; deference to all superiors ; all which are amply insisted upon ; while the offences which are their opposite, such as Treason, Disaffection, Conspiracy, Insurrection, Rebellion, receive frequent and summary censure.

Again, Shakspeare's various accounts of the abuses prevalent in the world, and which are due to man in his collective, rather than his individual capacity, is well calculated to deter any thinking man from adding his contribution of evil to swell the mighty and unseemly aggregate.

* Do out, extinguish.

Among these are noticed the abuse of power, the contempt and oppression of the poor, the partialities of patronage, the contumely of the proud, the subserviency of the mean, the venality of justice, the dilatoriness of law, the hypocrisies of religious profession, the favour shown to unworthiness, the neglect of merit, the success of the artful, the struggles of honesty, the vanities of fashion, and the generally unequal recognition of worth, and distribution of reward, in the present world.

A knowledge of these things, thus obtained without the painful ordeal of actual experience, tends to inform and fortify the mind, without depraving or hardening it, and forms a necessary part of the armour of him who would pass unscathed through the battle-field of life.

Upon the whole then it appears that from the Works of Shakspeare may be gathered a Code or System of Morality, embracing all the main essentials of an exemplary and manly character. Throughout we discern no trace of presumption or display. He betrays nothing of the Puritan's spirit. His teaching exhibits a broad and comprehensive philanthropy, founded on principles as practical as they are legitimate. He treats all solemn subjects with a modest awe and reverential humility. He opens no argument, proposes no objection ; but touches them with a delicacy of feeling, and diffidence of respect, as though they were subjects beyond all controversy, and universally to be taken for granted ; and in this department of his writings may be found the materials for building up a man of solid convictions, chastened integrity, and sound practical worth.

Among the more miscellaneous subjects, we find that Shakspeare has enlarged the most on the kindred ones of Woman and Love, which will be seen to occupy considerable space in this volume. In his capacity of Poet, such a privilege is allowed him ; such a result was to be anticipated ; for, according to his own showing :—

“Never durst Poet touch a pen to write,
Until his ink were tempered with Love’s sighs.”

And, as he further asserts, that Women’s eyes

so he has largely availed himself of this genial source of inspiration.

If, however, the sentiments which he has expressed with regard to the softer sex are to be taken as really representing his own convictions, it must be confessed that his estimate is at times the reverse of flattering. Indeed, if the various abstract passages on this subject were woven into a discourse, the most appropriate text to prefix to it would be that of Virgil,

“*Varium et mutabile semper
Femina.*”

On the assumption of the superior sensitiveness and delicacy of their organization, he attributes to them the special frailties of instability, love of novelty, wealth, dress, pre-eminence, garrulity, proneness to be influenced more by the eye than the judgment, incapacity for reasoning, incontinency of thought, and betrayal of secrets, an aptness to be swayed by passion and impulse, and a constitutional variableness of character.

But in spite of these homethrusts at the sex collectively, it must be acknowledged in vindication, that, in his portraiture of individuals, no man has presented the world with more lovely models of female excellence, or done more to stimulate in men's minds admiration for the daughters of Eve. For although his deep knowledge of human nature led him at times to paint a Lady Macbeth, a Gertrude, a Cleopatra, or a Goneril, that there might be no partiality, no poetical tampering with truth, it must not be forgotten that he has also depicted a Portia, a Desdemona, a Constance, an Ophelia, a Miranda, a Rosalind; so that, in adjusting the lights and shades, he has shown the honesty of a faithful and fearless Artist, who felt that in following Nature he followed Truth. He has, in fact, drawn the lovely mermaid in all the beauty of her upper symmetry, while his scrupulous deference to truth compelled him to add the less comely appendage.

His own early marriage, indeed, is a fair practical refutation of any serious charge of indifference or harshness to the sex, a charge which could scarcely be urged against one, who has pleaded in their behalf so unanswerable an apology as the following, put into the lips of the fair defendants themselves:—

“Alas, our frailty is the cause, not we;
For such as we are made of, such we be.”

With regard to the light and humorous portions of his Works, there is little to be said, beyond commending them more especially to the gloomy and morose, as the best prescription for their complaint. The moody and misanthropic mind will assuredly find no encouragement here, but may very possibly be tickled into kindlier feelings, and warmed into a healthier state,—inspired by the genial example of one, who, although he could so profoundly philosophize, could as lightly relax ; and, descending at a bound from the topmost pinnacle of wisdom, frolic gaily on the plains and levels of human frivolity. Few men indeed possessed a more vivid conception of the ludicrous ; few could “awaken the lively and pert spirit of mirth” with so irresistible and contagious an effect. No man more fully sympathized with the feeling,

Nature herself teaches us that contrasts are almost necessary to human existence. The smiling day, and “sober-suited night,” mutually succeed and relieve each other ; and the gift of laughter has been bestowed upon the intellectual members of creation, and upon them only (unless the hyena be an honourable exception), apparently as an accompaniment to a mind susceptible of weariness, and needing some such appropriate relief.

Accordingly we find Shakspeare, who was pre-eminently the “child of Nature,” as gay and volatile in the department of Mirth, as he is grave in that of Wisdom and Philosophy. And when he thus divests himself of his sombre grandeur, he certainly loses no particle of his greatness ; but, on the contrary, well illustrates the remark of Johnson, who compares a great mind condescending to little things, to “the sun in his evening declination, who remits his splendour, but retains his magnitude, and pleases more, though he dazzles less.”

In conclusion, I would remark that although the primary object of the present compilation was to exhibit the independent sayings and sentiments of Shakspeare in a connected form and comparative view, untrammelled by dramatic appendage, there was also the subordinate idea of enabling those who perhaps have neither time nor inclination to peruse his plays and works in detail, to possess themselves with something of the essence of his varied wisdom, in spare moments, and with economy of time and labour. He indeed that would thoroughly appreciate the Mind of Shakspeare is more likely to do so by fixing the attention on some of his choice gems, than by any desultory perusal of his Dramas. For the absorbing interest connected with the unravelment of the plot has the effect of distracting the mind from the merit of particular passages, and leads it to hurry on to the development and climax of the narrative. They indeed who read the plays of Shakspeare for the plots alone, pursue his shadow, rather than his substance : for few, if any of them, are original. Such readers may doubtless be amused, but will hardly be instructed. There are others, however, who study him with the higher object of tracing his lifelike touches and nice distinctions of character, the sprightliness of the dialogues, and the vivid pictures of every-day life and intercourse portrayed in his living impersonations. Such readers must of course make the Plays themselves their especial study. But the still more philosophical student, the critical investigator of abstract truths, the sound reasoner, and deep thinker ; he, in fact, who would inoculate himself with the Mind of Shakspeare, as distinct from the discursive flights of his Genius, will find here the amplest food for moralizing and meditation ; and if this volume have the effect of bringing that Mind into more familiar relationship with the feelings of the reader, or of attracting any to the closer study of Shakspeare's Philosophy, Ethics, and general Wisdom, it will have answered the best wishes of the compiler.

But to the earth some special good doth give;

* Overrate.

Nor aught so good, but strained from that fair use,
 Revolts from true birth,* stumbling on abuse :
 Virtue itself turns vice being misapplied,
 And vice sometime 's by action dignified.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

ABUSES

A LIST OF SOME, COMMON IN THE WORLD.

To behold desert a beggar born,
 And needy nothing trimmed in jollity,
 And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
 And gilded honour shamefully misplaced,
 And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
 And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
 And strength by limping sway disabled,
 And art made tongue-tied by authority,
 And folly (doctor-like) controlling skill,
 And simple truth miscalled simplicity,
 And captive good attending captain ill.

Sonnet 66.

The whips and scorns of time
 The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
 The pangs of despised love, the law's delay,
 The insolence of office, and the spurns
 That patient merit of the unworthy takes.

Ham. iii. 1.

ACQUISITION

USELESS WITHOUT CONTENTMENT.

Nought 's had, all 's spent,
 Where our desire is got without content.

Macb. iii. 2.

ACTION

SHOULD PROMPTLY FOLLOW PURPOSE.

The flighty purpose never is o'ertook,
 Unless the deed go with it.

Macb. iv. 1.

* Rebels against the object for which it was created.

ACTIONS

DIGNIFY OR DEGRADE MAN, AND NOT MAN THE ACTIONS.

From lowest place when virtuous things proceed,
 The place is dignified by the doer's deed:
 Where great additions* swell, and virtue none,
 It is a dropsied honour: good alone
 Is good without a name; vileness is so:
 The property by what it is should go,
 Not by the title.

All's Well, ii. 3.

ADOPTION

OCCASIONALLY RIVALS NATURE.

'T is often seen
 Adoption strives with Nature; and choice breeds
 A native slip to us from foreign seeds.

All's Well, i. 3.

ADORNMENTS

ARTIFICIAL ONES, NOT USED IN OLDEN TIMES.

When beauty lived and died, as flowers do now,
 Before these signs of bastard fair were borne,
 Or durst inhabit on a living brow;
 Before the golden tresses of the dead,
 The right of sepulchres, were shorn away,
 To live a second life on second head;
 Ere beauty's dead fleece made another gay.

Sonnet 68.

ADVICE†

EASIER TO GIVE, THAN TO PRACTISE.

A wretched soul, bruised with adversity,
 We bid be quiet when we hear it cry;

* Titles.

† See Comforters.

But were we burdened with like weight of pain,
As much, or more, we should ourselves complain.

Com. of Err. ii. 1.

THROWN AWAY ON THE HEADSTRONG.

Then all too late comes counsel to be heard,
Where will doth mutiny with wit's regard.*
Direct not him whose way himself will choose;
'T is breath thou lack'st, and that breath wilt thou lose.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

TO A YOUNG MAN.

Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none: be able for thine enemy
Rather in power, than use; and keep thy friend
Under thy own life's key: be checked for silence,
But never taxed for speech.

All's Well, i. 1.

ADVERSITY

THE GREAT DISTINGUISHER OF CHARACTER.

—Constancy in men—

The fineness of which metal is not found
In fortune's love; for then, the bold and coward,
The wise and fool, the artist and unread,
The hard and soft, seem all affined and kin;
But, in the wind and tempest of her frown,
Distinction, with a broad and powerful fan,
Puffing at all, winnows the light away;
And what hath mass, or matter, by itself
Lies, rich in virtue, and unmingled.

Tr. & Cres. i. 3.

In the reproof of chance †
Lies the true proof of men.

Tr. & Cres. i. 3.

* Wisdom's counsels.

† Reverses of fortune.

ITS MORAL EFFICACY.

Sweet are the uses of adversity ;
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel in his head.

As You Like It, ii. 1.

CAUSES FRIENDS TO DESERT.

The great man down, you mark his favourite flies,
The poor advanced makes friends of enemies.

Ham. iii. 2.

AFFECTATION

OF WISDOM AND GRAVITY OFTEN ATTEMPTED BY A SILENT
DEMEANOUR.

There are a sort of men, whose visages
Do cream and mantle, like a standing pond ;
And do a wilful stillness* entertain
With purpose to be dressed in an opinion
Of wisdom, gravity, profound conceit ;
As who should say, " I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark !"
That therefore only are reputed wise,
For saying nothing ; who, I am very sure,
If they should speak, would almost damn those ears
Which, hearing them, would call their brothers fools.

M. of Ven. i. 1.

AFFECTION

BENDS THE PASSIONS TO ITS WILL.

Affection,
Mistress of passion sways it to the mood
Of what it likes or loathes.

M. of Ven. iv. 1.

* Obstinate silence.

AIMS

OF OUR CONDUCT SHOULD BE THE HIGHEST.

Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's,
 Thy God's, and truth's. Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

ALLITERATION

Whereat with blade, with bloody blameful blade,
 He bravely broached his boiling bloody breast.

The praiseful princess pierced and pricked

The blind bow-boy's butt-shaft.† Rom. & Jul. ii. 4.

ALTERATION

CONSTANTLY OCCURRING, BOTH IN THE MORAL AND PHYSICAL WORLD.

The revolution of the times
 Makes mountains level, and the continent
 (Weary of solid firmness) melts itself
 Into the sea; and, other times, to see
 The beachy girdle of the ocean
 Too wide for Neptune's hips: how chances mock,
 And changes fill the cup of alteration
 With divers colours! 2 Hen. IV. iii. 1.

AMBITION

DEFEATS ITS OWN ENDS BY EXCESS.

Vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself
 And falls on the other side. Macb. i. 7.

* A buck of the second year.

A HOPELESS QUALITY IN MAN.

Fling away ambition :
By that sin fell the angels ; how can man then,
The image of his Maker, hope to win by it ?

Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

AMBITIOUS

MEN, AIM AT AN AIRY IDEAL.

The very substance of the ambitious is merely the Shadow of a dream.

Ham. ii. 2.

ANGEL

THE GLORY OF ONE.

As glorious—

As is a winged messenger of heaven
Unto the white-upturned wondering eyes
Of mortals, that fell back to gaze on him,
When he bestrides the lazy-pacing clouds,
And sails upon the bosom of the air.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

ANGER

ALLOWED SCOPE, SOON TIRES.

Anger is like

A full-hot horse ; who, being allowed his way,
Self-mettle tires him.

Hen. VIII. i. 1.

ITS EFFECTS, WHEN STRUGGLING WITH PATIENCE.

Patience perforce with wilful choler meeting,
Makes my flesh tremble in their different greeting.

Rom. & Jul. i. 5.

ANTECEDENTS

ENTITLED A MAN, ONCE NOBLE, TO CONSIDERATION.

Men so noble,

However faulty, yet should find respect

For what they have been ; 'tis a cruelty
To load a falling man.

Hen. VIII. v. 2.

APOTHECARY

DESCRIPTION OF A NEEDY ONE.

I do remember an apothecary—
And hereabouts he dwells—whom late I noted
In tattered weeds, with overwhelming brows,
Culling of simples : meagre were his looks ;
Sharp misery had worn him to the bones :
And in his needy shop a tortoise hung,
An alligator stuffed, and other skins
Of ill-shaped fishes ; and about his shelves
A beggarly account of empty boxes,
Green earthen pots, bladders, and musty seeds,
Remnants of packthread, and old cakes of roses,
Were thinly scattered, to make up a show.

Rom. & Jul. v. 1.

APPAREL

OFTEN AN INDEX OF CHARACTER.

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not expressed in fancy ;* rich, not gaudy :
For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

Ham. i. 3.

APPETITE

THE BEST SAUCE.

Our stomachs
Will make what 's homely, savoury.

Cymb. iii. 6.

IN SENSE OF DESIRE, PRONE TO REBEL AGAINST COUNSEL AND JUDGMENT.

Nor gives it satisfaction to our blood,
That we must curb it upon others' proof ;

* Fantastical.

To be forbid the sweets that are so good,
 For fear of harms that preach in our behoof.
 O appetite, from judgment stand aloof!
 The one a palate hath that needs will taste,
 Though reason weep, and cry, "It is thy last."

A Lov. Compl.

SENSUAL, NEVER SATISFIED.

The cloyed will,
 (That satiate yet unsatisfied desire,
 That tub both filled and running) ravening first
 The lamb, longs after for the garbage.

Cymb. i. 7.

APPRECIATION*

OF PERSONS AND THINGS NOT REALIZED TILL THEY ARE LOST.

Our rash faults
 Make trivial price of serious things we have,
 Not knowing them, until we know their grave.
 Oft our displeasures, to ourselves unjust,
 Destroy our friends, and after weep their dust:
 Our own love waking cries to see what's done,
 While shameful hate sleeps out the afternoon.

All's Well, v. 3.

It hath been taught us from the primal state,
 That he, which is, was wished, until he were:
 And the ebb'd † man, ne'er loved till ne'er worth love,
 Comes deared ‡ by being lacked.

ARTISTS

THEIR VARIOUS DEGREES OF MERIT.

In framing artists, art hath thus decreed,
 To make some good, but others to exceed.

Pericles, ii. 3.

* See Absence.

† Departed.

‡ Becomes endeared.

ASPIRATION

OF WHATEVER KIND; COMMON TO ALL MEN.

Every man hath business and desire,
Such as it is.

Ham. i. 5.

AUTHORITY

ITS POWER OF COMMANDING OBEDIENCE.

Thou hast seen a farmer's dog bark at a beggar, and the creature run from the cur? There thou mightst behold the great image of authority: a dog's obeyed in office.

K. Lear, iv. 6.

ITS EXEMPTION FROM OPEN BLAME.

Authority, though it err like others,
Hath yet a kind of medicine in itself
That skins the vice o' the top.

Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

OFTEN CORRUPTIBLE ON EARTH.

Though authority be a stubborn bear, yet he is oft led by the nose with gold.

Wint. Tale, iv. 3.

INCITES MEN TO PRIDE, AND LIGHT-HEADEDNESS.

Man, proud man!
Dressed in a little brief authority;
Most ignorant of what he's most assured,
His glassy essence,—like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,
As make the angels weep.

Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

AUTUMN

ITS FRUITFULNESS.

The teeming Autumn, big with rich increase,
Bearing the wanton burden of the prime.

Sonnet 97.

AVARICE

A MORE DEEPLY SEATED PASSION THAN LUST.

This avarice

Sticks deeper ; grows with more pernicious root
Than summer-teeming lust.

Macb. iv. 3.

NEVER SATISFIES ITS VOTARIES, AND DEFEATS ITS OWN AIMS.

Those that much covet are with gain so fond
That what they have not, that which they possess,
They scatter and unloose it from their bond,
And so, by hoping more, they have but less ;
Or, gaining more, the profit of excess
Is but to surfeit, and such griefs sustain,
That they prove bankrupt in this poor-rich gain.

R. of Lucrece, st. 20.

BEARDLESS

CHIN OF YOUTH.

Alas, poor chin ! many a wart is richer.

Tr. & Cress. i. 2.

BEAUTY

IN THE ABSTRACT APPLIES ONLY TO VIRTUE ; "HANDSOME IS THAT HANDSOME DOES."

In nature there 's no blemish, but the mind ;
None can be called deformed, but the unkind :
Virtue is beauty ; but the beauteous-evil
Are empty trunks,* o'er-flourished by the Devil.

Tw. Night, iii. 4.

OUTWARD ; GREATLY ENHANCED BY TRUTH AND HONESTY.

O, how much more doth Beauty beauteous seem,
By that sweet ornament which truth doth give !

* Handsomely ornamented trunks ranked amongst the principal furniture in Shakspeare's time.

The rose looks fair, but fairer we it deem
 For that sweet odour which doth in it live.
 The canker-blooms have full as deep a dye
 As the perfumèd tincture of the roses ;
 Hang on such thorns, and play as wantonly
 When summer's breath their masked buds discloses ;
 But, for their virtue only is their show,
 They live unwooded, and unrespected fade ;
 Die to themselves ; sweet roses do not so ;
 Of their sweet deaths are sweetest odours made.

Sonnet 54.

ITS VANITY AND TRANSITORINESS.

Beauty is but a vain and doubtful good ;
 A shining gloss that fadeth suddenly ;
 A flower that dies, when first it 'gins to bud ;
 A brittle glass that 's broken presently :
 A doubtful good, a gloss, a glass, a flower—
 Lost, faded, broken, dead within an hour.

Pass. Pilgr. st. 10.

SHORT-LIVED, AND EVER TENDING TO DECAY.

Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
 And summer's lease hath all too short a date :
 Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
 And often is his gold complexion dimmed ;
 And every fair from fair sometimes declines,
 By chance, or nature's changing course, untrimmed.

Sonnet 18.

NOT USUALLY FOUND ALLIED WITH GOODNESS.

The goodness* that is cheap in beauty, makes
 Beauty brief in goodness.

Mea. for Mea. iii. 1.

* Of Nature, that is prodigal in bestowing beauty, often stints it in goodness.

ITS INFLUENCE GREATER THAN THAT OF HONESTY.

The power of beauty will sooner transform honesty from what it is to a bawd, than the force of honesty can translate beauty into his likeness.

Ham. iii. 1.

NO GUARANTEE FOR VIRTUE.

Nature with a beauteous wall
Doth oft close in pollution.

Tw. Night, i. 2.

ITS POWER TO CORRUPT FAITH.

Beauty is a witch,
Against whose charms faith melteth into blood.*

Much Ado, ii. 1.

ITS ELOQUENCE.

Beauty itself doth of itself persuade
The eyes of men without an orator.

R. of Lucrece, st. 5.

PROMOTES MARRIAGES.

That hook of wiving,
Fairness.

Cymb. v. 5.

WASTED IN SINGLE-BLESSEDNESS.

Look, what an unthrift† in the world doth spend,
Shifts but his place, for still the world enjoys it ;
But beauty's waste hath in the world an end,
And kept unused, the user so destroys it.
No love toward others in that bosom sits,
That on himself such murderous shame commits.

Sonnet 9.

A MODEL ONE.

She sits, like Beauty's child, whom Nature gat
For men to see, and seeing wonder at.

Pericles, ii. 2.

* Passion.

† A prodigal.

BY NIGHT.

O, she doth teach the torches to burn bright!
 Her beauty hangs upon the cheek of night
 Like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear:
 Beauty too rich for use, for earth too dear!

Rom. & Jul. i. 5.

SMILING AND SIGHING, IN A YOUTH.

Nobly he yokes
 A smiling with a sigh; as if the sigh
 Was that it was for not being such a smile;
 The smile mocking the sigh, that it would fly
 From so divine a temple to commix
 With winds that sailors rail at.

Cymb. iv. 2.

BENEDICTION

A FORM OF ONE.

The grace of Heaven
 Before, behind thee, and on every hand
 Enwheel thee round!

Othello, ii. 1.

BISHOP

GOD'S VICEGERENT AND AMBASSADOR.

Deep within the books of God,
 To us the speaker in His parliament;
 To us the imagined voice of God Himself,
 The very opener and intelligencer
 Between the grace, the sanctities of heaven,
 And our dull workings.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 2.

BLINDNESS

TEMPORARY, SOMETIMES AFFECTS THE PHYSICAL, AS WELL AS THE MORAL VISION.

Our very eyes
 Are sometimes like our judgments, blind.

Cymb. iv. 2.

BLOOD

THE ARTIFICIAL DISTINCTIONS MADE IN IT.

Strange is 't, our bloods,
Of colour, weight, and heat, poured all together
Would quite confound distinction, yet stand off
In differences so mighty.

All's Well, ii. 3.BLUNTNESSE

OF CHARACTER, COMBINED WITH CLEVERNESS AND COURAGE.

What a blunt fellow is this grown to be!
He was quick mettle when he went to school;
So is he now in execution
Of any bold or noble enterprise,
However he puts on this tardy form.
His rudeness is a sauce to his good wit,
Which gives men stomach to digest his words
With better appetite.

While the beast lived, was killed in hunting him.

Hen. V. iv. 3.BODIESOF MEN; COMPARED TO GARDENS, WHEREIN WE MAY SET GOOD, OR BAD SEEDS, AT WILL.

Our bodies are our gardens, to the which our wills are gardeners; so that if we will plant nettles, or sow lettuce; set hyssop, and weed up thyme; supply it with one gender of herbs, or distract it with many ; either to have it sterile with idleness, or manured with industry ; why, the power and corrigible authority* of this lies in our wills.

Othello, i. 3.

BORROWING

AND LENDING, TEND EACH TO ILL RESULTS.

Neither a borrower, nor a lender be :
For loan oft loseth both itself and friend ;
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.†

Ham. i. 3.

TENDS TO ESTRANGEMENT.

Were your godheads to borrow of men, men would forsake the gods.

Tim. of Ath. iii. 6.

BOUNTY

OFTEN SUFFERS FROM BLINDNESS TO CONSEQUENCES.

'T is pity, bounty had not eyes behind ;
That man might ne'er be wretched for his mind.‡

Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

BOYS

CARELESS OF THE FUTURE.

Two lads, that thought there was no more behind,
But such a day tomorrow as today,
And to be boy eternal.

Winter's Tale, i. 2.

APT TO SACRIFICE ALL, FOR THE PRESENT.

‡ In consequence of the liberality of his mind.

BRAIN

POSSIBLY THE SEAT OF THE SOUL.

Brain,

Which some suppose the soul's frail dwelling-house.

*K. John, v. 7.BRUTE CREATIONTHE PROMISCUOUS SYSTEM OF ENMITY AND PREY THAT GOVERNS IT.

If thou wert the lion, the fox would beguile thee: if thou wert the lamb, the fox would eat thee: if thou wert the fox, the lion would suspect thee; when, peradventure, thou wert accused by the ass: if thou wert the ass, thy dullness would torment thee; and still thou livedst but as a breakfast to the wolf: if thou wert the wolf, thy greediness would afflict thee, and oft thou shouldst hazard thy life for thy dinner: wert thou the unicorn, pride and wrath would confound thee, and make thine own self the conquest of thy fury: wert thou a bear, thou wouldst be killed by the horse: wert thou a horse, thou wouldst be seized by the leopard: wert thou a leopard, thou wert german to the lion, and the spots of thy kindred were jurors on thy life: all thy safety were remotion; and thy defence, absence. What beast couldst thou be that were not subject unto a beast?

*Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.CALUMNY

EVEN THE PUREST ARE EXPOSED TO IT.

Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny.

That calumny doth use.

Wint. Tale, ii. 1.

CASTLE-BUILDING

IN THE AIR—ITS FOLLY.

Fools that in the imagination set
The goodly objects which abroad they find
Of lands and mansions, theirs in thought assigned ;
And labouring in more pleasures to bestow them,
Than the true gouty landlord which doth owe* them.

A Lov. Comp. lines 135–9.

CAUSE

THEY WHO HAVE A BAD ONE IN HAND MUST SHUN INQUIRY.

Well you know, we of the offending side
Must keep aloof from strict arbitrement ;
And stop all sight-holes, every loop, from whence
The eye of reason may pry in on us. 1 Hen. IV. iv. 1.

A rotten case abides no handling. 2 Hen. IV. iv. 1.

CENSURE

THE FEAR OF IT, NOT TO CRAMP OUR HONESTLY-MEANT ACTIONS.

We must not stint
Our necessary actions, in the fear
To cope malicious censurers.—What we oft do best,
By sick interpreters, once† weak ones, is

* Own.

† Often.

Not ours, or not allowed ;* what worst, as oft
 Hitting a grosser quality, is cried up
 For our best act. If we shall stand still
 In fear our motion will be mocked or carped at,
 We should take root here where we sit, or sit
 State statues only. Things done well,
 And with a care, exempt themselves from fear.

Hen. VIII. i. 2.

CEREMONY

SUPERFLUOUS IN FRIENDSHIP, AND ONLY INVENTED
 AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR IT.

Ceremony

Was but devised, at first, to set a gloss
 On faint deeds, hollow welcomes,
 Recanting goodness, sorry ere 't is shown :
 But where there is true friendship, there needs none.

COMFORTERS

MEN ARE ALL SORRY ONES ; BECAUSE THEIR PASSIONS MAY CAUSE THEM TO VIOLATE THE VERY COUNSEL THEY HAVE GIVEN TO OTHERS UNDER THE SAME CIRCUMSTANCES.

Men

Can counsel, and speak comfort to that grief
 Which they themselves not feel ; but, tasting it,
 Their counsel turns to passion, which before
 Would give preceptial medicine* to rage,

* The alleviation of counsel.

Fetter strong madness in a silken thread,
 Charm ache with air, and agony with words.
 No, no ; 't is all men's office to speak patience
 To those that wring under the load of sorrow ;
 But no man's virtue nor sufficiency,
 To be so moral, when he shall endure
 The like himself.

Much Ado, v. 1.

COMMODITY

IN THE SENSE OF PERSONAL ADVANTAGE, RULES THE WORLD AND IS A CHIEF CAUSE OF THE ABUSES IN IT.

That same purpose-changer, that sly devil ;
 That broker, that still breaks the pate of faith ;
 That daily break-vow ; he that wins of all,
 Of kings, of beggars, old men, young men, maids ;—
 Who having no external thing to lose
 But the word maid,—cheats the poor maid of that ;
 That smooth-faced gentleman, tickling commodity,—
 Commodity, the bias of the world ;
 The world, who of itself is poisèd well,
 Made to run even, upon even ground ;
 Till this advantage, this vile drawing bias,
 This sway of motion, this commodity,
 Makes it take head from all indifferency,*
 From all direction, purpose, course, intent.

K. John, ii. 2

COMPANIONS

THE NOBLE SHOULD CHOOSE THE NOBLE, TO STIMULATE AND MAINTAIN THEIR CHARACTER.

'T is meet
 That noble minds keep ever with their likes :
 For who so firm that cannot be seduced ?

Jul. Cæs. i. 2.

* Depart from an independent course of action.

In the dead carrion.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

COMPANIONSHIP

REQUIRES ASSIMILATION OF TASTES AND QUALITIES.

In companions
That do converse and waste the time together,
Whose souls do bear an equal weight of love,
There must be needs a like proportion
Of lineaments, of manners, and of spirit.

M. of Ven. iii. 4.

COMPASSION

TO THE FALLING, A VIRTUE.

Press not a falling man too far ; 't is virtue.

Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

'T is a cruelty
To load a falling man.

Hen. VIII. v. 2.

COMPLEXION

AN HONEST ONE.

Cheeks, neither red nor pale, but mingled so
That blushing red no guilty instance gave,
Nor ashy pale the fear that false hearts have.

R. of Lucrece, st. 216.

A FAIR ONE.

That whiter skin of hers than snow,
And smooth as monumental alabaster.

Othello, v. 2.

White and azure laced

A ROSY ONE.

'Tis beauty truly blent, whose red and white
Nature's own sweet and cunning hand laid on. Tw. Night, i. 5.

OF A FAIR YOUTH.

Of nature's gifts thou may'st with lilies boast,
And with the half-blown rose. K. John, iii. 1.

A MOORISH ONE.

Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadowed livery of the burnished sun,
To whom I am a neighbour, and near bred. M. of Ven. ii. 1.

COMPUNCTION

RELIGIOUS, INVOLUNTARILY FELT BY THE GUILTY MAN.

One cried "God bless us!" and "Amen" the other,
As they had seen me with these hangman's hands;
Listening their fear, I could not say "Amen"
When they did say "God bless me." Macb. ii. 2.

CONCEIT

DESCRIPTION OF A SELF-CONCEITED MAN.

An affectioned* ass, that cons state without book, and utters it by great swarths; the best persuaded of himself, so crammed, as he thinks, with excellencies, that it is his ground of faith, that all that look on him, love him. Tw. Night, ii. 3.

* Affected.

CONFESSION

SHOULD BE UNRESERVED AND UNEQUIVOCATING.

Be plain, good son, and homely in thy drift,
Riddling confession finds but riddling shrift.*

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

CONSCIENCE

REINFORCED BY THOUGHT, WITHHOLDS MEN FROM MANY ACTIONS.

Conscience does make cowards of us all ;
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought ;
And enterprises of great pith and moment,
With this regard,† their currents turn awry,
And lose the name of action.

Ham. iii. 1.

ITS RESTRAINING EFFECT ON MEN ; WHIMSICALLY DESCRIBED.

I'll not meddle with it, it is a dangerous thing ; it makes a man a coward ; a man cannot steal, but it accuseth him ; a man cannot swear, but it checks him ; a man cannot lie with his neighbour's wife, but it detects him : 't is a blushing, shame-faced spirit, that mutinies in a man's bosom ; it fills one full of obstacles—it made me once restore a purse of gold, that by chance I found ; it beggars any man that keeps it ; it is turned out of all towns and cities for a dangerous thing ; and every man that means to live well, endeavours to trust to himself, and live without it.

Rich. III. i. 4.

OR SENSE OF DOING WRONG, MAKES THE WISEST ACT LIKE FOOLS.

* Absolution.

† Through deference to conscience.

A PURE ONE, THE BEST ARMOUR.

What stronger breast-plate than a heart untainted !
 Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just ;
 And he but naked, though locked up in steel,
 Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted.

2 Hen VI. iii. 2.

A WICKED ONE, FULL OF APPREHENSIONS.

A wicked conscience—
 That mouldeth goblins swift, as frenzy, thoughts.

Tr. & Cress. v. 11.

Cabined, cribbed, confined, bound in
 To saucy doubts and fears.

Macb. iii. 4.

HOLLOW ONE OF TRUANTS.

Their best conscience
 Is, not to leave undone, but keep unknown.

Othello, iii. 3.

CONSPIRACY

THE CAUTION AND SECRECY NECESSARY TO ITS SUCCESS.

O conspiracy !
 Sham'st thou to show thy dangerous brow by night
 When evils are most free? O then, by day
 Where wilt thou find a cavern dark enough
 To mask thy monstrous visage? Seek none, conspiracy ;
 Hide it in smiles and affability :
 For if thou put thy native semblance on,
 Not Erebus itself were dim enough
 To hide thee from prevention.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

CONTENTMENT

OF MIND WITHIN, BETTER THAN A KING'S CROWN.

My crown is in my heart, not on my head ;

Not decked with diamonds, and Indian stones,
 Nor to be seen : my crown is called content ;
 A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy.

2 Hen. VI. iii. 1.

WITH LOWLY BIRTH, BETTER THAN HIGH STATION WITHOUT IT.

I swear 't is better to be lowly born,
 And range with humble livers in content,
 Than to be perked up in a glistening grief,
 And wear a golden sorrow.

Hen. VIII. ii. 3.

INDISPENSABLE TO THE ENJOYMENT OF POSSESSION.

Naught's had, all's spent,
 Where our desire is got without content.

Macb. iii. 2.

GREAT GAIN.

Our content
 Is our best having.

Hen. VIII. ii. 3.

CONTRAST

THINGS APPEAR WORSE BY IT.

The more fair and crystal is the sky,
 The uglier seem the clouds that in it fly.

Rich. II. i. 1.

CONVERSATION

DULL, BEFORE DINNER.

Discourse is heavy, fasting.

Cymb. iii. 6.

COURAGE

TRUE, LIES ONLY WITHIN LIMITS.

I'dare do all that may become a man,
 Who dares do more is none.

Macb. i. 7.

STIMULATED BY CIRCUMSTANCES.

Courage mounteth with occasion.

K. John, ii. 1.

COURTIERS

A MODEL ONE; HONOURABLE, CONDESCENDING, AND DISCREET OF TONGUE.

So like a courtier, contempt nor bitterness
 Were in his pride or sharpness: if they were,
 His equal had awakened them; and his honour,
 Clock to itself, knew the true minute when
 Exception bid him speak, and, at this time,
 His tongue obeyed his hand: who were below him
 He used as creatures of another place;
 And bowed his eminent top to their low ranks,
 Making them proud of his humility,
 In their poor praise he humbled.
 His plausive words
 He scattered not in ears, but grafted them,
 To grow there, and to bear.

All's Well, i. 2.

ANOTHER, A MODEL TO YOUNG AND OLD.

He lived in court,
 Which rare it is to do, most praised, most loved;
 A sample to the youngest; to the more mature,
 A glass that featured them; and to the graver,
 A child that guided dotards.

Cymb. i. 1.

THE IDENTITY OF ONE, PROVED BY HIS ACHIEVEMENTS.

If any men doubt that I have been a courtier, let him put me to my purgation. I have trod a measure; I have flattered a lady; I have been politic with my friend, smooth with mine enemy; I have undone three tailors; I have had four quarrels, and like to have fought one.

As You Like It, v. 2.

THE DIFFICULTIES AND DANGERS OF THEIR POSITION.

The art of the court ;
 As hard to leave, as keep ; whose top to climb
 Is certain falling, or so slippery, that
 The fear's as bad as falling.

Cymb. iii. 3.

THEIR DISAPPOINTMENTS.

Poor wretches, that depend
 On greatness, favour, dream as I have done ;
 Wake, and find nothing.

Cymb. v. 4.

THEIR CERTAIN DOWNFALL.

O momentary grace of mortal men,
 Which we more hunt for than the grace of God !
 Who builds his hope in air of your fair looks,
 Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast ;
 Ready, with every nod, to tumble down
 Into the fatal bowels of the deep.

Rich. III. iii. 4.

OFTEN LOSE ALL BY OVER-OBSEQUIOUSNESS.

Have I not seen dwellers on form and favour
 Lose all, and more, by paying too much rent ;
 For compound sweet, forgoing simple savour ;
 Pitiful thrivers, in their gazing spent ?

Sonnet 125.

THE ABJECT SUBSERVIENCE OF MANY.

Such smiling rogues as these,
 Like rats, oft bite the holy cords atwain,
 Which are too intrinse* to unloose ; smooth every passion
 That in the natures of their lords rebels ;
 Bring oil to fires, snow to their colder moods :

* Intricate.

Renegé,* affirm, and turn their halcyon beaks
 With every gale and vary of their masters,
 As knowing naught, like dogs, but following.

K. Lear, ii. 2.

ADVICE TO.

Let go thy hold, when a great wheel runs down a hill, lest it break thy neck with following it; but the great one that goes up the hill, let him draw thee after.

K. Lear, ii. 4.

COURTSHIP

A SEASON OF FLATTERY AND PROMISE WITH MEN, UNTIL THE OBJECT IS GAINED.

Women are angels, wooing:
 Things won are done, joy's soul lies in the doing:
 That she beloved knows naught, that knows not this—
 Men prize the thing ungained more than it is:
 That she was never yet, that ever knew
 Love got so sweet, as when desire did sue:
 Therefore this maxim out of love I teach,— Achievement is command; ungained, beseech.

Tr. & Cress. i. 2.

COWARD.

COMPARED TO THE CAT, WHO LIKED FISH, BUT DURST NOT WET HER FEET.

Live a coward in thine own esteem,
 Letting "I dare not" wait upon "I would,"
 Like the poor cat i' the adage.

Macb. i. 7.

ONE REPROVED.

Thou coward,
 Thou little valiant, great in villany!

* Deny.

Thou fortune's champion, that dost never fight
 But when her humorous ladyship is by
 To teach thee safety.

K. John, iii. 1.

COWARDS

MILITARY ONES; SPITE OF BEARD AND MOUSTACHE.

How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false
 As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins
 The beards of Hercules, and frowning Mars;
 Who inward searched, have livers white as milk!
 And these assume but valour's excrement*
 To render them redoubted.

M. of Ven. iii. 2.

Scambling, outfacing, fashion-mongering boys,
 That lie, and cog, and flout, deprave and slander,
 Go antiely and show an outward hideousness,†
 And speak off half-a-dozen dangerous words,
 How they might hurt their enemies, if they durst;
 And this is all.

Much Ado, v. 1.

THEIR OUTWARD SHOW.

A swashing and a martial outside,
 As many other mannish cowards have,
 That do outface it with their semblances.

As You Like It, i. 3.

CRIMES

NOT HEREDITARY.

Crimes, like lands,
 Are not inherited.

Tim. of Ath. v. 5.

* Hair, beard.

† Fierceness, or military appearance.

CUSTOM

ALTHOUGH IT HARDENS MEN IN CRIME, ASSISTS THEM IN REFORMATION, AFTER THE FIRST EFFORT HAS BEEN MADE.

That monster, custom, who all sense doth eat
 Of habit's devil,* is angel yet in this;—
 That to the use of actions fair and good
 He likewise gives a frock, or livery,
 That aptly is put on. Refrain tonight;
 And that shall lend a kind of easiness
 To the next abstinence; the next more easy;
 For use can almost change the stamp of Nature,
 And either curb the devil, or throw him out
 With wondrous potency. Ham. iii. 4.

TENDS TO HARDEN THE FEELINGS.

The hand of little employment hath the daintier sense.
Ham. v. 1.

IN SENSE OF OLD USAGE; IF IT WERE NEVER BROKEN THROUGH,
 THERE WOULD BE NO PROGRESS.

What custom wills, in all things should we do 't,
 The dust on antique time would lie unswept,
 And mountainous error be too highly heaped
 For truth to overpeer. Coriol. ii. 3.

CYNIC

A CHARACTER TO BE WARY OF, AS BEING USUALLY RESTLESS AND JEALOUS.

He reads much;
 He is a great observer, and he looks
 Quite through the deeds of men: he loves no plays,

* Who destroys in us the keen sense of habit's evil consequences.

. He hears no music ;
 Seldom he smiles, and smiles in such a sort,
 As if he mocked himself and scorned his spirit
 That could be moved to smile at anything.
 Such men as he be never at heart's ease,
 Whiles they behold a greater than themselves ;
 And therefore are they very dangerous. Jul. Cæs. i. 2.

DANGER

OFTEN THE ROAD TO FUTURE SECURITY.

Out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, safety.
1 Hen. IV. ii. 3.

SHARPENS THE WITS.

Danger deviseth shifts ; wit waits on fear.
Ven. & Adon. st. 115.

THE PROSPECT OF ADVANTAGE MAKES US CARELESS OF IT.

The gain proposed
 Chokes the respect of likely peril feared.
2 Hen. IV. i. 1.

DAWN

EARLY.

The hour before the heavenly-harnessed team
 Begins his golden progress in the east.
1 Hen. IV. iii. 1.

An hour before the worshiped sun
 Peered forth the golden window of the east.
Rom. & Jul. i. 1.

The morning steals upon the night,
 Melting the darkness.
Tempest, v. 1.

Look, love, what envious streaks
Do lace the severing clouds in yonder east.

Rom. & Jul. iii. 5.

The grey-eyed morn smiles on the frowning night,
Checkering the eastern clouds with streaks of light.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

Soon as the all-cheering sun
Should in the furthest east begin to draw
The shady curtains from Aurora's bed.

Rom. & Jul. i. 1.

Look, the gentle day,
Before the wheels of Phœbus, round about
Dapples the drowsy east with spots of grey.

Much Ado, v. 3.

Look, the morn, in russet mantle clad,
Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill.

Ham. i. 1.

DAYBREAK*

A CLOUDY ONE.

By the clock, 't is day,
And yet dark night strangles the travelling lamp :
Is 't night's predominance, or the day's shame,
That darkness does the face of earth entomb,
When living light should kiss it ?

Macb. ii. 4.

Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain-tops.

Rom. & Jul. iii. 5.

DISPERSING THE CLOUDS.

Night's swift dragons cut the clouds full fast,
And yonder shines Aurora's harbinger.

M. N. Dream, iii. 2.

* See Morning.

MELTING THE DARKNESS.

The grey-eyed morn smiles on the frowning night,
 Checkering the eastern clouds with streaks of light :
 And fleck'd* darkness like a drunkard reels
 From forth day's path, and Titan's fiery wheels.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

AT SEA.

The eastern gate, all fiery red,
 Opening on Neptune with fair bless'd beams,
 Turns into yellow gold his salt-green streams.

M. N. Dream, iii. 2.

ON LAND.

The busy day,
 Waked by the lark, hath roused the ribald crows.

Tr. & Cress. iv. 2.

Lo, here the gentle lark, weary of rest,
 From his moist cabinet mounts up on high,
 And wakes the morning, from whose silver breast
 The sun ariseth in his majesty ;
 Who doth the world so gloriously behold,
 That cedar-tops and hills seem burnished gold.

Ven. & Adon. st. 143.

Lamenting Philomel had ended
 The well-tuned warble of her nightly sorrow :
 And solemn night with slow-sad gait descended
 To ugly hell ; when lo, the blushing morrow
 Lends light to all fair eyes that light will borrow.

R. of Lucrece, st. 155.

Full many a glorious morning have I seen
 Flatter the mountain-tops with sovereign eye,
 Kissing with golden face the meadows green,
 Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchymy.

DEATH

ITS UNIVERSALITY.

Thou know'st 't is common ; all that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity.

Ham. i. 2.

ITS RUTHLESSNESS.

Being an ugly monster,
'T is strange he hides him in fresh cups, soft beds,
Sweet words ; or hath more ministers than we
That draw his knives i' the war.

Cymb. v. 3.

OUR ONLY REAL INHERITANCE.

Nothing can we call our own, but death,
And that small model of the barren earth,
Which serves as paste and cover to our bones.

Rich. II. iii. 2.

CONSUMMATES EVERY CALAMITY.

Cry—woe, destruction, ruin, loss, decay ;
The worst is—death, and death will have his day.

Rich. II. iii. 2.

LEADS US FOR AYE, WHITHER WE KNOW NOT.

Without all† bail.

Sonnet 74.

* Boundary.

† Any, a Hebraism.

LIKE A SHOPMAN SHUTTING-UP.

Thy eyes' windows fall,
Like death, when he shuts up the day of life.

Rom. & Jul. iv. 1.

LIKE A FROST.

Death lies on her, like an untimely frost
Upon the sweetest flower of all the field.

Rom. & Jul. iv. 5.

A HUMILIATING LESSON TO AMBITION.

Ill-weaved ambition, how much art thou shrunk !
When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound ;
But now, two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough.

1 Hen. IV. v. 4.

Imperious* Cæsar, dead, and turned to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away ;
Oh, that the earth, which kept the world in awe,
Should patch a wall to expel the winter's flaw !

Ham. v. 1.

THE ONLY UNIVERSAL SOLACE.

Nor I, nor any man, that but man is,
With nothing shall be pleased, till he be eased
With being nothing.

Rich. II. v. 5.

REMEMBERED, A WHOLESOME WARNING.

Death, remembered, should be like a mirror,
Who tells us, life 's but breath ; to trust it, error.

Pericles, i. 1.

* Imperial.

THE END OF ALL TROUBLES.

The arbitrator of despairs,
Just Death, kind umpire of men's miseries.

1 Hen. VI. ii. 5.

A QUIANT CONSOLATION FOR IT.

Why, he that cuts off twenty years of life,
Cuts off so many years of fearing death.

Jul. Cæs. iii. 1.

RESIGNATION TO IT NECESSARY, WITH PREPARATION.

Men must endure
Their going hence, even as their coming hither ;
Ripeness is all.

K. Lear, v. 3.

COWARDLY TO FEAR IT, BEING INEVITABLE.

Cowards die many times before their death,
The valiant never taste of death but once.
Of all the wonders that I yet have heard.
It seems to me most strange that men should fear ;
Seeing that death, a necessary end,
Will come, when it will come.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 2.

FEARFUL, ONLY WHEN THE LIFE HAS BEEN EVIL.

Ah, what a sign it is of evil life.
When death's approach is seen so terrible.

2 Hen. VI. iii. 3.

So bad a death argues a monstrous life.

2 Hen. VI. iii. 3.

THE FEAR OF IT GREATER THAN ITS PANG.

The sense of death is most in apprehension ;
And the poor beetle that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies.

Mea. for Mea. iii. 1.

SPECULATIVE APPREHENSIONS CONCERNING IT.

Ay, but to die, and go we know not where ;
 To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot ;
 This sensible warm motion to become
 A kneaded clod ; and the delighted spirit
 To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
 In thrilling regions of thick-ribb'd ice ;
 To be imprisoned in the viewless winds,
 And blown with restless violence about
 The pendent world ; or to be worse than worst
 Of those, that lawless and incertain thoughts
 Imagine howling ! 't is too horrible !
 The weariest and most loath'd worldly life
 That age, ache, penury, and imprisonment
 Can lay on nature, is a paradise
 To what we fear of death ! Mea. for Mea. iii. 1.

THE FEAR OF WHAT IS TO COME AFTER IT MAKES US CLING TO THE PRESENT LIFE.

To die, to sleep ;—

To sleep ! perchance to dream ; ay, there 's the rub ;
 For in that sleep of death what dreams may come,
 When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
 Must give us pause. There 's the respect*
 That makes calamity of so long life :
 For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
 The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
 The pangs of despised love, the law's delay,
 The insolence of office, and the spurns
 That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
 When he himself might his quietus make
 With a bare bodkin ? Who would fardels † bear,
 To grunt and sweat under a weary life ;
 But that the dread of something after death—

* Consideration.

† Packs, burdens.

The undiscovered country, from whose bourn
 No traveller returns—puzzles the will ;
 And makes us rather bear those ills we have
 Than fly to others that we know not of? Ham. iii. 1.

LOVELINESS IN IT, FOR SOME SHORT TIME AFTER.

Death, that hath sucked the honey of thy breath,
 Hath had no power yet upon thy beauty ;
 Thou art not conquered ; beauty's ensign yet
 Is crimson on thy lips and in thy cheeks,
 And death's pale flag is not advanced there.
Rom. & Jul. v. 3.

MERRIMENT SOMETIMES IMMEDIATELY PRECEDES IT.

How oft, when men are at the point of death,
 Have they been merry ! which their keepers call
 A lightning before death. Rom. & Jul. v. 3.

ADDRESSED BY A DISCONSOLATE AND DESPAIRING MOTHER.

O amiable, lovely death !
 Thou odoriferous stench ! sound rottenness !
 Arise forth from the couch of lasting night,
 Thou hate and terror to prosperity,
 And I will kiss thy detestable bones ;
 And put my eye-balls in thy vaulty brows ;
 And ring these fingers in thy household worms,
 And stop this gap of breath with fulsome dust,
 And be a carrion monster like thyself ;
 Come, grin on me ; and I will think thou smilest,
 And buss thee as thy wife ! Misery's love,
 Oh, come to me ! K. John, iii. 4.

DEATH-BED

THE LAST WORDS OF DYING-MEN DESERVE, AND USUALLY COMMAND ATTENTION.

They say, the tongues of dying men

Enforce attention, like deep harmony :
 Where words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain ;
 For they breathe true that breathe their words in pain.
 He that no more must say, is listened more
 Than they whom youth and ease have taught to gloze ;*
 More are men's ends marked, than their lives before ;
 The setting sun, and music at the close,
 As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last ;
 Writ in remembrance more than things long past.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

OF HOLY MEN.

Holy men, at their death, have good inspirations.

M. of Ven. i. 2.

OF A PENITENT.

Full of repentance,
 Continual meditations, tears, and sorrows,
 He gave his honours to the world again,
 His blessed part to heaven, and slept in peace.

Hen. VIII. iv. 2.

DECAY

EVERYTHING, EVEN VIRTUES, SUBJECT TO IT.

Nothing is at a like goodness still ;
 For goodness, growing to a pleurisy,
 Dies in his own too-much.

Ham. iv. 7.

DECEIVERS

IN WORSE CASE THAN THOSE WHOM THEY DECEIVE.

Thus may poor fools
 Believe false teachers : though those that are betrayed
 Do feel the treason sharply, yet the traitor
 Stands in worse case of woe.

Cymb. iii. 4.

* Flatter.

DEEDS

TO BE EXECUTED, NOT TALKED ABOUT.

Words to the heat of deeds too cold breath gives.

Macb. ii. 1.

GOOD ONES, SOON FORGOTTEN BY THE WORLD.

Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,
A great-sized monster of ingritudes,
Those scraps are good deeds past, which are devoured
As fast as they are made, forgot as soon
As done.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

GOOD ONES, ARE AS "LIGHT SHINING BEFORE MEN."

How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world.

M. of Ven. v.

EVIL ONES ARE DONE IN DARKNESS, AND "REPROVED
BY THE LIGHT."

When the searching eye of heaven is hid
Behind the globe, and lights the lower world,
Then thieves and robbers range abroad unseen,
In murders and in bloody outrage here;
But when, from under this terrestrial ball,
He fires the proud tops of the eastern pines,
And darts his light through every guilty hole,
Then murders, treasons, and detested sins,
The cloak of night being plucked from off their backs,
Stand bare, and naked, trembling at themselves.

Rich. II. iii. 2.

EVIL ONES, OFTEN STIMULATED BY OPPORTUNITY.

How oft the sight of means to do ill deeds,
Makes deeds ill done!

K. John, iv. 2.

EVIL ONES, CANNOT BE LONG CONCEALED.

Foul deeds will rise,
Though all the earth o'erwhelm them, to men's eyes.

Ham. i. 2.

DEER

MORALIZINGS OF A PHILOSOPHER ON A WOUNDED ONE, WEEPING
AT A STREAM.

The hairy fool
Stood on the extremest verge of the swift brook,
Augmenting it with tears.—
First, for his weeping in the needless* stream :
“Poor deer,” quoth he, “thou makest a testament
As worldlings do, giving thy sum of more
To that which had too much.” Then, being alone,
Left and abandoned of his velvet friends :
“’T is right,” quoth he ; “thus misery doth part
The flux of company.” Anon, a careless herd,
Full of the pasture, jumps along by him,
And never stays to greet him : “Ay,” quoth Jaques, “Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens ;
’T is just the fashion : wherefore do you look Upon that poor and broken bankrupt there ?”

As You Like It, ii. 1.

DEGREE

IN THE SENSE OF DIFFERENCE OF RANK AND STATION ; NECES-SARY IN ALL COMMUNITIES ; AND BY RESPECT FOR IT, ORDER IS MAINTAINED, AND DISCORD PREVENTED.

Degree being vizarded,
The unworthiest shows as fairly in the mask.
The heavens themselves, the planets, and this centre,
Observe degree, priority, and place,

* Requiring no further supply.

Insisture,* course, proportion, season, form,
 Office, and custom, in all line of order ;
 And therefore is the glorious planet, Sol,
 In noble eminence enthroned and sphered,
 Amidst the other ; whose medicinable eye,
 Corrects the ill aspects of planets evil,
 And posts, like the commandment of a king,
 Sans check, to good and bad : but when the planets,
 In evil mixture, to disorder wander,
 What plagues, and what portents ! what mutiny !
 What raging of the sea ! shaking of earth !
 Commotions in the winds ! frights, changes, horrors,
 Divert and crack, rend and deracinate†
 The unity and calm of married states
 Quite from their fixture ! Oh, when degree is shaken,
 Which is the ladder of all high designs,
 The enterprise is sick ! How could communities,
 Degrees in schools, and brotherhood in cities,
 Peaceful commerce from dividable‡ shores,
 The primogenitive and due of birth,
 Prerogative of age, crowns, sceptres, laurels,
 But by degree, stand in authentic place ?
 Take but degree away, untune that string,
 And, hark, what discord follows ! each thing meets
 In mere oppugnancy. The bounded waters
 Should lift their bosoms higher than the shores,
 And make a sop of all this solid globe :
 Strength should be lord of imbecility,
 And the rude son should strike his father dead :
 Force should be right ; or, rather, right and wrong,
 Between whose endless jar justice resides,
 Should lose their names, and so should justice too.
 Then everything includes itself in power,
 Power into will, will into appetite ;

* Constant continuance.

† Uproot.

‡ Divided.

And appetite, a universal wolf,
 So doubly seconded with will and power,
 Must make perforce a universal prey,
 And, last, eat up himself.—
 This chaos, when degree is suffocate,
 Follows the choking.
 And this neglecton of degree it is,
 That by a pace goes backward, with a purpose
 It hath to climb. The general's disdained
 By him one step below; he, by the next;
 That next, by him beneath: so every step,
 Exempld by the first pace that is sick,
 Of his superior, grows to an envious fever
 Of pale and bloodless emulation.

Tr. & Cress. i. 3.

DISTINGUISHES MEN FROM EACH OTHER.

Clay and clay differs in dignity,
 Whose dust is both alike.

Cymb. iv. 2.

DELAY

DANGEROUS, OWING TO THE SHIFTING NATURE OF THINGS.

That we would do,
 We should do when we would; for this "would" changes,
 And hath abatements and delays as many,
 As there are tongues, are hands, are accidents;
 And then this "should" is like a spendthrift sigh,
 That hurts by easing.

Ham. iv. 7.

SINFUL, AS RUINOUS TO OUR INTERESTS.

Then do we sin against our own estate,
 When we may profit meet, and come too late.
 When the day serves before black-cornered night,
 Find what thou want'st by free and offered light.

GIVES OTHERS THE ADVANTAGE OVER US.

Advantage feeds him fat while men delay.

1 Hen. IV. iii. 2.

THE ROAD TO RUIN.

Delay leads impotent and snail-paced beggary.

Rich. III. iv. 3.

DELIGHTS

VIOLENT ONES DIE A VIOLENT DEATH.

These violent delights have violent ends,
 And in their triumph die; like fire and powder,
 Which, as they kiss, consume. The sweetest honey
 Is loathsome in its own deliciousness,
 And in the taste confounds the appetite.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 6.

The violence of either grief or joy
 Their own enactures with themselves destroy.

Ham. iii. 2.

DEPENDANTS

ON PRINCES; THEIR MISERABLE ESTATE.

Oh, how wretched
 Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favours!
 There is between the smile we would aspire to—
 That sweet aspect of princes and their ruin—
 More pangs and fears than wars or women have;
 And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer,
 Never to hope again.

Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

Poor wretches that depend,
 On greatness' favour, dream as I have done;
 Wake, and find nothing.

Cymb. v. 4.

DEPRAVITY

WHEN IT EXISTS IN THE GIFTED, IS MOST VICIOUS.

When these so noble benefits shall prove
Not well disposed, the mind growing once corrupt,
They turn to vicious forms, ten times more ugly
Than ever they were fair.

Hen. VIII. i. 2.

DESERT

A HARD RULE FOR THE TREATMENT OF OTHERS.

Use every man after his desert, and who shall escape whipping?

Ham. ii. 2.

DESPATCH

ADMIRER MOST BY THOSE WHO HAVE IT NOT.

Celerity is never more admired
Than by the negligent.

Ant. & Cleop. i. 7.

DESPERATION

PROMPT TO MISCHIEF.

O mischief, thou art swift

Rom. & Jul. v. 1.

DESTINY

MEN APT TO ATTRIBUTE THEIR VICIES TO IT.

This is the excellent foppery of the world! that, when we are sick in fortune (often the surfeit of our own behaviour), we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars: as if we were villains by necessity; fools, by heavenly compulsion; knaves, thieves, and treachers*

* Traitors.

by spherical predominance; drunkards, liars, and adulterers by an enforced obedience of planetary influence; and all that we are evil in by a divine thrusting on. An admirable evasion of whoremaster man, to lay his goatish disposition to the charge of a star.

DEVOTEE

A RELIGIOUS ONE, DESCRIBED.

All his mind is bent to holiness,
To number Ave Marias on his beads:
His champions are, the Prophets and Apostles;
His weapons, holy saws of Sacred Writ;
His study is his tilt-yard; and his loves
Are brazen images of canonized saints.

2 Hen. VI. i. 3.

DEVOTION

TRUE, OFTENER ENTERS IN AT THE GATE OF THE LOWLY, THAN THROUGH THE PORTALS OF THE PROUD.

This gate
Instructs you how to adore the heavens; and bows you
To morning's holy office: the gates of monarchs
Are arched so high, that giants may get through,
And keep their impious turbans on, without
Good-morrow to the sun.—Hail, thou fair heaven!

We house in the rock, yet use thee not so hardly
As prouder livers do. Cymb. iii. 3.

DEW

Unquiet meals do make ill digestions.
Com. of Err. v. 1.

DIMPLES

LOVE'S DWELLING-PLACE AND TOMB.

In each cheek appears a pretty dimple :
Love made those hollows, if himself were slain,
He might be buried in a tomb so simple ;
Foreknowing well, if there he came to lie,
Why there love lived, and there he could not die.

DISEASES

DESPERATE ONES REQUIRE DESPERATE REMEDIES.

Diseases, desperate grown,
By desperate appliance are relieved.
Ham. iv. 3.

DISPOSITIONS

EXCITABLE ONES EXPERIENCE EXTREMES, WHETHER OF JOY OR GRIEF.

Where joy most revels, grief doth most lament ;
Grief joys, joy grieves, on slender accident.
Ham. iii. 2.

DISSENSION

CIVIL.

Civil dissension is a viperous worm,
That gnaws the bowels of the commonwealth.

1 Hen. VI. iii. 1.

DISSIMULATION

SURE TO BE EXPOSED AND DISGRACED AT LAST.

Time shall unfold what plaited cunning hides ;
Who cover faults, at last shame them derides.

K. Lear, i. 1.

DISSIPATION

SOON DESTROYS ITS VOTARIES.

His rash fierce blaze of riot cannot last ;
For violent fires soon burn out themselves :
Small showers last long, but sudden storms are short ;
He tires betimes, that spurs too fast betimes ;
With eager feeding, food doth choke the feeder ;
Light vanity, insatiate cormorant,
Consuming means, soon preys upon itself.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

DOGS

THEIR VARIED KINDS, AND INSTINCTS.

Hounds and greyhounds, mongrels, spaniels, curs,
Shoughs, water-rugs, and demiwolves, are clept
All by the name of dogs : the valued file
Distinguishes the swift, the slow, the subtle,
The housekeeper, the hunter, every one
According to the gift which bounteous nature
Hath in him closed.

Macb. iii. 1.

DOUBTS

THOSE THAT PROCEED FROM WEAKNESS OR IRRESOLUTION OF CHARACTER, OFTEN WITHHOLD MEN FROM ADVANTAGE.

Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt.

Mea. for Mea. i. 4.

IN SENSE OF UNCERTAINTIES, OFTEN WORSE THAN KNOWN REALITIES.

Doubting things go ill, often hurts more
Than to be sure they do: for certainties
Either are past remedies; or, timely knowing,
The remedy then born.

Cymb. i. 7.

DRAMA

THE TRUE OBJECT OF IT.

To hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature, to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image; and the very age and body of the time, his form and pressure.*

Ham. iii. 2.

DRINKING

WHEN A NATIONAL VICE, LOWERS AND DEGRADES A NATION.

It is a custom
More honoured in the breach than the observance.
This heavy-headed revel, east and west,
Makes us traduced, and taxed of other nations;
They clepe† us drunkards, and with swinish phrase
Soil our addition; ‡ and, indeed, it takes

* Impression, likeness.

† Call.

‡ Title, reputation.

From our achievements, though performed at height,
The pith and marrow of our attributes.

Ham. i. 4.

DROWNING

ITS PRESUMED SENSATIONS AND SIGHTS.

O Lord, methought what pain it was to drown !
What dreadful noise of waters in mine ears !
What sights of ugly death within mine eyes !
Methought I saw a thousand fearful wrecks ;
A thousand men that fishes gnawed upon !
Wedges of gold, great anchors, heaps of pearl,
Inestimable stones, unvalued jewels,
All scattered in the bottom of the sea.
Some lay in dead men's skulls ; and, in those holes
Where eyes did once inhabit, there were crept
(As 't were in scorn of eyes) reflecting gems
That wooed the slimy bottom of the deep,
And mocked the dead bones that lay scattered by.

Rich. III. i. 4.

DRUNKEN-MAN

WHAT HE RESEMBLES.

A drunken man's like a drowned man, a fool, and a madman. One draught above heat makes him a fool ;
the second mads him ; and a third drowns him.

Tw. Night, i. 5.

DRUNKENNESS

ITS HUMILIATING AND DEGRADING EFFECTS.

Drunk, and speak parrot—and squabble—swagger—swear,—and discourse fustian with one's own shadow ! O thou invisible spirit of wine, if thou hast no name to be known by, let us call thee—Devil !

Othello, ii. 3.

Oh, that men should put an enemy into their mouths, to steal away their brains! that we should with joy, revel, pleasure, and applause, transform ourselves into beasts.

Othello, ii. 3.

He shall tell me, I am a drunkard! Had I as many mouths as Hydra, such an answer would stop them all. To be now a sensible man, by-and-by a fool, and presently a beast! O strange! every inordinate cup is unblessed, and its ingredient is a devil.

Othello, ii. 3.

USUALLY SUCCEEDED BY ANGER.

It hath pleased the devil, drunkenness, to give place to the devil, wrath.

Othello, ii. 3.

DUTIES

FILIAL.

To you your father should be as a god ;
One that composed your beauties ; yea, and one
To whom you are but as a form in wax,
By him imprinted, and within his power
To leave the figure, or disfigure it.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

DUTY

ACTS PROMPTLY, AND WITHOUT HESITATION.

Fleet-winged duty with thought's feathers flies,

R. of Lucrece, st. 174.

EARLY-RISING

GOOD FOR HEALTH AND ECONOMY.

Early stirrers,
Which is both healthful, and good husbandry.

Hen. V. iv. 1.

BUT PROMOTED BY AN OBJECT OF INTEREST.

To business that we love, we rise betime,
And go to it with delight. Ant. & Cleop. iv. 4.

EARTH

ITS FRUITFULNESS, BY DECOMPOSITION, AND VARIED USEFULNESS OF ITS PRODUCTIONS.

The earth, that's nature's mother, is her tomb;
What is her burying-grave, that is her womb;
And from her womb, children of divers kind
We sucking on her natural bosom find;
Many for many virtues excellent,
None but for some, and yet all different. Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

The earth's a thief
That feeds and breeds by a composture stolen
From general excrement. Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

A PROLIFIC MOTHER.

Common mother thou,
Whose womb unmeasurable, and infinite breast,
Teems and feeds all! Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

EARTHQUAKES

THEIR CAUSES AND EFFECTS.

Diseas'd nature oftentimes breaks forth
In strange eruptions: oft the teeming earth
Is with a kind of colic pinched and vexed
By the imprisoning of unruly wind
Within her womb; which, for enlargement striving,
Shakes the old beldam earth, and topples down
Steeple and moss-grown towers. 1 Hen. IV. iii. 1.

ECHO

NICKNAMED.

The babbling gossip of the air.

Tw. Night, i. 5.

EFFEMINACY

ODIOUS IN A MAN.

A woman, impudent and mannish grown,
Is not more loathed than an effeminate man
In time of action.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

ENDEAVOUR

A HUMBLE ONE, DUTIFULLY TENDERED, SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED
FOR ITS GOODWILL.

Never anything can be amiss
When simpleness and duty tender it;—
And what poor duty cannot do
Noble respect takes it in might, not merit.

M. N. Dream, v. 1.

ENDS

GREAT ONES OFTEN ACHIEVED BY HUMBLE MEANS.

Some kinds of baseness
Are nobly undergone; and most poor matters
Point to rich ends.

Temp. iii. 1.

ENEMIES

TO BE KEPT IN AWE, RATHER THAN CONTENDED WITH.

Be able for thine enemy
Rather in power than use.

All's Well, i. 1.

SECRET ONES SHOULD BE WOODED, BECAUSE MOST DANGEROUS.

How rarely* does it meet with this time's guise,
 When man was wished† to love his enemies!
 Grant, I may ever love, and rather woo
 Those that would mischief me, than those that do!

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

Cherish those hearts that hate thee.

Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

ENERGY

VERY DIFFERENT IN MEN; AND OFTEN, BY CONSEQUENCE, THEIR FORTUNES.

O heavens, what some men do,
 While some men leave to do!
 How some men creep in skittish fortune's hall,
 While others play the idiots in her eyes!
 How one man eats into another's pride,
 While pride is fasting in his wantonness!

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

ENGLAND

A RHAPSODY ON IT.

This royal throne of kings, this sceptred Isle,
 This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
 This other Eden, demi-paradise;
 This fortress, built by nature for herself,
 Against infestation‡ and the hand of war;
 This happy breed of men, this little world;
 This precious stone set in the silver sea,
 Which serves it in the office of a wall,
 Or as a moat defensive to a house,
 Against the envy of less happier lands;

* Admirably.

† Recommended.

‡ Assault, invasion.

This bless'd plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
 This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
 Feared by their breed, and famous by their birth,
 Renown'd for their deeds as far from home,
 (For Christian service, and true chivalry,)
 As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry,
 Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's Son ;
 This land of such dear souls, this dear dear land,
 Dear for her reputation through the world.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

ITS INSULAR POSITION.

England, bound in with the triumphant sea,
 Whose rocky shore beats back the envious surge
 Of watery Neptune.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

ITS CLIMATE.

Is not their climate foggy, raw, and dull—
 On whom, as in despite, the sun looks pale,
 Killing their fruit with frowns ?

Hen. V. iii. 5.

ITS REPUTATION FOR DRINKING.

England, where they are most potent in potting ; your Dane, your German, and your swag-bellied Hollander, are nothing to your English. Why he drinks you with facility your Dane dead drunk ; he sweats not to overthrow your Almain ;* he gives your Hollander a vomit, ere the next pottle can be filled.

Othello, ii. 3.

ENGLISHMEN

WILL PAY NO TRIBUTE TO OTHER NATIONS.

If Cæsar can hide the sun from us with a blanket, or put the moon in his pocket, we will pay him tribute for light ; else, Sir, no more tribute, pray you now.

* German.

Cymb. iii. 1.

THEIR FIGHTING QUALITIES.

Give them great meals of beef, and iron and steel, they they will eat like wolves, and fight like devils.

Hen. V. iii. 7.

THEIR ORIGINAL COURAGE IS NOW REINFORCED BY DISCIPLINE.

Our countrymen
Are men more ordered than when Julius Cæsar,
Smiled at their lack of skill, but found their courage
Worthy his frowning at ; their discipline,
Now mingled with their courages, will make known
To their approvers, they are people, such
That mend upon the world.

Cymb. ii. 4.

THEIR CURIOSITY, OR LOVE OF THE MARVELLOUS.

Were I in England now, and had but this fish painted, not a holiday-fool there but would give a piece of silver :
there would this monster make a man : when they will not give a doit to relieve a lame beggar, they will lay out ten to see a dead Indian.

Tempest, ii. 2.

ENJOYMENT

CONSISTS RATHER IN THE PURSUIT OF OBJECTS, THAN IN THE POSSESSION OF THEM.

Who resteth from a feast
With that keen appetite that he sits down ?
Where is the horse that doth untread again
The tedious measures, with the unbated fire
That he did pace them first ? All things that are
Are with more spirit chasèd than enjoyed.

M. of Ven. ii. 5.

ENTERTAINMENT

OF GUESTS, DEMANDS A COURTEOUS ATTENTION.

The sauce to meat is ceremony,
Meeting were bare without.

Macb. iii. 4.

EQUIVOCATOR

OR LIAR.

An equivocator, that could swear in both scales against either scale.

Macb. ii. 3.

EVENING

ITS MOISTURE.

Ere twice in murk and occidental damp
Moist Hesperus hath quenched his sleepy lamp.

All's Well, ii. 1.

ITS SHIFTING CLOUDS, AND APPEARANCES.

Sometime we see a cloud that's dragonish;
A vapour, sometime, like a bear or lion,
A towered citadel, or pendent rock,
A forked mountain, or blue promontory
With trees upon't, that nod into the world,
And mock our eyes with air: thou hast seen these signs;
They are black Vesper's pageants.

Ant. & Cleop. iv. 12.

EVIL

TO BE CHECKED IN THE BUD.

Now 't is the spring, and weeds are shallow-rooted;
Suffer them now, and they'll o'ergrow the garden,
And choke the herbs for want of husbandry.

2 Hen. VI. iii. 1.

THE SUBTLETY USED BY ITS MINISTERS, IN SEDUCING MEN.

Oftentimes, to win us to our harm,
The instruments of darkness tell us truths,
Win us with honest trifles, to betray us
In deepest consequences.

Macb. i. 4.

SOME GOOD MAY BE DISTILLED FROM IT.

God Almighty !

There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distil it out ;
Thus may we gather honey from the weed,
And make a moral of the devil himself.

Hen. V. iv. 1.

EVILS

IN SENSE OF AFFLICTIONS ; STRONGEST WHEN JUST DEPARTING.

Before the curing of a strong disease,
Even at the instant of repair and health,
The fit is strongest : evils, that take leave,
On their departure most of all show evil.

K. John, iii. 4.

EXCESS

IN DIVERSION, TO BE AVOIDED BY SELF-RESTRAINT.

Let's teach ourselves that honourable stop
Not to outdo discretion.

Othello, ii. 3.

ITS ATTENDANT EVILS, RESTRAINT, CRAVING, AND RECKLESS ABANDONMENT.

As surfeit is the father of much fast,
So every scope, by the immoderate use,
Turns to restraint. Our natures do pursue
(Like rats that ravin down their proper bane)
A thirsty evil ; and when we drink, we die.

Mea. for Mea. i. 2.

DEFEATS ITS OWN OBJECT.

The violence of either grief or joy
 Their own enactures with themselves destroy.
Ham. iii. 2.

These violent delights have violent ends,
 And in their triumph die ; like fire and powder,
 Which, as they kiss, consume. The sweetest honey
 Is loathsome in its own deliciousness,
 And in the taste confounds the appetite.
Rom. & Jul. ii. 6.

EXCUSES

OFTEN MAKE BAD WORSE.

Oftentimes, excusing of a fault
 Doth make the fault worse by the excuse ;
 As patches, set upon a little breach,
 Discredit more in hiding of the fault,
 Than did the fault before it was so patched.
K. John, iv. 2.

EXPECTATION

CAPRICIOUSLY DEALT WITH BY FORTUNE.

Oft expectation fails, and most oft there
 Where most it promises ; and oft it hits
 Where hope is coldest, and despair most sits.
All's Well, ii. 1.

EXPERIENCE

POSSESSED BY EVERY MAN ; ENABLING HIM, IN SOME THINGS,
 TO ANTICIPATE THE FUTURE, BY THE HISTORY OF THE PAST.

There is a history in all men's lives,
 Figuring the nature of the times deceased :
 The which observed, a man may prophesy,
 With a near aim, of the main chance of things

As yet not come to life; which in their seeds,
 And weak beginnings, lie untreasur'd.
 Such things become the hatch and brood of time.

2 Hen. IV. iii. 1.

GAINED BY INDUSTRY AND TIME.

Experience is by industry achieved,
 And perfected by the swift course of time.

Two Gent. of Ver. i. 3.

EXTERIOR

MEN NOT TO BE JUDGED OF BY IT.

Opinion's but a fool, that makes us scan
 The outward habit by* the inward man.

Pericles, ii. 2.

A GOOD ONE IN BOOKS, RECOMMENDS THEM.

That book in many eyes doth share the glory,
 That in gold clasps locks in the golden story.

Rom. & Jul. i. 3.

EYES

THEIR EXQUISITE SENSITIVENESS.

Eyes that are the frail'st and softest things,
 Who shut their coward gates on atomies.†

As You Like It, iii. 4.

BEAUTIFUL ONES OF A WOMAN, COMPLIMENTED.

Two of the fairest stars in all the heaven,
 Having some business, do entreat her eyes
 To twinkle in their spheres till they return.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

* In connection with.

† The smallest substances.

Her eye in heaven
 Would through the airy region shine so bright,
 That birds would sing, and think it were not night.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

OF A WOMAN, IN TEARS.

Hers, which through the crystal tears gave light,
 Shone like the moon, in water seen by night.

Ven. & Adon. st. 82.

THEIR POWER OF EXPRESSION ILLUSTRATED.

Lend the eye a terrible aspect ;
 Let it pry through the portage of the head,
 Like the brass cannon : let the brow o'erwhelm it
 As fearfully as doth a gallèd rock
 O'erhang and jutty his confounded* base,
 Swilled by the wild and wasteful ocean.

Hen. V. iii. 1.

FAME

POSTHUMOUS ; PERPETUATES A MAN'S FAULTS OFTENER THAN HIS VIRTUES.

Men's evil manners live in brass ; their virtues
 We write in water.

Hen. VIII. iv. 2.

PURSUED BY ALL, TO PERPETUATE THEIR MEMORY.

Let Fame, that all hunt after in their lives,
 Live registered upon our brazen tomb,
 And then grace us in the disgrace of death ;
 When, spite of cormorant devouring time,
 The endeavour of this present breath may buy
 That honour, which shall bate his scythe's keen edge,
 And make us heirs of all eternity.

L. L. Lost, i. 1.

* Wasted, worn.

FAMILIARITY

NOT TO BE TOO FREELY USED.

Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar.

*Ham. i. 3.FALSEHOOD

COMMON TO POOR, AS WELL AS RICH.

Will poor folks lie
That have afflictions on them ; knowing 't is
A punishment, or trial ? Yes ; no wonder,
When rich ones scarce tell true.

Cymb. iii. 6.

MORE BLAMEABLE IN THE RICH THAN IN THE POOR.

To lapse in fullness
Is sorer, than to lie for need ; and falsehood
Is worse in kings than beggars.

*Cymb. iii. 6.FALSENESS

ILLUSTRATED.

As false
As air, as water, wind, or sandy earth ;
As fox to lamb ; as wolf to heifer's calf ;
Pard to the hind, or stepdame to her son.

*Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.FATNESS

FAT MEN VERSUS LEAN ONES.

Let me have men about me that are fat,
Sleek-headed men, and such as sleep o' nights.
Yon Cassius has a lean and hungry look ;
He thinks too much ; such men are dangerous.

Jul. Cæs. i. 2.

FAULT

EVEN A SINGLE ONE, THOUGH TRIFLING, OFTEN SO GROWS UPON A MAN, AS TO EXTINGUISH ALL HIS OTHER MERITS.

Oft it chances in particular men,
That for some vicious mole of nature in them,
As, in their birth (wherein they are not guilty,
Since nature cannot choose his origin),
Or, by the o'ergrowth of some complexion,
Oft breaking down the pales and forts of reason ;
Or by some habit that too much o'erleavens
The form of plausible manners ;—that these men,—
Carrying, I say, the stamp of one defect ;
Being nature's livery, or fortune's star,—
Their virtues else (be they as pure as grace,
As infinite as man may undergo)
Shall, in the general censure, take corruption
From that particular fault: the dram of base
Doth all the noble substance often dout,*
To his own scandal.

Ham. i. 4.

FAULTS

NO MEN FREE FROM THEM.

Roses have thorns, and silver fountains mud ;
Clouds and eclipses stain both moon and sun ;
And loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud ;
All men make faults.

Sonnet 35.

OF INFIRMITY SHOULD BE PARDONED, OTHERWISE THERE COULD BE NO PARDON FOR PRESUMPTUOUS SINS.

If little faults, proceeding on distemper,
Shall not be winked at, how shall we stretch our eye,
When capital crimes, chewed, swallowed, and digested,
Appear before us ?

Hen. V. ii. 2.

* Do out, obliterate.

SHOW WORST ON A FAIR GROUND ; ILLUSTRATION.

The summer's flower is to the summer sweet,
 Though to itself it only live and die ;
 But if that flower with base infection meet,
 The basest weed outlives his dignity :
 For sweetest things turn sourest by their deeds ;
 Lilies that fester, smell far worse than weeds.

*Sonnet 94.FAVOUROF MEN, AN UNSAFE FOUNDATION WHEREON TO BUILD OUR HOPES.

O momentary grace of mortal men,
 Which we more hunt for than the grace of God !
 Who builds his hopes in air of your fair looks,
 Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast ;
 Ready with every nod, to tumble down
 Into the fatal bowels of the deep.

*Rich. III. iii. 4.FAVOURITES

OF PRINCES, THEIR BRIEF TERM OF SUNSHINE.

Great princes' favourites their fair leaves spread
 But as the marigold, at the sun's eye ;
 And in themselves their pride lies buri'd,
 For at a frown they in their glory die.

Against that power that bred it. Much Ado, iii. 1.

FEAR

USUALLY BANISHED BY ANY STRONG DESIRE.

Madly tossed between desire and dread—
The one sweetly flatters, the other feareth harm ;
But honest fear, bewitched with lust's fowl charm,
Doth too too oft betake him to retire,
Beaten away by brainsick rude desire.
R. of Lucrece, st. 25.

IN BATTLE, ONLY MAKES DEATH MORE PROBABLE.

To fear the foe, since fear oppresseth strength,
Gives, in your weakness, strength unto the foe,
And so your follies fight against yourself.
Fear, and be slain ; no worse can come, to fight :
And fight and die, is death destroying death,
Where* fearing dying, pays death servile breath.
Rich. II. iii. 2.

BETRAYS ITSELF BY THE ALTERATION OF FEATURE.

Only look up clear ;
To alter favour† ever is to fear. Macb. i. 5.

IN SENSE OF PRUDENT APPREHENSION ; BETTER THAN A THOUGHT-LESS CONFIDENCE.

Blind fear, that seeing‡ reason leads, finds safer footing than blind reason stumbling without fear ; to fear the worst, often cures the worst.

FLATTERERS

ALL MEN MORE OR LESS SO.

Who dares, who dares,
 In purity of manhood stand upright,
 And say, "This man's a flatterer"? If one be,
 So are they all; for every grize* of fortune
 Is smoothed by that below: the learned pate
 Ducks to the golden fool.

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

FLATTERY

NONE IN NATURE.

What, think'st
 That the bleak air, thy boisterous chamberlain,
 Will put thy shirt on warm? Will these mossed trees,
 That have outlived the eagle, page† thy heels,
 And skip when thou point'st out? Will the cold brook,
 Candied with ice, caudle thy morning taste,
 To cure thy o'ernight's surfeit? Call the creatures,—
 Whose naked natures live in all the spite
 Of wreakful heaven; whose bare, unhoused trunks,
 To the conflicting elements exposed,
 Answer mere nature;—bid them flatter thee.

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

Hath not old custom made this life more sweet
 Than painted pomp? Are not these woods
 More free from peril than the envious court?
 Here feel we but the penalty of Adam,
 The seasons' difference; as, the icy fang
 And churlish chiding of the winter wind;
 Which, when it bites and blows upon my body,

* Grade, degree.

† Follow.

Even till I shrink with cold, I smile, and say,
This is no flattery ; these are counsellors
That feelingly persuade me what I am.

As You Like It, ii. 1.

THE COMPLACENT RECEIVER OF IT, AS BAD AS THE GIVER.

He that loves to be flattered is worthy o' the flatterer.

Tim. of Ath. i. 1.

ONLY USEFUL, WHEN PRACTISED ON THE RICH.

Why should the poor be flattered ?
No, let the candied tongue lick absurd pomp ;
And crook the pregnant* hinges of the knee,
Where thrift† may follow fawning.

Ham. iii. 2.

ONLY PARDONABLE WHEN USED AS THE OIL OF STRIFE.

'Tis holy sport to be a little vain,
When the sweet breath of flattery conquers strife.

Com. of Er. iii. 2.

To which that breath gives heat and stronger glowing.

Pericles, i. 2.

But when I tell him he hates flatterers,
He says he does ; being then most flattered.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

MORE HEEDED THAN GOOD ADVICE.

Oh, that men's ears should be
To counsel deaf, but not to flattery!

Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

FOOL

OR COURT-JESTER, IT TAKES A WISE MAN TO MAKE ONE.

This fellow's wise enough to play the fool,
And to do that well craves a kind of wit.
He must observe their mood on whom he jests,
The quality of persons, and the time ;
And, like the haggard,* check† at every feather
That comes before his eye. This is a practice
As full of labour as a wise man's art :
For folly, that he wisely shows, is fit ;
But wise men, folly fallen, quite taint their wit.

Tw. Night, iii. 1.

He was perfum'd like a milliner ;
 And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
 A pouncet-box,* which ever and anon
 He gave his nose and took 't away again ;
 (Who, therewith angry, when it next came there Took it in snuff;) and still he smiled and talked.

FORTUNE

HER CAPRICE AND INSTABILITY.

 That stands upon the rolling restless stone.

Hen. V. iii. 6.

WAYWARD IN HER GIFTS, ESPECIALLY TOWARDS WOMEN.

Her benefits are mightily misplaced ; and the bountiful blind goddess doth most mistake in her gifts to women :
 for those that she makes fair she scarce makes honest, and those that she makes honest she makes very ill-favouredly.

As You Like It, i. 2.

Mea. for Mea. iii. 1.

HER EVERY LARGESS HAS ITS DRAWBACK.

Will fortune never come with both hands full,
 But write her fair words still in foulest letters ?
 She either gives a stomach,‡ and no food—
 Such are the poor, in health ; or else a feast,
 And takes away the stomach—such are the rich,
 That have abundance, and enjoy it not.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

* A box for musk, or other perfumes.

† Of nature, who is prodigal in bestowing beauty, stints it in goodness.

HER POWER OF DEPRAVING MEN, AND INFLUENCING THEIR CHARACTERS.

Twinned brothers of one womb,—

Whose procreation, residence, and birth
Scarce is dividant,*—touch them with several fortunes ;
The greater scorns the lesser ; not nature,
To whom all sores lay siege, can bear great fortune,
But by contempt of nature.

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

REVERSE OF, SCATTERS ALL FOLLOWERS.

When fortune, in her shift and change of mood,
Spurns down her late-beloved ; all his dependants
Which laboured after him to the mountain-top,
Even on their knees and hands, let him slip down,
Not one accompanying his declining foot.

FRIENDS

STAUNCH ONES AND PROVED, TO BE HELD FAST AND CHERISHED.

The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,

But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
Of each new-hatched, unfledged comrade. Ham. i. 3.

Be sure you be not loose; for those you make your friends,
And give your hearts to, when they once perceive
The least rub in your fortunes, fall away
Like water from ye, never found again
But where they mean to sink ye. Hen. VIII. ii. 1.

EASILY LOST, IF NOT WISELY SELECTED.

The amity that wisdom knits not, folly can easily untie.
Tr. & Cress. ii. 3.

NOT TO BE CONFOUNDED WITH MESSMATES.

Who can call him
His friend, that dips in the same dish?
Tim. of Ath. iii. 2.

THEIR USE IS, TO BE MADE USE OF.

O you gods, think I, what need we have any friends if we have no need of them? they were the most needless creatures living, should we never have use of them; and would most resemble sweet instruments hung up in cases, that keep their sounds to themselves. We are born to do benefits; and what better or properer can we call our own than the riches of our friends. Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

PLAY FAST AND LOOSE, IN THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

O world, thy slippery turns ! friends now fast sworn,
 Whose double bosoms seem to wear one heart,
 Whose hours, whose bed, whose meal, and exercise,
 Are still together ; who twin, as 't were, in love,
 Unseparable, shall within this hour,
 On a dissension of a doit, break out
 To bitterest enmity : so fellest foes,
 Whose passions and whose plots have broke their sleep
 To take the one the other, by some chance,
 Some trick not worth an egg, shall grow dear friends,
 And interjoin their issues.

Coriol. iv. 5.

HOLLOW ONES MAKE GREAT SHOW OF FAITH TILL TRIED.

There are no tricks in plain and simple faith :
 But hollow men, like horses hot at hand,
 Make gallant show and promise of their mettle ;
 But when they should endure the bloody spur,
 They fall their crests, and, like deceitful jades,
 Sink in the trial.

Jul. Cæs. iv. 2.

PLENTIFUL, WHEN NOT NEEDED ; AND WHEN SOLICITED, BECOME ENEMIES.

Hitherto doth love on fortune tend,
 For who not needs shall never lack a friend ;
 And who in want a hollow friend doth try,
 Directly seasons him his enemy.

Ham. iii. 2.

DEPART WITH ADVERSITY.

Ah, when the means are gone, that buy this praise,
 The breath is gone whereof this praise is made :
 Feast-won, fast-lost ; one cloud of winter showers,
 These flies are couched.

Tim. of Ath. ii. 2.

As we do turn our backs
 From our companion, thrown into his grave;
 So his familiars to his buried fortunes
 Slink all away; leave their false vows with him,
 Like empty purses picked: and his poor self,
 A dedicated beggar to the air,
 With his disease of all-shunned poverty,
 Walks, like contempt, alone! Tim. of Ath. iv. 2.

Men shut their doors against a setting sun.
Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

HOLLOW ONES; THEIR EXCUSES FOR NOT RENDERING ASSISTANCE, WHEN SOLICITED.

They answer in a joint and corporate voice,
 That now they are at fall, want treasure, cannot Do what they would—are sorry—you are honourable—
 But yet they could have wished—they know not—but Something hath been amiss—a noble nature
 May catch a wretch—would all were well—'t is pity!
 And so, intending* other serious matters,
 After distasteful looks, and these hard fractions, †
 With certain half-caps, and cold-moving nods,
 They froze me into silence. Tim. of Ath. ii. 2.

SOME APPELLATIONS FOR FALSE ONES.

Most smiling, smooth, detested parasites,
 Courteous destroyers, affable wolves, meek bears,
 Fools of fortune, trencher-friends, time's flies,
 Cap and knee slaves, vapours and minute-jacks! †
Tim. of Ath. iii. 6.

WICKED ONES, DANGEROUS.

The love of wicked friends converts to fear;

* Pretending to have.

† Disjointed sentences.

‡ Possibly an allusion to the Jack-o'-lantern, or ignis fatuus, which often appears and disappears within the space of a minute.

That fear to hate ; and hate turns one, or both,
To worthy danger, and deserv'd death. Rich. II. v. 1.

THREE GOOD ONES.

He that wants money, means, and content, is without three good friends. As You Like It, iii. 2.

FRIENDSHIP

SELDOM LASTING.

We make ourselves fools, to disport ourselves ;
And spend our flatteries, to drink those men,
Upon whose age we void it up again,
With poisonous spite, and envy. Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

LENDING NOT ON USURY.

When did friendship take
A breed* of barren metal from his friend ?
M. of Ven. i. 3.

STANDS NOT ON CEREMONY.

Ceremony

Was but devised, at first, to set a gloss
On faint deeds, hollow welcome,
Recanting goodness, sorry ere 't is shown ;
But where there is true friendship, there needs none.
Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

NOT TO BE TRUSTED IN LOVE MATTERS.

Friendship is constant in all other things,
Save in the office and affairs of love. Much Ado, ii. 1.

FUTURITY

IF REVEALED TO US, WOULD MAR ALL OUR HAPPINESS.

Oh, if this were seen,
The happiest youth—viewing his progress through,

* Interest on money.

What perils past, what crosses to ensue—
 Would shut the book, and sit him down, and die.

Seldom when
 The steel'd gaoler is the friend of men.

Mea. for Mea. iv. 2.

GENTLEMAN

A GENUINE ONE DESCRIBED.

His life was gentle; and the elements
 So mixed in him, that nature might stand up,
 And say to all the world, "This was a man." Jul. Cæs. v. 5.

A MODEL YOUNG ONE.

He hath
 Made use and fair advantage of his days;
 His years but young, but his experience old;
 His head unmellowed, but his judgment ripe.
 He is complete, in feature and in mind,
 With all good grace, to grace a gentleman.

Two Gent. of Ver. ii. 4.

GENTLEMEN

TRUE ONES, FEEL NEITHER ENVY, NOR CONTEMPT.

We are gentlemen,
 That neither in our hearts, nor outward eyes,
 Envy the great, nor do the poor despise. Pericles, ii. 3.

GIBING

AND JESTING; THEIR SUCCESS DEPENDS UPON THE HEARERS.

A gibing spirit,
 Whose influence is begot of that loose grace

Which shallow laughing hearers give to fools.
 A jest's prosperity lies in the ear
 Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
 Of him that makes it.

L. L. Lost, v. 2.

GIFTS

VALUED BY THE NOBLE, ACCORDING TO THE GIVER'S LOVE.

To the noble mind,
 Rich gifts wax poor, when givers prove unkind.

Ham. iii. 1.

VALUED BY THE BASE, FOR THEMSELVES ALONE.

O heresy in fair, fit for these days!
 A giving hand, though foul, shall have fair praise.

L. L. Lost, iv. 1.

GLORY

THE MISERY OF CRAVING AFTER IT.

Most miserable
 Is the desire that's glorious. Blessed be those,
 How mean soe'er, that have their honest wills,
 Which seasons comfort.

Cymb. i. 7.

THE PURSUIT OF IT, OFTEN LEADS TO CRIME.

Out of question, so it is sometimes,
 Glory grows guilty of detested crimes;
 When for fame's sake, for praise, an outward part,
 We bend to that working of the heart.

L. L. Lost, iv. 1.

TENDS TO ITS LIMIT.

Glory is like a circle in the water,
 Which never ceaseth to enlarge itself,
 Till, by broad spreading, it disperse to naught.

1 Hen. VI. i. 2.

THE LESSER, DIMMED BY "THE GLORY THAT EXCELLETH."

When the moon shone we did not see the candle,
 So doth the greater glory dim the less :
 A substitute shines brightly as a king,
 Until a king be by ; and then his state
 Empties itself, as doth an inland brook
 Into the main of waters.

M. of Ven. v.

GLUTTONY

DULLS THE MENTAL POWERS.

Fat paunches have lean pates, and dainty bits
 Make rich the ribs, but bankrout* quite the wits.

L. L. Lost, i. 1.

I am a great eater of beef, and I believe that doth harm
 my wit.

Tw. Night, i. 3.

GOD

OFTEN EMPLOYS WEAK MEANS TO WORK OUT MIGHTY ENDS.

He that of greatest works is finisher,
 Oft does them by the weakest minister :
 So Holy Writ in babes hath judgment shown,
 When judges† have been babes : great floods have flown
 From simple sources ; and great seas have dried,
 When miracles have by the greatest been denied.

As 't is with us that square our guess by shows.

All's Well, ii. 1.

GOLD

THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL.

O thou sweet king-killer, and dear divorce
'Twixt natural son and sire! the bright defiler
Of Hymen's purest bed! thou valiant Mars!
Thou ever young, fresh, loved, and delicate wooer,
Whose blush doth thaw the consecrated snow
That hangs on Dian's lap! thou visible god,
That solderest close impossibilities,
And mak'st them kiss! that speak'st with every tongue
To every purpose! O thou touch of hearts!
Think thy slave, man, rebels; and, by thy virtue,
Set them into confounding odds, that beasts
May have the world in empire! Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

This yellow slave
Will knit and break religions, bless the accursed;
Make the hoar leprosy adored; place thieves,
And give them title, knee, and approbation,
With senators upon the bench: this is it,
That makes the wappened* widow wed again,
She, whom the spital-house, and ulcerous sores,
Would cast the gorge at, this embalms and spices
To the April day again. Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

A SEDUCER, AND DECEIVER, AS OFTEN DISAPPOINTING THE END
FOR WHICH IT WAS AMASSED.

How quickly nature falls into revolt,

* Sorrowful, dejected.

When gold becomes her object !
 For this the foolish over-careful fathers
 Have broke their sleep with thoughts, their brains with care,
 Their bones with industry ;
 For this they have engrossed, and pilëd up
 The cankered heaps of strange-achievëd gold ;
 For this they have been thoughtful to invest
 Their sons with arts and martial exercises :
 When, like the bee, tolling from every flower
 The virtuous sweets ;
 Our thighs all packed with wax, our mouths with honey,
 We bring it to the hive ; and, like the bees,
 Are murdered for our pains ! This bitter taste
 Yields his engrossments to the ending father.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

ITS POWER OF CORRUPTING.

'T is gold
 Which buys admittance ; oft it doth : yea, and makes Diana's rangers, false themselves, yield up
 Their deer to the stand of the stealer ; and 't is gold,
 Which makes the true man killed ; and saves the thief ;—
 Nay, sometimes, hangs both thief and true man.
 Can it not do, and undo ?

Cymb. ii. 3.

ITS OMNIPOTENCE.

If money go before, all ways lie open.

Merry Wives, ii. 2.

The strongest castle, tower, or town,
 The golden bullet beats it down.

Pass. Pilgr. 16.

THE DEATH OF MANY A LIFE.

All that glisters* is not gold,

* Glistens.

Often have you heard that told ;
 Many a man his life hath sold,
 But my outside to behold.

M. of Ven. ii. 7.

THE POISON OF THE SOUL.

There is thy gold, worse poison to men's souls,
 Doing more murders in this loathsome world,
 Than these poor compounds* that thou may'st not sell.

Rom. & Jul. v. 1.

SHIELDS ITS OWNER FROM BLAME TO WHICH THE POOR ARE SUBJECT.

Through tattered clothes small vices do appear,
 Robes and furred gowns hide all. Plate sin with gold,
 And the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks :
 Arm it in rags, a pigmy's straw doth pierce it.

K. Lear, iv. 6.

GOODNESS

EFFECT OF UNIVERSAL.

I would we were all of one mind, and one mind good ;
 O there were desolation of gaols and gallowses !

Cymb. v. 4.

GOSSIPS

VILLAGE ONES.

I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
 The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
 With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news ;
 Who with his shears and measure in his hand,
 Standing on slippers, which his nimble haste
 Had falsely thrust into contrary feet,
 Told of a many thousand warlike French,
 That were embattail'd and ranked in Kent ;

* Poisons.

Another lean unwashed artificer
Cuts off his tale, and talks of Arthur's death.

K. John, iv. 2.

POLITICAL.

They 'll sit by the fire, and presume to know
What's done in the Capitol ; who's like to rise,
Who thrives, and who declines : side factions, and give out
Conjectural marriages ; making parties strong,
And feebling such as stand not in their liking,
Below their cobbled shoes.

Coriol. i. 1.

PRATE OF THEIR BETTERS.

What great ones do, the less will prattle of.

Tw. Night, i. 2.

GOVERNMENT

GOOD, CONSISTS OF MANY SUBORDINATE PARTS THAT ACT IN HARMONY ; ILLUSTRATED BY THE MANNERS AND HABITS OF BEES.

Government, though high, and low, and lower,
Put into parts doth keep in one concert ;*
Congruing in a full and natural close,
Like music :—therefore doth Heaven divide
The state of man in divers functions,
Setting endeavour in continual motion ;
To which is fix'd, as an aim or butt,
Obedience : for so work the honey-bees ;
Creatures that, by a rule in nature, teach
The art of order to a peopled kingdom.
They have a king, and officers of sorts ; †
Where some, like magistrates, correct at home ;
Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad ;
Others like soldiers, arm'd in their stings,
Make boot ‡ upon the summer's velvet buds ;

* Concord.

† Different ranks and duties.

‡ Booty.

Which pillage they with merry march bring home
 To the tent-royal of their emperor ;
 Who, busied in his majesty, surveys
 The singing masons building roofs of gold ;
 The civil citizens kneading up the honey ;
 The poor mechanic porters crowding in
 Their heavy burdens at his narrow gate ;
 The sad-eyed justice, with his surly hum,
 Delivering o'er to executors* pale
 The lazy yawning drone.

Hen. V. i. 2.

A GOOD ONE, HAS A MYSTERIOUS POWER OF GAINING INFORMATION.

The providence that 's in a watchful State,
 Knows almost every grain of Plutus' gold ;
 Finds bottom in the uncomprehensive deeps ;
 Keeps place with thought ; and almost, like the gods,
 Does thoughts unveil in their dumb cradles.
 There is a mystery, with whom relation
 Durst never meddle, in the soul of state ;
 Which hath an operation more divine
 Than breath, or pen, can give expressure to.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

GRACE

DIVINE, EFFECTUAL ONLY WHEN MEN WORK WILLINGLY WITH IT.

The means that Heaven yields must be embraced,
 And not neglected : else, if Heaven would,
 And we will not, Heaven's offer we refuse ;—
 The proffered means of succour and redress.

Rich. II. iii. 2.

ASSISTS THOSE ONLY WHO ASSIST THEMSELVES.

Our remedies oft in ourselves do lie,

* Executioners.

Which we ascribe to Heaven : the fated sky
 Gives us free scope ; only doth backward pull
 Our slow designs, when we ourselves are dull.

All's Well, i. 1.

DIVINE, THE ONLY POWER THAT CAN SUBDUE THE AFFECTIONS.

 Not by might mastered, but by special grace.

L. L. Lost, i. 1.

THE WORD, AS OFTEN USED BY HYPOCRITES, IS BLASPHEMY.

That word—grace,
 In an ungracious mouth, is but profane.

Rich. II. ii. 3.

BEFORE MEAT, OF A MISANTHROPE.

Immortal gods ! I crave no pelf ;
 I pray for no man, but myself.
 Grant I may never prove so fond †
 To trust a man on his oath or bond ;
 Or a harlot, for her weeping ;
 Or a dog, that seems a-sleeping ;
 Or a keeper with my freedom ;
 Or my friends, if I should need 'em.

Amen. So fall to 't ;
 Rich men sin, and I eat root.

Tim. of Ath. i. 2.

GRACES

OF SOME MEN PECULIARLY EXPOSE THEM TO ENVY.

To some kind of men
 Their graces serve them but as enemies.
 O what a world is this, when what is comely
 Envenoms him that bears it !

As You Like It, ii. 3.

* Affections, passions.

† Foolish.

GRAFTING

OR BUDDING; AN ART THAT ALTERS NATURE.

We marry
 A gentler scion to the wildest stock;
 And make conceive a bark of baser kind
 By bud of nobler race: this is an art
 Which does mend nature—change it, rather; but
 The art itself is nature. Wint. Tale, iv. 3.

GREAT MEN

THEIR EXEMPTION FROM CENSURE.

Great men may jest with saints: 'tis wit in them,
 But in the less, foul profanation.
 That in the captain's but a choleric word,
 Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy. M. for M. ii. 2.

EXPOSED TO GREATER EXTREMES OF HONOUR OR DISGRACE,
 BEING THE THEME OF MORE TONGUES.

The mightier man, the mightier is the thing
 That makes him honoured, or begets him hate;
 For greatest scandal waits on present state.
 The moon, being clouded, presently is missed,
 But little stars may hide them when they list.
 The crow may bathe his coal-black wings in mire,
 And unperceived fly with the filth away,
 But if the like the snow-white swan desire,
 The stain upon his silver down will stay:
 Poor grooms are sightless* night; kings, glorious day:
 Gnats are unnoted wheresoe'er they fly;
 But eagles, gazed upon with every eye.
R. of Lucrece, st. 144-5.

* Invisible.

THEIR PRONENESS TO AMBITION, AND DISPLAY OF POWER.

Could great men thunder
 As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet,
 For every pelting,* petty officer
 Would use his heaven for thunder; nothing but thunder.
Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

GREATNESS

TRUE, DEFINED.

Rightly to be great,
 Is, not to stir without great argument;
 But greatly to find quarrel in a straw,
 When honour's at the stake. Ham. iv. 4.

ABUSED, WHEN WANTING IN PITY.

The abuse of greatness is, when it disjoins
 Remorse† from power. Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

THREE ROADS TO IT.

Some are born great; some achieve greatness; and some have greatness thrust upon them. Tw. Night, ii. 5.

HONOURED BY THE WORLD MERELY FOR ITS EXTERNALS.

'Tis certain, greatness, once fallen out with fortune,
 Must fall out with men too. What the declined is,
 He shall as soon read in the eyes of others,
 As feel in his own fall; for men, like butterflies,
 Show not their mealy wings but to the summer;
 And not a man, for being simply man,
 Hath any honour; but honour for those honours
 That are without him, as place, riches, favour,
 Prizes of accident as oft as merit:

* Paltry.

† Pity.

Which when they fall, as being slippery standers,
 The love that leaned on them as slippery too,
 Do one pluck down another, and together
 Die in the fall.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

GRIEF

REAL, LIES ALL WITHIN.

My grief lies all within ;
 And these external manners of lament
 Are merely shadows to the unseen grief
 That swells with silence in the tortured soul ;
 There lies the substance.

Rich. II. iv. 1.

'T is not alone my inky cloak,
 Nor customary suits of solemn black,
 Nor windy suspirations of forced breath—
 No, nor the fruitful river in the eye,
 Nor the dejected 'haviour of the visage,
 Together with all forms, modes, shows of grief,
 That can denote me truly : these, indeed, seem,
 For they are actions that a man might play :
 But I have that within which passeth show ;
 These, but the trappings and the suits of woe.

Ham. i. 2.

INWARD, RELIEVED BY OUTWARD EXPRESSION.

Give sorrow words ; the grief that does not speak,
 Whispers the o'erfraught heart, and bids it break.

Macb. iv. 3.

An oven that is stopped, or river stayed,
 Burneth more hotly, swelleth with more rage :
 So of conceal'd sorrow may be said ;
 Free vent of words love's fire doth assuage ;
 But when the heart's attorney once is mute,
 The client breaks, as desperate in his suit.

Ven. & Adon. st. 56.

WHEN REAL, UNCONTROLLABLE AT FIRST.

True grief is fond,* and testy as a child,
 Who, wayward once, his mood with naught agrees.
 Old woes, not infant sorrows, bear them mild :
 Continuance tames the one ; the other wild,
 Like an unpractised swimmer plunging still,
 With too much labour, drowns for want of skill.

R. of Lucrece, st. 157.

Every one can master a grief but he that has it.

Much Ado, iii. 2.

NOT TO BE CHARMED AWAY BY SIMPLY CONJURING UP BRIGHT IMAGES.

Oh, who can hold a fire in his hand
 By thinking on the frosty Caucasus ?
 Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite
 By bare imagination of a feast ?
 Or wallow naked in December snow
 By thinking on fastastic summer's heat ?
 Oh no ! the apprehension of the good
 Gives but the greater feeling to the worse :
 Fell sorrow's tooth doth never rankle more,
 Than when it bites, but lanceth not the sore.

Rich II. i. 3.

TO BE REPRESSED BY SOARING MINDS.

Down, thou climbing sorrow !
 Thy element's below.

K. Lear, ii. 4.

INCREASED BY ITS OWN EMOTIONS.

Sorrow, like a heavy-hanging bell,
 Once set on ringing, with his own weight goes ;
 Then little strength rings out the doleful knell.

R. of Lucrece, st. 214.

* Foolish.

CONJURES UP FANCIFUL IMAGES; WHICH, LIKE THE OBJECTS THAT MAKE UP A PERSPECTIVE, APPEAR MANY AND CONFUSED WHEN VIEWED FROM ONE POSITION, BUT, FROM ANOTHER, ARE SEEN SINGLY, AND AS THEY REALLY ARE.

Each substance of a grief hath twenty shadows,
Which show like grief itself, but are not so;
For sorrow's eye, glazèd with blinding tears,
Divides one thing entire to many objects;
Like perspectives; which, rightly gazed upon,
Show nothing but confusion; eyed awry,
Distinguish form.

Tempest, i. 2.

CAN BE LIGHTENED, ONLY BY ITS OWN FELLOWSHIP.

Mirth doth search the bottom of annoy;
Sad souls are slain in merry company;
Grief best is pleased with grief's society:
True sorrow then is feelingly sufficed,
When with like semblance it is sympathized.

R. of Lucrece, st. 159.

ONE CASTS OUT ANOTHER.

One pain is lessened by another's anguish,
One desperate grief cures with another's languish;
Take thou some new infection to thy eye,
And the rank poison of the old will die.

Rom. & Jul. i. 2.

When we our betters see bearing our woes,
We scarcely think our miseries our foes.

Who alone suffers, suffers most in the mind,
 Leaving free things and happy shows behind :
 But then the mind much sufferance doth o'erskip,
 When grief hath mates, and bearing fellowship.

K. Lear, iii. 6.

Cleanse the stuffed bosom of that perilous stuff
Which weighs upon the heart?

HERO

A CONQUERING ONE IN FIGHT DESCRIBED.

He stopped the fliers ;
 And, by his rare example, made the coward
 Turn terror into sport : as waves before
 A vessel under sail, so men obeyed,
 And fell below his stem : his sword, death's stamp,
 Where it did mark, it took ; from face to foot
 He was a thing of blood, whose every motion
 Was timed with dying cries : alone he entered
 The mortal gate o' the city, which he painted
 With shunless destiny, aidless came off,

 When by-and-by the din of war 'gan pierce
 His ready sense ; then straight his doubled spirit
 Requickened what in flesh was fatigate,*
 And to the battle came he ; where he did
 Run reeking o'er the lives of men, as if
 'T were a perpetual spoil : and, till we called Both field and city ours, he never stood
 To ease his breast with panting.—Our spoils he kicked at ;
 And looked upon things precious, as they were
 The common muck o' the world : he covets less
 Than misery† itself would give ; rewards
 His deeds with doing them ; and is content
 To spend the time, to end it.

POPULAR CURIOSITY TO SEE ONE.

All tongues speak of him, and the bleared sights
 Are spectacl'd to see him. Your prattling nurse
 Into a rapture lets her baby cry,
 While she chats‡ him ; the kitchen-malkin§ pins
 Her richest lockram|| 'bout her keechy neck,
 Clambering the walls to eye him : stalls, bulks, windows,
 Are smothered up, leads filled, and ridges horsed
 With variable complexions ; all agreeing
 In earnestness to see him : seld-shown flamens††
 Do press among the popular throngs, and puff
 To win a vulgar station : our veiled dames
 Commit the war of white and damask, in
 Their nicely-gauded cheeks, to the wanton spoil
 Of Phœbus' burning kisses : such a pother,
 As if that whatsoever god, who leads him,
 Were silyly crept into his human powers,
 And gave him graceful posture.

KINGS

A COMPARISON BETWEEN THEIR ESTATE, AND THAT OF PRIVATE MEN ; SHOWING THAT WHEREAS THE FORMER GAIN ONLY THE VANITY OF POMP AND CEREMONY, THE LATTER ENJOY EXEMP-

What infinite heart's ease must kings neglect,
 That private men enjoy !
 And what have kings, that privates have not too,
 Save ceremony, general ceremony ?
 And what art thou, thou idol ceremony ?
 What kind of god art thou that sufferest more
 Of mortal griefs than do thy worshippers ?
 What are thy rents, what are thy comings-in ?
 O ceremony, show me but thy worth !
 What is the soul of adoration ?
 Art thou aught else but place, degree, and form,
 Creating awe and fear in other men ?
 Wherein thou art less happy, being feared,
 Than they in fearing.
 What drink'st thou oft, instead of homage sweet,
 But poisoned flattery ? Oh, be sick, great greatness,
 And bid thy ceremony give thee cure !
 Think'st thou, the fiery fever will go out
 With titles blown from adulation ?
 Will it give place to flexure and low bending ?

Canst thou, when thou command'st the beggar's knee,
 Command the health of it? No, thou proud dream,
 That play'st so subtly with a king's repose ;
 I am a king, that find thee ; and I know
 'T is not the balm, the sceptre, and the ball,
 The sword, the mace, the crown imperial,
 The intertissued robe of gold and pearl,
 The farcéd title running 'fore the king,
 The throne he sits on, nor the tide of pomp
 That beats upon the high shore of this world—
 No, not all these, thrice-gorgeous ceremony,
 Not all these, laid in bed majestical,
 Can sleep so soundly as the wretched slave ;
 Who, with a body filled, and vacant mind,
 Gets him to rest, crammed with distressful* bread ;
 Never sees horrid night, the child of hell ;
 But, like a lackey, from the rise to set,
 Sweats in the eye of Phœbus, and all night

 Doth rise, and help Hyperion† to his horse ;
 And follows so the ever-running year,
 With profitable labour, to his grave :
 And, but for ceremony, such a wretch,
 Winding up days with toil, and nights with sleep,

LABOURER

A MODEL ONE.

Sir, I am a true labourer: I earn that I eat, get that I wear; owe no man hate, envy no man's happiness; glad of other men's good, content with my harm: and the greatest of my pride is, to see my ewes graze, and my lambs suck.

As You Like It, iii. 2.

LADIES'-MEN

GAY-DECEIVERS.

These fellows of infinite tongue, that can rhyme themselves into ladies' favours, they do always reason themselves out again.

Hen. V. v. 2.

LAW

ITS ADMINISTRATION SHOULD BE TEMPERED WITH MERCY.

Pity is the virtue of the law,
And none but tyrants use it cruelly. Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

OFTEN MISREPRESENTED BY ADVOCATES.

In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt,
But, being seasoned with a gracious voice,
Obscures the show of evil? M. of Ven. iii. 2.

LAWS

OBSOLETE AND UNENFORCED BRING ALL LAW INTO CONTEMPT.

We have strict statutes and most biting laws,
(The needful bits and curbs for headstrong steeds,)
Which for these fourteen years we have let sleep;
Even like an o'ergrown lion in a cave,
That goes not out to prey. Now, as fond fathers
Having bound up the threatening twigs of birch,
Only to stick it in their children's sight,
For terror, not to use; in time the rod
Becomes more mocked than feared; so our decrees,
Dead to infliction, to themselves are dead;
And liberty plucks justice by the nose;
The baby beats the nurse, and quite athwart
Goes all decorum. Mea. for Mea. i. 3.

We must not make a scarecrow of the law,
Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
And let it keep one shape, till custom makes it
Their perch, and not their terror. Mea. for Mea. ii. 1.

LAWSUIT

ASIER ENTERED INTO, THAN EMERGED FROM.

It pleases time and fortune to lie heavy

Upon a friend of mine, who, in hot blood,
Hath plunged into the law, which is past depth
To those that, without heed, do plunge into it.

Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

KEEPS A POOR MAN WAITING LONG.

Here's a fish hangs in the net, like a poor man's right in the law; 't will hardly come out.

Pericles, ii. 1.

LAWYER

REFLECTIONS ON THE SKULL OF A DEAD ONE.

Where be his quiddits now, his quilletts, his cases, his tenures, and his tricks? why does he suffer this rude knave now to knock him about the sconce with a dirty shovel, and will not tell him of his action of battery? Humph! This fellow might be in 's time a great buyer of land, with his statutes, his recognizances, his fines, his double vouchers, his recoveries: is this the fine* of his fines, and the recovery of his recoveries, to have his fine pate full of fine dirt? Will his vouchers vouch him no more of his purchases, and double ones too, than the length and breath of a pair of indentures? The very conveyances of his lands will hardly lie in this box; and must the inheritor himself have no more?

Ham. v. 1.

LENITY

WILL PREVAIL OVER CRUELTY, WHEN KINGDOMS ARE CON-TENDED FOR.

When lenity and cruelty play for a kingdom, the gentler gamester is the soonest winner.

Hen. V. iii. 6.

LIBERALITY

IF CARRIED OUT ACCORDING TO HEAVEN'S ORDINANCE, THERE WOULD BE NEITHER SURFEIT, NOR WANT, IN THE WORLD.

Heavens, deal so still!
Let the superfluous and lust-dieted man,
That 'slaves* your ordinance, that will not see
Because he does not feel, feel your power quickly :
So distribution should undo excess,
And each man have enough. K. Lear, iv. 1.

THINKS OTHERS LIBERAL, AND OFTEN BECOMES BEGGARED IN CONSEQUENCE.

That thought is bounty's foe ;
Being free† itself, it thinks all others so. Tim. of Ath. ii. 2.

LIBERTINE

CHOOSES LOW COMPANIONS, AND ESCHEWS STUDY AND PRIVACY.

His addiction was to courses vain ;
His companies unlettered, rude, and shallow ;
His hours filled up with riots, banquets, sports ;
And never noted in him any study,
Any retirement, any sequestration
From open haunts and popularity. Hen. V. i. 1.

LIBERTY

ABSOLUTE, NOT NATURE'S LAW, AND THEREFORE DANGEROUS.

Headstrong liberty is lashed with woe.
There's nothing, situate in Heaven's eye,
But hath his bound, in earth, in sea, and sky.
Com. of Err. ii. 1.

LIFE

ITS SHORTNESS.

How brief the life of man
 Runs his erring pilgrimage ;
 That the stretching of a span
 Buckles in his sum of age. As You Like It, iii. 2.

We are such stuff
 As dreams are made of, and our little life
 Is rounded* with a sleep. Tempest, iv. 1.

ITS STEADY PROGRESS TO DECAY.

'T is but an hour ago since it was nine ;
 And after one hour more, 't will be eleven :
 And so, from hour to hour, we ripe and ripe ;
 And then, from hour to hour, we rot and rot ;
 And thereby hangs a tale. As You Like It, ii. 5.

A FLEETING VANITY.

Life's but a walking shadow ; a poor player,
 That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
 And then is heard no more : it is a tale
 Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
 Signifying nothing. Macb. v. 5.

ITS UNCERTAINTY TO ALL.

What surety of the world, what hope, what stay,
 When this was now a king, and now is clay. K. John, v. 7.

IRRECOVERABLE WHEN LOST.

Put out the light, and then put out the light.†
 If I quench thee, thou flaming minister,
 I can again thy former light restore,

* Encompassed.

† The light of life.

Should I repent me : but once put out thine,
 Thou cunning'st pattern of excelling Nature,
 I know not where is that Promethean heat,
 That can thy light relume.

Othello, v. 2.

ITS SWEETNESS.

Oh, our lives' sweetness !
 That with the pain of death we'd hourly die,
 Rather than die at once !

K. Lear, v. 3.

RURAL, SUGGESTS THE STUDY AND ADMIRATION OF NATURE.

And this our life, exempt from public haunt,
 Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
 Sermons in stones, and good in everything.

As You Like It, ii. 1.

RURAL, NOBLER THAN IN KINGS' PALACES.

Oh, this life
 Is nobler, than attending for a check ;*
 Richer, than doing nothing for a babe ;
 Prouder, than rustling in unpaid-for silk ;
 Such gain the cap of him, that makes him fine,
 Yet keeps his book uncrossed : no life to ours.†

Cymb. iii. 3.

SOME OF ITS GRIEVANCES AND MORTIFICATIONS.

The whips and scorns of time,
 The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
 The pangs of despised love, the law's delay,
 The insolence of office, and the spurns
 That patient merit of the unworthy takes.

Ham. iii. 1.

A MISANTHROPIC AND MATTER-OF-FACT VIEW OF IT.

Reason thus with life :
 If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing

* Repulse.

† Compared with ours.

That none but fools would keep ; a breath thou art,
 (Servile to all the skiey influences,)

That dost this habitation, where thou keep'st,
 Hourly afflict : merely, thou art death's fool ;

For him thou labour'st by thy flight to shun,
 And yet runn'st toward him still : thou art not noble ;

For all the accommodations that thou bear'st,
 Are nursed by baseness : thou art by no means valiant ;

For thou dost fear the soft and tender fork
 Of a poor worm : thy best of rest is sleep,
 And that thou oft provok'st ; yet grossly fear'st
 Thy death, which is no more : thou art not thyself ;

For thou exist'st on many a thousand grains
 That issue out of dust : happy thou art not ;

For what thou hast not, still thou striv'st to get :
 And what thou hast, forgett'st : thou art not certain ;

For thy complexion shifts to strange effects,*
 After the moon : if thou art rich, thou art poor ;

For, like an ass, whose back with ingots bows,
 Thou bear'st thy heavy riches but a journey,
 And death unloads thee : friend hast thou none ;

For thine own bowels, which do call thee sire,
 The mere effusion of thy proper† loins,
 Do curse the gout, serpigo, and the rheum,
 For ending thee no sooner : thou hast nor youth nor age ;

But, as it were, an after dinner's sleep,
 Dreaming on both ; for all thy bless'd youth
 Becomes as agëd, and doth beg the alms
 Of palsied eld ;‡ and when thou art old, and rich,
 Thou hast neither heat, affection, limb, nor beauty,
 To make thy riches pleasant. What's yet in this,
 That bears the name of life ? Yet in this life
 Lie hid more thousand deaths : yet death we fear,
 That makes these odds all even. Mea. for Mea. iii. 1.

LIGHTNING

ITS VELOCITY.

The lightning ;—which doth cease to be
Ere one can say, It lightens. Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

Sulphurous and thought-executing fires,
Vaunt-couriers* to oak-cleaving thunderbolts,
K. Lear, iii. 2.

ITS BRIEF STAY.

Brief as the lightning in the collied† night,
That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,
And ere a man hath power to say, Behold !
The jaws of darkness do devour it up :
So quick bright things come to confusion.
M. N. Dream, i. 1.

A PURSUIT, USUALLY ILL-REWARDED.

The thrice three Muses, mourning for the death
Of learning, late deceased in beggary. M. N. Dream, v. 1.

LOQUACITY

OUT OF PLACE, AMONG STRANGERS.

Thou art too wild, too rude, and bold of voice ;
Parts that become thee happily enough,
And in such eyes as ours appear not faults ;
But where thou art not known, why, there they show
Something too liberal.‡ M. of Ven. ii. 2.

LOSS

OF ANY THING, NOT FELT, IF NOT WANTED.

He that is robbed, not wanting what is stolen,
Let him not know 't, and he 's not robbed at all.
Othello, iii. 3.

* Forerunners.

† Sooty, black.

‡ Licentious.

VIEWED IRONICALLY.

To be

In love, where scorn is bought with groans ; coy looks,
 With heart-sore sighs ; one fading moment's mirth,
 With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights ;
 If haply won, perhaps a hapless gain ;
 If lost, why then a grievous labour won ;
 However, but a folly bought with wit,
 Or else a wit by folly vanquish'd. Two Gent. of Ver. i. 1.

ITS ENHANCING POWER, QUALITIES AND EFFECTS.

Love, first learn'd in a lady's eyes,
 Lives not alone immur'd in the brain ;
 But, with the motion of all elements,
 Courses as swift as thought in every power ;
 And gives to every power a double power,
 Above their power and their offices.
 It adds a precious seeing to the eye ;
 A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind ;
 A lover's ear will hear the lowest sound,
 When the suspicious head of theft is stopped ;
 Love's feeling is more soft and sensible
 Than are the tender horns of cockled* snails ;
 Love's tongue proves dainty Bacchus gross in taste ;
 For valour, is not love a Hercules,
 Still climbing trees in the Hesperides ?
 Subtle as Sphinx ; as sweet and musical
 As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair ;
 And, when love speaks, the voice of all the gods
 Makes heaven drowsy with the harmony.
 Never durst poet touch a pen to write,
 Until his ink were tempered with love's sighs :
 Oh, then his lines would ravish savage ears,
 And plant in tyrants mild humility.

* Inshelled.

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive :
 They sparkle still the right Promethean fire ;
 They are the books, the arts, the academes,
 That show, contain, and nourish all the world ;
 Else, none at all in aught proves excellent.

L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

DIGNIFIES THE MEANEST THINGS.

Things base and vile, holding no quantity,
 Love can transpose to form and dignity.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

ADMITS NO OBJECTS BUT THE CHERISHED ONE.

O spirit of love, how quick and fresh art thou !
 That, notwithstanding thy capacity
 Receiveth as the sea, naught enters there,
 Of what validity* and pitch soever,
 But falls into abatement and low price,
 Even in a minute ! so full of shapes is fancy, †
 That it alone is high-fantastical.

‡ Saying.

THOUGH UNREQUITED, STILL IDOLATROUS.

I know I love in vain, strive against hope ;
 Yet, in this captious* and intenable sieve,
 I still pour in the waters of my love,
 And lack not to lose still : thus, Indian-like,
 Religious in mine error, I adore
 The sun, that looks upon his worshipper,
 But knows of him no more.

All's Well, i. 3.

ITS QUARRELS SOON OVER.

Fie, fie ! how wayward is this foolish love,
 That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse,
 And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod !

Two Gent. of Ver. i. 2.

IS AN IDOLATER.

This is the liver vein, † which makes flesh a deity ; a green goose, a goddess ; pure, pure idolatry.

L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

WHY REPRESENTED AS A CHILD, WITH WINGS, AND BLIND.

Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind ;
 And therefore is winged Cupid painted blind.
 Nor hath Love's mind of any judgment taste ;
 Wings, and no eyes, figure unheedy haste :
 And therefore is Love said to be a child,
 Because in choice he is so oft beguiled.
 As waggish boys in game themselves forswear,
 So the boy Love is perjured everywhere.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

ANOTHER REASON WHY HE HAS WINGS.

Love's heralds should be thoughts,
 Which ten times faster glide than the sun's beams,

* Deceiving. † The liver was regarded as the seat of love.

Driving back shadows over lowering hills :
Therefore do nimble-pinioned doves draw Love,
And therefore hath the wind-swift Cupid wings.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 5.

NOT REAL, WHEN IT ADMITS THOUGHTS, APART FROM THE OBJECT.

Love is not love,
When it is mingled with respects that stand
Aloof from the entire point.

K. Lear, i. 1.

FOR THE TIME BEING, OVERWHELMS ALL OTHER CONSIDERATIONS.

O most potential love ! vow, bond, nor space,
In thee hath neither sting, knot, nor confine ;
For thou art all, and all things else are thine.
When thou impresses, what are precepts worth
Of stale example ? When thou wilt inflame,
How coldly these impediments stand forth
Of wealth, of filial fear, law, kindred, fame ! [shame ;
Love's arms are peace, 'gainst rule, 'gainst sense, 'gainst
And sweetens, in the suffering pang it bears,
The aloes of all forces, shocks, and fears.

† Destroys.

ITS FLUCTUATIONS OF HOPE AND DESPAIR.

O hard-believing love, how strange it seems
 Not to believe, and yet too credulous !
 Thy weal and woe are both of them extremes ;
 Despair and hope make thee ridiculous :
 The one doth flatter thee in thoughts unlikely ;
 In likely thoughts the other kills thee quickly.

Ven. & Adon. st. 165.

WHEREIN IT DIFFERS FROM LUST.

Love comforteth, like sunshine after rain ;
 But lust's effect is tempest after sun :
 Love's gentle spring doth always fresh remain ;
 Lust's winter comes ere summer half be done :
 Love surfeits not ; lust like a glutton dies :
 Love is all truth ; lust full of forgèd lies.

Ven. & Adon. st. 134.

A CARNAL VIEW OF IT.

It is merely a lust of the blood, and a permission of the will.

Othello, i. 3.

ITS CONTRADICTIONS AND PARADOXES.

O brawling love ! O loving hate !
 O anything, of nothing first create !
 O heavy lightness ! serious vanity !
 Misshapen chaos of well-seeming forms !
 Feather of lead, bright smoke, cold fire, sick health !
 Still waking sleep, that is not what it is :—
 This love feel I, that feel no love in this.

Rom. & Jul. i. 1.

WHEN TRUE ; UNALTERABLE, AND INDEPENDENT OF TIME.

Love is not love,
 Which alters when it alteration finds ;
 Or bends, with the remover to remove :
 Oh no ! it is an ever fixèd mark,

That looks on tempests, and is never shaken ;
 It is the star to every wandering bark,
 Whose worth's unknown, although its height be taken.
 Love's not time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks
 Within his bending sickle's compass come ;
 Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
 But bears it out even to the edge of doom. Sonnet 116.

WHEN GREAT, FULL OF FEARS.

Where love is great, the littlest doubts are fear ;
 Where little fears grow great, great love grows there.
Ham. iii. 2.

IMPATIENT OF CHECK : SIMILE.

The more thou damm'st it up, the more it burns.
 The current that with gentle murmur glides,
 Thou know'st, being stopped, impatiently doth rage ;
 But when his fair course is not hinder'd,
 He makes sweet music with the enamelled stones,
 Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge
 He overtaketh in his pilgrimage ;
 And so by many winding nooks he strays,
 With willing sport to the wild ocean.
Two Gent. of Ver. ii. 7.

ONLY INCREASED BY OBSTACLES.

All impediments of fancy's* course
 Are motives of more fancy. All's Well, v. 3.

LOST, AND REVIVED ; STRONGER THAN EVER.

Ruined love, when it is built anew,
 Grows fairer than at first, more strong, far greater.
Sonnet 119.

* Love.

ITS PERSEVERANCE AGAINST DIFFICULTIES.

Foul words and frowns must not repel a lover ;
 What though the rose have prickles? yet 't is plucked.
 Were beauty under twenty locks kept fast,
 Yet love breaks through, and picks them all at last.

Ven. & Adon. st. 96.

SURMOUNTS ALL BARRIERS.

Stony limits cannot hold love out :
 And what love can do, that dares love attempt.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

HOPES AGAINST HOPE.

Alas, that love, whose view is muffled still,
 Should, without eyes, see pathways to his will!

Rom. & Jul. i. 1.

ITS CROSSES AND DIFFICULTIES.

Ah me! for aught that ever I could read,
 Could ever hear by tale or history,
 The course of true love never did run smooth :
 But, either it was different in blood ;
 Or else, misgraffed* in respect of years ;
 Or else it stood upon the choice of friends ;
 Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
 War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it ;
 Making it momentary as a sound,
 Swift as a shadow, short as any dream ;
 Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
 That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,
 And ere a man hath power to say, Behold !
 The jaws of darkness do devour it up :
 So quick bright things come to confusion.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

ITS HARDSHIPS.

Alas, that love, so gentle in his view,
 Should be so tyrannous and rough in proof! R. & Jul. i. 1.

* Unequally matched.

VERSUS CONSCIENCE.

Love is too young to know what conscience is ;
 Yet who knows not conscience is born of love ?

Sonnet 151.

VERSUS PELF.

Love like a shadow flies, when substance love pursues ;
 Pursuing that that flies, and flying what pursues.

Merry Wives, ii. 2.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

Prosperity's the very bond of love,
 Whose fresh complexion, and whose heart together,
 Affliction alters.

Wint. Tale, iv. 3.

'T is a question left us yet to prove,
 Whether love lead fortune, or else fortune love.

Ham. iii. 2.

STRONGER IN WOMEN THAN IN MEN.

We men may say more, swear more : but, indeed,
 Our shows are more than will ; for still we prove
 Much in our vows, but little in our love. Tw. Night, ii. 4.

NOT TO BE ENTRUSTED TO A DEPUTY.

Friendship is constant in all other things,
 Save in the office and affairs of love :
 Therefore, all hearts in love use their own tongues ;
 Let every eye negotiate for itself,
 And trust no agent ; for beauty is a witch,
 Against whose charms faith melteth into blood.*

Much Ado, ii. 1.

NOT THE LESS TRUE, WHEN UNDEMONSTRATIVE.

My love is strengthened, though more weak in seeming ;
 I love not less, though less the show appear ;
 That love is merchandised, whose rich esteeming
 The owner's tongue doth publish everywhere. Sonnet 102.

WHEN CONCEALED, THOUGHTFUL, ENDURING—LOVE INDEED.

She never told her love ;
 But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,

 And, with a green and yellow melancholy,
 She sat like patience on a monument,

 And all the fair effects of future hopes.

Two Gent. of Ver. i. 1.

ABATES BY TIME, AND ITS OWN ARDOUR.

Love is begun by time ;
 And that I see, by passages of proof,*
 Time qualifies the spark and fire of it.
 There lies within the very flame of love
 A kind of wick, or snuff, that will abate it.

Ham. iv. 7.

MORE PRODIGAL IN PROMISE THAN PERFORMANCE.

They say, all lovers swear more performance than they are able, and yet reserve an ability that they never perform; vowing more than the perfection of ten, and discharging less than the tenth part of one. They have the voice of lions, and the act of hares: are they not monsters?

NATURE OF, THEIR APPREHENSIONS.

Lovers and madmen have such seething brains,
Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend
More than cool reason ever comprehends.

* Suffer.

The lunatic, the lover, and the poet,
 Are of imagination all compact :
 One sees more devils than vast hell can hold ;
 That is, the madman : the lover, all as frantic,
 Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt.

Thou hast stolen the impression of her fantasy,
With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gauds, † conceits,
Knacks, trifles, nose-gays, sweetmeats ; messengers
Of strong prevailment in unhardened youth.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

LOWLINESS

THOUGH OFTEN ADOPTED AS THE STEPPING-STONE TO GREATNESS, IS FREQUENTLY DISCARDED WHEN GREATNESS HAS BEEN ACHIEVED.

'T is a common proof, ‡
That lowliness is young ambition's ladder,

* Whose diet is prescribed, on account of illness.

† Baubles.

‡ Fact proved by experience.

Whereto the climber upward turns his face ;
 But when he once attains the topmost round,
 He then unto the ladder turns his back,
 Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees
 By which he did ascend.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

LOYALTY

PRICELESS, WHEN COMBINED WITH COURAGE.

A jewel in a ten times barred-up chest,
 Is a bold spirit in a loyal breast.

Rich. II. i. 1.

LUNACY

ATTRIBUTED TO THE INFLUENCE OF THE MOON.

It is the very error of the moon :
 She comes more near the earth than she was wont,
 And makes men mad.

Othello, v. 2.

LUST

STILL PURSUED, IN SPITE OF ITS CRIME, ITS UNSATISFACTORI-
 NESS, AND BITTER EXPERIENCES.

The expense of spirit in a waste of shame
 Is lust in action ; and till action, lust
 Is perjured, murderous, bloody, full of blame,
 Savage, extreme, rude, cruel, not to trust ;
 Enjoyed no sooner, but despis'd straight ;
 Past reason hunted ; and, no sooner had,
 Past reason hated, as a swallowed bait,
 On purpose laid to make the taker mad :
 Mad in pursuit, and in possession so :
 Had, having, and in quest to have, extreme :
 A bliss in proof ; and proved, a very woe :
 Before, a joy proposed ; behind, a dream.
 All this the world well knows ; yet none knows well
 To shun the heaven that leads men to this hell.

Sonnet 129.

ITS FLATTERIES STILL DECEIVE, THOUGH PROVED FALSE BY OTHERS' EXAMPLE.

Promises, enticements, oaths, tokens, and all these engines of lust, are not the things they go under; many a maid hath been seduced by them; and the misery is, example, that so terrible shows in the wreck of maidenhood, cannot for all that dissuade succession,* but that they are limed with the twigs that threaten them.

All's Well, iii. 5.

ITS RECKLESSNESS, AND ABANDONMENT.

Careless lust stirs up a desperate courage,
Planting oblivion, beating reason back,
Forgetting shame's pure blush, and honour's wrack.

Ven. & Adon. st. 93.

RESIDES IN THE BLOOD, IS FED IN THE HEART, AND INFLAMED
BY THE THOUGHTS.

Lust is but a bloody fire
Kindled with unchaste desire,
Fed in heart; whose flames aspire,
As thoughts do blow them, higher and higher. Mer. W. v. 5.

ACTS, BY THE THOUGHTS, EVEN WITHOUT THE PRESENCE OF
THE OBJECT.

O strange men!

That can such sweet use make of what they hate,
When saucy† trusting of the cozened thoughts
Defiles the pitchy night! So lust doth play
With what it loathes, for that which is away. All's W. iv. 4.

EVER REPENTANT, BUT EVER NEW.

Oh rash, false heat, wrapped in repentant cold,
Thy hasty spring still blasts, and ne'er grows old!

R. of Lucrece, st. 7.

* Posterity.

† Lascivious.

NEVER SATISFIED.

That satiate yet unsatisfied desire,
That tub both filled and running. Cymb. i. 7.

ITS UNIVERSALITY.

All sects, all ages, smack of this vice. Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

MANY HAVE IT, WHO ARE NOT AWARE OF ITS EXTENT.

Many a thousand of us
Have the disease, and feel 't not. Wint. Tale, i. 2.

MADMAN

REFLECTION ON ONE.

O ruined piece of nature! This great world
Shall so wear out to nought. K. Lear, iv. 6.

MADMEN

THEIR QUICKNESS OF APPREHENSION.

Madmen have such seething brains,
Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend
More than cool reason ever comprehends.
M. N. Dream, v. 1.

How pregnant sometimes his replies are! a happiness that often madness hits on, which reason and sanity could not so prosperously be delivered of.

Ham. ii. 2.

MADNESS

A RELIEF FROM SORROW, BY DISTRACTING THE THOUGHTS.

Better I were distract:
So should my thoughts be severed from my griefs;
And woes, by wrong imaginations, lose
The knowledge of themselves. K. Lear, iv. 6.

WHIMSICAL EXAMPLES OF IT.

He's mad, that trusts in the tameness of a wolf, the health of a horse, the lovingness of a boy, or the oath of a whore. K. Lear, iv. 6.

MAN

A PANEGYRIC ON HIS EXCELLENCE, AND PRE-EMINENT QUALITIES.

What a piece of work is man! how noble in reason! how infinite in faculties! in form and moving, how express and admirable! in action, how like an angel! in apprehension, how like a god! the beauty of the world! the paragon of animals! Ham. ii. 2.

DESCRIPTION OF A "MODEL ONE," IN OUTWARD GRACE.

See, what a grace was seated on this brow:
Hyperion's curls; the front of Jove himself;
An eye like Mars, to threaten and command;
A station* like the herald Mercury,
New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill;
A combination and a form, indeed,
Where every god did seem to set his seal,
To give the world assurance of a man. Ham. iii. 4,

A MODEL ONE, IN GENERAL EXCELLENCE.

The courtier's, scholar's, soldier's, eye, tongue, sword;
The expectancy and rose of the fair state,
The glass of fashion, and the mould of form,
The observed of all observers. Ham. iii. 1.

A MODEL ONE, IN MORAL ASPECT.

Spare in diet;
Free from gross passion, or of mirth, or anger;
Constant in spirit, not swerving with the blood;
Garnished and decked in modest complement;†

* Standing attitude, and deportment. † Sufficiency of accomplishment.

Not working with the eye without the ear,
And but in purgèd judgment trusting neither.

Hen. V. ii. 2.

His life was gentle ; and the elements
So mixed in him, that Nature might stand up,
And say to all the world, This was a man. Jul. Cæs. v. 5.

A DESCRIPTION OF ONE WHO SITS EASY TO THE WORLD, AND WHOSE PASSIONS ARE KEPT SUBSERVIENT TO HIS JUDGMENT.

As one, in suffering all, that suffers nothing ;
A man that fortune's buffets and rewards
Hast ta'en with equal thanks : and blessed are those,
Whose blood and judgment are so well commingled,
That they are not a pipe for fortune's finger
To sound what stop she please. Give me that man
That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him
In my heart's core—ay, in my heart of hearts.

Ham. iii. 2.

HIS STATE ON EARTH, ONE OF DISAPPOINTMENT, DECLINE, AND FALL.

This is the state of man : today he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope ; tomorrow blossoms,
And bears his blushing honours thick upon him ;
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost,
And—when he thinks, good easy man ! full surely
His greatness is a-ripening—nips his shoot,
And then he falls. Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

HIS DEPENDENCE ON OTHERS FOR THE REALIZATION OF HIS OWN GIFTS.

Man, however dearly parted,*
How much in having, or without, or in,
Cannot make boast to have that which he hath,

* Gifted.

Nor feels not what he owes,* but by reflection ;
 As when his virtues shining upon others
 Heat them, and they retort that heat again
 To the first giver. Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

No man is the lord of anything,
 Though in and of him there be much consisting,
 Till he communicate his parts to others :
 Nor doth he of himself know them for aught
 Till he behold them formed in the applause
 Where they 're extended : which like an arch, reverberates
 The voice again ; or, like a gate of steel
 Fronting the sun, receives and renders back
 His figure and his heat. Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

HIS NATURAL FRAILTY.

We are all men,
 In our own natures frail, incapable ;
 Of our flesh, few are angels. Hen. VIII. v. 2.

HIS NEGLIGENCE, FOLLY, AND, FEAR.

Negligent, foolish, and fearful :
 In every one of these no man is free,
 But that his negligence, his folly, fear,
 Amongst the infinite doings of the world,
 Sometime puts forth. Wint. Tale, i. 2.

HIS BLINDNESS TO HIS OWN FAULTS.

Men's faults do seldom to themselves appear ;
 Their own transgressions partially they smother :
 This guilt would seem death-worthy in thy brother.
R. of Lucrece, st. 91.

HIS POWER OF WORKING EVIL, UNDER AN OUTWARD SEMBLANCE OF GOOD.

Oh, what may man within him hide,

* Owns.

Though angel on the outward side !
 How may likeness, made in crimes,*
 Making practice on the times,
 Draw with idle spiders' strings
 Most ponderous and substantial things ! M. for M. iii. 2.

HIS PRONENESS TO SELF-DECEPTION, WHEN HESITATING
 BETWEEN CONSCIENCE AND INCLINATION.

Thus, graceless, holds he disputation,
 'Tween frozen conscience and hot-burning will ;
 And with good thoughts makes dispensation,
 Urging the worser sense for vantage still ;
 Which in a moment doth confound and kill
 All pure effects, and doth so far proceed,
 That what is vile shows like a virtuous deed.

R. of Lucrece, st. 36.

HIS CHIEF AIM THROUGH LIFE IS, TO LAY UP FOR AGE ; AN AIM
 WHEREIN HE IS OFTEN THWARTED, AND WHEREBY HE FAILS TO ENJOY THE PRESENT.

The aim of all, is but to nurse the life
 With honour, wealth, and ease, in waning age ;
 And in this aim there is such thwarting strife,
 That one for all, or all for one, we gage :
 As life for honour, in fell battles' rage ;
 Honour for wealth ; and oft that wealth doth cost
 The death of all, and all together lost.
 So that, in venturing ill, we leave to be
 The things we are, for that which we expect ;
 And this ambitious foul infirmity,
 In having much, torments us with defect
 Of that we have : so then we do neglect
 The thing we have ; and, all for want of wit,
 Make something nothing, by augmenting it.

R. of Lucrece, st. 21, 22.

* Plausible appearance, trained in vice.

NOT HONOURED BY THE WORLD FOR HIMSELF, BUT FOR HIS OUTWARD BELONGINGS.

Not a man, for being simply man,
Hath any honour ; but honour for those honours
That are without him, as place, riches, favour.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

MEN

MORE DEMONSTRATIVE IN THEIR LOVE THAN WOMEN, BUT NOT SO CONSTANT.

We men may say more, swear more : but indeed
Our shows are more than will ; for still we prove
Much in our vows, but little in our love.

Tw. Night, ii. 4.

However we do praise ourselves,
Our fancies* are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn,
Than women's are.

Tw. Night, ii. 4.

A POPULAR THEORY CONCERNING THE BEST.

They say, best men are moulded out of faults ;
And, for the most, become much more the better
For being a little bad.

Mea. for Mea. v.

THEIR BLIND AND IGNORANT DARING.

Oh, what men dare do ! what men may do !
What men daily do, not knowing what they do !

Much Ado, iv. 1.

MANNERS

OF THE ITALIANS, APED BY THE ENGLISH.

Fashions in proud Italy ;—
Whose manners still our tardy apish nation
Limps after in base imitation.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

* Affections.

TOWN ONES NOT SUITED TO COUNTRY ONES, AND CONVERSELY.

Those, that are good manners at the court, are as ridiculous in the country, as the behaviour of the country is most mockable at the court.

As You Like It, iii. 2.

MARRIAGE

ITS TERM.

A world-without-end bargain.

L. L. Lost, v. 2.

A HAPPIER STATE THAN SINGLE LIFE, IN AN EARTHLY POINT OF VIEW.

Earthlier happy is the rose distilled,
Than that, which, withering on the virgin thorn,
Grows, lives, and dies, in single-blessedness.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

MORE HONOURABLE THAN CELIBACY.

As a walled town is more worthier than a village, so is the forehead of a married man more honourable than the bare brow of a bachelor.

As You Like It, iii. 2.

SHOULD HAVE A FATHER'S SANCTION AND PRESENCE.

Methinks, a father
Is, at the nuptial of his son, a guest
That best becomes the table.

Wint. Tale, iv. 3.

TO BE HAPPY, MUST BE VOLUNTARY; NOT NEGOTIATED, OR FORCED.

Marriage is matter of more worth,
Than to be dealt in by attorneyship.*
For what is wedlock forc'd, but a hell,
An age of discord, and continual strife?

* The intervention of others.

Whereas the contrary doth bring forth bliss,
And is a pattern of perpetual peace. 1 Hen. VI. v. 5.

TO BE UNDERTAKEN "ADVISEDLY" AND NOT "WANTONLY."

When as thine eye hath chose the dame,
And stalled the deer that thou wouldst strike,
Let reason rule things worthy blame,
As well as fancy,* partial tike :
Take counsel of some wiser head,
Neither too young, nor yet unwed. Pass. Pilgr. st. 16.

"YOUNG MEN, NOT YET."

A young man married, is a man that 's marred.
All's Well, ii. 3.

THE HUSBAND SHOULD BE THE ELDER.

Let still the woman take
An elder than herself; so wears she to him,
So sways she level in her husband's heart.
For, boy, however we do praise ourselves,
Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn
Than women's are. Tw. Night, ii. 4.

INSTANCE OF A HAPPY ONE.

He is the half-part of a bless'd man,
Left to be finish'd by such a she ;
And she a fair divided excellence,
Whose fullness of perfection lies in him.
O, two such silver currents, when they join,
Do glorify the banks that bound them in ! K. John, ii. 2.

BEAUTY A COMMON INCENTIVE TO IT.

That hook of wiving,
Fairness. Cymb. v. 5.

* Love.

THE ANCIENT, AND MODERN, SYSTEMS.

The hearts, of old, gave hands ;
But our new heraldry, is—hands, not hearts. Oth. iii. 4.

BEFORE, AND AFTER; ILLUSTRATED.

Wooring, wedding, and repenting, is as a Scotch jig, a measure, and a cinque-pace:* the first suit is hot and hasty, like a Scotch jig, and full as fantastical; the wedding, mannerly-modest, as a measure,† full of state and ancience; and then comes repentance, and with his bad legs, falls into the cinque-pace faster and faster, till he sinks into his grave. Much Ado, ii. 1.

Men are April when they woo, December when they wed: maids are May when they are maids, but the sky changes when they are wives. As You Like It, iv. 1.

MARRIAGES

SECOND ONES, HAVE MORE OF PRUDENTIAL MOTIVES THAN LOVE
IN THEM.

The instances,‡ that second marriage move,
Are base respects of thrift, but none of love. Ham. iii. 2.

SAID TO BE MADE IN HEAVEN.

In love, the heavens themselves do guide the state;
Money buys land, and wives are sold by fate.
Merry Wives, v. 5.

The ancient saying is no heresy;
Hanging and wiving goes by destiny. M. of Ven. ii. 8.

MARTLET

CHOOSES THE PUREST AIR FOR HIS ABODE.

This guest of summer,
The temple-haunting martlet, does approve,

* Grave dance. Fr. Cinque pas.

† Stately dance.

‡ Occasions.

By his loved mansionry, that the heaven's breath
 Smells sweet and wooingly here: no jutting, frieze,
 Buttress, nor coigne of vantage,* but this bird
 Hath made his pendent bed, and procreant cradle:
 Where they most breed and haunt, I have observed
 The air is delicate. Macb. i. 6.

(BUILDS ON THE OUTSIDE OF HOUSES) AND IN THIS RESPECT

 EXTERNALS.

The fool multitude, that choose by show,
 Not learning more than the fond† eye doth teach;
 Which prys not to the interior, but, like the martlet,
 Builds in the weather, on the outward wall,
 Even in the force and road of casualty.‡
M. of Ven. ii. 8.

MATRONS

WHEN THEY GIVE AN EXAMPLE OF FOLLY, YOUTH CAN HARDLY BE EXPECTED TO BE VIRTUOUS.

Rebellious hell,
 If thou canst mutine in a matron's bones,
 To flaming youth let virtue be as wax,
 And melt in her own fire: proclaim no shame,
 When the compulsive ardour gives the charge;
 Since frost itself as actively doth burn,
 And reason panders will. Ham. iii. 4.

MEANS

TO DO A THING, WILL USUALLY BE FOUND, WHERE THERE IS A DESIRE.

What's sweet to do, to do will aptly find.
A Lov. Comp. line 86.

* Advantageous corner.

† Foolish.

‡ Exposed to the power of casual passers-by.

MEDIOCRITY*

A BLEST ESTATE.

For aught I see, they are as sick that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing. It is no mean happiness, therefore, to be seated in the mean: † superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives onger.

M. of Ven. i. 2.

ITS SAFETY.

Full oft 't is seen,
Our mean secures us; and our mere defects
Prove our commodities.

K. Lear, iv. 1.

MELANCHOLY

ITS GLOOMY RETINUE.

Moody and dull melancholy,
Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair;
And, at her heels, a huge infectious troop
Of pale distemperatures, and foes to life.

Com. of Er. v.

AN INCENTIVE TO MADNESS.

Melancholy is the nurse of frenzy.

Tam. the Shrew, Induction, sc. 2.

BAD COMPANY.

The sad companion, dull-eyed melancholy.

Pericles, i. 2.

ITS SPRINGS UNFATHOMABLE.

O melancholy!
Who ever yet could sound thy bottom? find

Might easiest harbour in? Cymb. iv. 2.

IN SENSE OF RUMINATION ; DIFFERENT EXPRESSIONS OF IT.

I have neither the scholar's melancholy, which is emulation ; nor the musician's, which is fantastical ; nor the courtier's, which is proud ; nor the soldier's, which is ambitious ; nor the lawyer's, which is politic ; nor the lady's, which is nice ; † nor the lover's, which is all these.

As You Like It, iv. 1.

VERSUS MIRTH ; EXTREMES OF EITHER, BAD.

Those that are in extremity of either are abominable fellows, and betray themselves to every modern censure worse than drunkards.

As You Like It, iv. 1.

WHEREUNTO IT IS LIKE.

As melancholy as a gib cat, or a lugged bear, or an old lion, or a lover's lute, or the drone of a Lincolnshire bagpipe ; as a hare, ‡ or the melancholy of Moor ditch. §

1 Hen. IV. i. 2.

OUTWARD AND VISIBLE SIGNS OF IT.

Why, he will look upon his boot, and sing ; mend the ruff, || and sing ; ask questions, and sing ; pick his teeth, and sing. I know a man that had this trick of melancholy, sold a goodly manor for a song.

All's Well, iii. 2.

MEMBERS

OF THE BODY ; " IF ONE SUFFER, ALL THE OTHERS SUFFER WITH IT."

Let our finger ache, and it indues

* Unwieldy vessel.

† Finical.

‡ The Egyptians, in their hieroglyphics, expressed a melancholy man by a hare sitting in her form.

§ A ditch surrounding the late Bedlam Hospital, at Moorfields.

|| Trimming at the top of the boot.

Our other healthful members even to that sense
Of pain.

Othello, iii. 4.

MERCY

ITS HEAVENLY CHARACTER AND ATTRIBUTES.

The quality of mercy is not strained ;
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath : it is twice blessed ;
It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes :
'T is mightiest in the mightiest : it becomes
The thronöd monarch better than his crown ;
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings—
But mercy is above this sceptred sway ;
It is enthronöd in the heart of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself :
And earthly power doth them show likest God's
When mercy seasons justice.

M. of Ven. iv. 1.

ITS USE.

Whereto serves mercy,
But to confront the visage of offence ?

Ham. iii. 3.

OF HEAVEN, TO THE WEAK, ILLUSTRATED.

Merciful Heaven !

That rather, with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt,
Splitt'st the unwedgable and gnarlöd oak,
Than the soft myrtle.

Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

“BE YE MERCIFUL, EVEN AS YOUR FATHER WHICH IS IN HEAVEN IS MERCIFUL.”

Why, all the souls that were, were forfeit once ;
And He that might the vantage best have took,
Found out the remedy. How would you be,
If He, which is the top of judgment, should
But judge you as you are ? O, think on that ;

And mercy then will breathe within your lips,
Like man new made. Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

Shall we serve Heaven
With less respect than we do minister
To our gross selves? Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

We do pray for mercy ;
And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy. M. of Ven. iv. 1.

THE NOBLEST ATTRIBUTE OF POWER.

No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one-half so good a grace,
As mercy does. Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

MAY BE SPURIOUS, AND ILL-TIMED.

Mercy is not itself that oft looks so ;
Pardon is still the nurse of second woe. M. for M. ii. 2.

OUT OF PLACE IN CASES OF MURDER.

Mercy but murders, pardoning those that kill.
Rom. & Jul. iii. 1.

INDISCRIMINATE, ENCOURAGES SIN.

Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy. Tim. of A. iii. 5.

SOMETIMES USED BY VICE, WITH A VICIOUS OBJECT.

When vice makes mercy, mercy's so extended,
That, for the fault's love, is the offender friended.
Mea. for Mea. iv. 2.

MERMAID

DESCRIPTION OF A SINGING ONE.

I sat upon a promontory,
And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back,

Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,
 That the rude sea grew civil at her song ;
 And certain stars shot madly from their spheres,
 To hear the sea-maid's music. M. N. Dream, ii. 1.

MIDNIGHT

A SEASON OF CRIME AND OUTRAGE.

The dead of night,
 When heavy sleep hath closed up mortal eyes :
 No comfortable star did lend his light ;
 No noise but owls' and wolves' death-boding cries :
 Now serves the season that they may surprise
 The silly lambs ; pure thoughts are dead and still,
 While lust and murder wake, to stain and kill.
R. of Lucrece, st. 24.

'T is now the very witching time of night ;
 When churchyards yawn, and hell itself breathes out
 Contagion to this world. Ham. iii. 2.

MIND

EXPANDS WITH THE BODY.

Nature, crescent,* does not grow alone
 In thews† and bulk ; but, as this temple waxes,
 The inward service of the mind and soul
 Grows wide withal. Ham. i. 3.

DIGNIFIES THE BODY, AND GLORIFIES ALL OUTWARD MEANNESS.

'T is the mind that makes the body rich ;
 And as the sun breaks through the darkest clouds,
 So honour peereth in the meanest habit.
Tam. the Shrew, iv. 3.

* Increasing.

† Muscular strength.

AN UNCLEAN, BUT GIFTED ONE, A TRAITOR TO ITSELF; AND MAKES US CONFOUND OUR PRAISE WITH OUR PITY.

Where an unclean mind carries with it virtuous qualities, there commendations go with pity; they are virtues and traitors too. All's Well, i. 1.

WHEN DISTURBED, BROODS UPON TRIFLES.

Something
Hath puddled his clear spirit: and, in such cases,
Men's natures wrangle with inferior things,
Though great ones are their object. Othello, iii. 4.

TROUBLED, LOSES THE CLEAR PERCEPTION OF ITSELF.

My mind is troubled, like a fountain stirred;
And I myself see not the bottom of it. Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

A DISEASED ONE, BEYOND THE REACH OF MEDICINE.

Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased;
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow:
Rase out the written troubles of the brain;
And, with some sweet oblivious antidote,
Cleanse the stuffed bosom of that perilous stuff
Which weighs upon the heart?—Therein the patient
Must minister to himself. Macb. v. 3.

ITS SYMPATHY WITH THE BODY, A CAUSE OF OUR VARIABleness.

We are not ourselves
When nature, being oppressed, commands the mind
To suffer with the body. K. Lear, ii. 4.

MIRACLES

THE BELIEF THAT THEY NO LONGER ARE WROUGHT, MAKES MEN ATTRIBUTE TO PHILOSOPHICAL CAUSES, WHAT MAY BE DUE TO DIVINE INTERPOSITION.

They say, miracles are past; and we have our philosophical persons, to make modern* and familiar, things supernatural and causeless. Hence is it, that we make trifles of terrors ; ensconcing ourselves into seeming knowledge, when we should submit ourselves to an unknown fear.

All's Well, ii. 3.

MISAPPRECIATION

OF THINGS ; A COMMON FAULT IN MAN.

Nature, what things there are,

Most abject in regard, and dear in use !

What things again most dear in the esteem,

And poor in worth.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

OF THINGS PRESENT AND POSSESSED.

It so falls out,

That what we have we prize not to the worth,

Whiles we enjoy it ; but being lacked and lost,

Why then we rack the value ; then we find

The virtue, that possession would not show us

Whiles it was ours.

Much Ado, iv. 1.

The sweets we wish for turn to loathèd sour,

Even in the moment that we call them ours.

R. of Lucrece, st. 124.

MISER

AN AGED ONE ; THE UNSATISFACTORINESS OF HIS PURSUIT, AND MISERY OF HIS EXISTENCE.

The aged man that coffers up his gold,

Is plagued with cramps, and gouts, and painful fits ;

And scarce hath eyes his treasure to behold,

But like still-pining Tantalus he sits,

And useless barns the harvest of his wits ;

Having no other pleasure of his gain,

But torment that it cannot cure his pain.

* Ordinary.

So then he hath it, when he cannot use it,
 And leaves it to be mastered by his young ;
 Who in their pride do presently abuse it :
 Their father was too weak, and they too strong,
 To hold their cursèd-blessèd fortune long.
 The sweets we wish for, turn to loathèd sours,
 Even in the moment that we call them ours.

R. of Lucrece, st. 123, 124.

HIS LIFE OF UNEASINESS.

Such strife

As 'twixt a miser and his wealth is found ;
 Now proud as an enjoyer, and anon
 Doubting the filching age will steal his treasure.

Sonnet 75.

RICH ONES ; COMPARED TO WHALES, FOR THEIR VORACITY.

I can compare our rich misers to nothing so fitly as to a whale : a plays and tumbles, driving the poor fry before him, and at last devours them all at a mouthful. Such whales have I heard on a' the land, who never leave gaping, till they've swallowed the whole parish, church, steeple, bells, and all.

Pericles, ii. 1.

MISERY

MEETS WITH FEW SYMPATHIZERS.

Misery is trodden on by many ;
 And, being low, never relieved by any.

Ven. & Adon. st. 118.

LEAVES A MAN DESERTED.

Misery doth part
 The flux of company.

As You Like It, ii. 1.

INTRODUCES HIM TO NEW THINGS.

Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows.

Tempest, ii. 2.

MISFORTUNES

NEVER COME SINGLY.

When sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions. Ham. iv. 5.

One sorrow never comes, but brings an heir,
That may succeed as his inheritor. Pericles, i. 4.

SOMETIMES THE FORERUNNERS OF HAPPINESS.

Wipe thine eyes,
Some falls are means the happier to arise. Cymb. iv. 2.

MISCONSTRUCTION

THE POWER OF, IN MAN.

Men may construe things after their fashion,
Clean from the purpose of the things themselves.
Jul. Cæs. i. 3.

MISTRUSTOF SUCCESS IN ANY ENTERPRISE ; A FATAL ERROR, LEADING TO DOWNFALL.

Mistrust of good success hath done this deed.
O hateful error, melancholy's child !
Why dost thou show to the apt thoughts of men
The things that are not ? O error, soon conceived,
'Thou never com'st unto a happy birth,
But kill'st the mother that engendered thee. Jul. Cæs. v. 3.

Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt. Mea. for Mea. i. 4.

MODEST

A SIMILE.

Modest as morning, when she coldly eyes
The youthful Phœbus. Tr. & Cress. i. 3.

MODESTY

AN ATTRIBUTE OF TRUE WORTH.

It is the witness still of excellency,
To put a strange face on his own perfection.

Much Ado, ii. 3.

MOMENTUM

MEASURED BY WEIGHT AND VELOCITY.

The thing that's heavy in itself,
Upon enforcement, flies with greatest speed.

2 Hen. IV. i. 1.

MONEY

PREJUDICES OUR VIEW OF THINGS.

Oh, what a world of vile ill-favoured faults
Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year!

ITS POWER.

If money go before, all ways do lie open. Merry Wives, ii. 2.

Money is a good soldier, and will on. Merry Wives, ii. 2.

MOON

ITS INFLUENCE ON THE TIDES.

The moist star,
Upon whose influence Neptune's empire stands. Ham. i. 1.

Governed as the sea is, by our noble and chaste mistress
the moon.

1 Hen. IV. i. 2.

ITS BEAUTY.

The moon, like to a silver bow
New bent in heaven.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

REFLECTS THE SUN'S LIGHT.

The moon's an arrant thief,
And her pale fire she snatches from the sun.

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

* MORNING

VARIOUSLY DESCRIBED.

Lamenting Philomel* had ended
The well-tuned warble of her nightly sorrow ;
And solemn night with slow-sad gait descended
To ugly hell ; when lo, the blushing morrow
Lends light to all fair eyes that light will borrow.

R. of Lucrece, st. 155.

Lo, here the gentle lark, weary of rest,
From his moist cabinet mounts up on high,
And wakes the morning, from whose silver breast
The sun ariseth in his majesty ;
Who doth the world so gloriously behold,
That cedar-tops and hills seem burnished gold.

Ven. & Adon. st. 143.

The grey-eyed morn smiles on the frowning night,
Checkering the eastern clouds with streaks of light ;
And flecked† darkness like a drunkard reels
From forth day's path, and Titan's‡ fiery wheels.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

The morning steals upon the night,
Melting the darkness.

Tempest, v. 1.

Look ! the morn, in russet mantle clad,
Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill. Ham. i. 1.

See how the morning opes her golden gates,
And takes her farewell of the glorious sun !

3 Hen. VI. ii. 1.

* Nightingale.

† Streaked.

‡ The sun.

Look, love, what envious streaks
Do lace the severing clouds in yonder east :
Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain-tops.

Rom. & Jul. iii. 5.

A FAIR ONE, NO SURE GUARANTEE OF A FINE DAY.

Full many a glorious morning have I seen
Flatter the mountain-tops with sovereign eye,
Kissing with golden face the meadows green,
Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchemy ;
Anon permit the basest clouds to ride
With ugly rack* on his celestial face,
And from the forlorn world his visage hide,
Stealing unseen to west with his disgrace.

Sonnet 33.

A RED ONE, INDICATES FOUL WEATHER.

A red morn, that ever yet betokened
Wreck to the seaman, tempest to the field,
Sorrow to shepherds, woe unto the birds,
Gusts and foul flaws† to herdmen and to herds.

Ven. & Adon. st. 76.

MOTHERS

YOUNG ONES, SOON MARRED.

Younger than she are happy mothers made ;
And too soon marred are those so early made.

Rom. & Jul. i. 2.

MOURNING

FOR THE DEAD SHOULD BE TEMPERED WITH CONSIDERATION FOR THE LIVING.

Yet so far hath discretion fought with Nature,

* Mists.

† Boisterous winds.

That we with wisest sorrow think on him,
Together with remembrance of ourselves.

Ham. i. 2.

Moderate lamentation is the right of the dead ; excessive grief the enemy to the living. All's Well, i. 1.

CARRIED TO EXCESS ; SHOWS A WANT OF SELF-RESTRAINT, AND MANLINESS ; AND IS A REBELLION AGAINST NATURE AND REASON.

To persever

In obstinate condolment, is a course
Of impious stubbornness ; 't is unmanly grief :
It shows a will most incorrect to heaven ;
A heart unfortified, or mind impatient ;
An understanding simple and unschooled :
For what we know must be, and is as common
As any the most vulgar thing to sense,
Why should we, in our peevish opposition,
Take it to heart ? Fie ! 't is a fault to Heaven ;
A fault against the dead ; a fault to Nature ;
To reason most absurd, whose common theme
Is death of fathers, and who still hath cried,
From the first corse, till he that died today,
" This must be so."

Ham. i. 2.

MULTITUDE

IN SENSE OF THE PEOPLE, OR " THE MILLION ;" GUIDED MORE
BY THE EYE THAN THE JUDGMENT.

The fool multitude, that choose by show,
Not learning more than the fond* eye doth teach ;
Which pries not to the interior, but, like the martlet,
Builds in the weather, on the outward wall,
Even in the force and road of casualty. †

M. of Ven. ii. 8.

* Foolish.

† Exposed to the power of casual passers-by.

The distracted multitude,
Who like not in their judgment, but their eyes.

Ham. iv. 3.

THEIR FLUCTUATING FANCIES.

This common body,
Like to a vagabond flag upon the stream,
Goes to and back, lackeying the varying tide,*
To rot itself with motion.

Ant. & Cleop. i. 4.

The blunt monster with uncounted heads,
The still-discordant wavering multitude.

2 Hen. IV., Induction.

THEIR INCONSTANCY.

The tag,† whose rage doth rend
Like interrupted waters, and o'erbear
What it was used to bear.

Coriol. iii. 1.

THEIR SLOW APPRECIATION OF A DESERVING MAN.

Our slippery people,
Whose love is never linked to the deserver,
Till his deserts are past.

Ant. & Cleop. i. 2.

MURDER

NO CERTAIN GOOD EVER ACHIEVED BY IT.

There is no sure foundation set in blood ;
No certain life achieved by others' death.

K. John, iv. 2.

WILL OUT, AND BE AVENGED.

They say, blood will have blood :
Stones have been known to move, and trees to speak ;
Augurs, and understood relations,‡ have
By maggot-pies,§ and choughs, and rooks, brought forth
The secret'st man of blood.

Macb. iii. 4.

* Subservient to the tide's movements.

† Vulgar populace.

‡ Known relationship of things to each other.

§ Magpies.

Murder, though it have no tongue, will speak
With most miraculous organ. Ham. ii. 2.

Truth will come to light ; murder cannot be hid long.
M. of Ven. ii. 2.

DESERVES DEATH.

Friend or brother,
He forfeits his own blood, that spills another.
Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

ITS ALLIANCE WITH TREASON.

Treason and murder ever kept together,
As two yoke devils sworn to either's purpose.
Hen. V. ii. 2.

FORBIDDEN BY GOD'S LAW.

The great King of Kings
Hath in the table of His law commanded,
That "thou shalt do no murder."
Rich. III. i. 4.

MUSIC

ITS SOFTENING INFLUENCE ON ANIMALS.

Do but note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing, and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood :
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears,
You shall perceive them make a mutual stand,
Their savage eyes turned to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of music. M. of Ven. v.

ITS FABLED POWER.

The poet
Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods ;*

* "Arte maternâ rapidos morantem
Fluminum lapsus, celeresque ventos,
Blandum et auritas fidibus canoris
Ducere quercus."—Horace.

Since naught so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But music for the time doth change his nature.

M. of Ven. v.

Orpheus' lute was strung with poets' sinews ;
Whose golden touch could soften steel and stones,
Make tigers tame, and huge leviathans
Forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands.

Two Gent. of Ver. iii. 2.

THE DIVERTER OF MELANCHOLY.

When griping grief the heart doth wound,
And doleful dumps the mind oppress,
Then music, with her silver sound,
With speedy help doth lend redress.

Rom. & Jul. iv. 5.

THE FOOD OF LOVE.

If music be the food of love, play on ;
Give me excess of it ; that, surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken, and so die.
That strain again ; it had a dying fall :
Oh, it came o'er my ear like the sweet South,*
That breathes upon a bank of violets,
Stealing, and giving odour !

Tw. Night, i. 1.

Music, moody food

Of us that trade in love.

Ant. & Cleop. ii. 5.

MOST CONGENIAL AT NIGHT.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank !
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears : soft stillness, and the night,
Become the touches of sweet harmony.

M. of Ven. v.

ITS POWER FOR GOOD OR EVIL.

Music oft hath such a charm,
To make bad good, and good provoke to harm.

Mea. for Mea. iv. 1.

* South wind.

OF THE SPHERES, INAUDIBLE TO MAN.

Look, how the floor of Heaven
 Is thick inlaid with patines* of bright gold ;
 There 's not the smallest orb, which thou behold'st,
 But in his motion like an angel sings,
 Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubins ;
 Such harmony is in immortal souls :
 But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay
 Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it. M. of Ven. v.

THE MAN WHO IS INSENSIBLE TO IT, NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

The man that hath no music in himself,
 Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
 Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils ;
 The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
 And his affections dark as Erebus :
 Let no such man be trusted. M. of Ven. v.

NAME

IN SENSE OF AN APPELLATION MERELY ; NOTHING IN IT.

What 's in a name? that which we call a rose,
 By any other name, would smell as sweet.
Rom. & Jul. ii. 2.

NATURE

THE STUDY OF IT, MORE SATISFACTORY THAN WORLDLY AIMS.

I have,
 Together with my practice made familiar
 To me, and to my aid, the blest infusions
 That dwell in vegetives, in metals, stones ;
 And I can speak of the disturbances
 That Nature works, and of her cures ; which gives me
 A more content in course of true delight

* Broad concave plates.

Than to be thirsty after tottering honour,
Or tie my treasure up in silken bags,
To please the fool and death.

Pericles, iii. 2.

KINDLES NOBLENESS INNATE IN SOME MEN.

O thou goddess,

Thou divine Nature, how thyself thou blazon'st
In these two princely boys! They are as gentle
As Zephyrs, blowing below the violet,
Not wagging his sweet head; and yet as rough,
Their royal blood enchafed, as the rud'st wind,
That by the top doth take the mountain pine,
And make him stoop to the vale. 'T is wonderful,
That an invisible instinct should frame them
To royalty unlearn'd, honour untaught,
Civility not seen from other:* valour,
That wildly grows in them, but yields a crop
As if it had been sowed.

Cymb. iv. 2.

WORKS BY DESCENT.

Cowards father cowards, and base things sire base:
Nature hath meal and bran, contempt, and grace.

Cymb. iv. 2.

DESCRIPTION OF A NOBLE ONE.

The noble nature

Whom passion could not shake—whose solid virtue
The shot of accident, nor dart of chance,
Could neither graze, nor pierce.†

Othello, iv. 1.

HUMAN; A MIXTURE OF GOOD AND EVIL, CAUSING MEN TO HOVER BETWEEN PRESUMPTION AND DESPAIR.

The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together: our virtues would be proud, if our faults whipped them not; and our crimes would despair, if they were not cherished by our virtues.

All's Well, iv. 3.

* Not copied from the example of others.

† "Si fractus illabatur orbis Impavidum ferient ruinæ."—Horace.

HUMAN, ITS INCONSISTENCY.

How mightily, sometimes, we make us comforts of our losses! And how mightily, some other times, we drown our gain in tears! All's Well, iv. 3.

HUMAN, WILL BETRAY ITSELF.*

How sometimes nature will betray its folly,
Its tenderness, and make itself a pastime
To harder bosoms! Wint. Tale, i. 2.

How hard it is to hide the sparks of Nature! Cymb. iii. 3.

NECESSITY

IN SENSE OF NEED, MAKES US VALUE TRIFLES.

The art of our necessities is strange,
That can make vile things precious. K. Lear, iii. 2.

TO BE USED AS A VIRTUE.

Teach thy necessity to reason thus:
"There is no virtue like necessity." Rich. II. i. 3.

NIGHT

THE APPROACH OF.

Ere the bat hath flown
His cloistered flight; ere, to black Hecate's† summons,
The shard-born‡ beetle, with his drowsy hum,
Hath rung night's yawning peal. Macb. iii. 2.

Light thickens, and the crow
Makes wing to the rooky wood:
Good things of day begin to droop and drowse;
While night's black agents to their prey do rouse.
Macb. iii. 2.

The west yet glimmers with some streaks of day:

* "Naturam expellas furcâ, tamen usque recurret."—Horace.

† Night.

‡ Reared among potsherd and rubbish.

Now spurs the lated traveller apace,
To gain the timely inn. Macb. iii. 3.

Night, whose black contagious breath
Already smokes about the burning crest
Of the old, feeble, and day-wearied sun. K. John, v. 4.

ADVANCED.

Look, the world's comforter, with weary gait,
His day's hot task hath ended in the west ;
The owl, night's herald, shrieks ; 't is very late ;
The sheep are gone to fold, birds to their nest ;
And coal-black clouds, that shadow heaven's light,
Do summon us to part, and bid good-night.
Ven. & Adon. st. 89.

Sable night, mother of dread and fear,
Upon the world dim darkness doth display,
And in her vaulty prison stows the day. R. of Lucrece, st. 17.

Come, civil* night,
Thou sober-suited matron, all in black. Rom. & Jul. iii. 2.

A STARLESS ONE.

There 's husbandry† in heaven ;
Their candles are all out. Macb. ii. 1.

MOONLIGHT, AND DEWY.

Tomorrow night, when Phœbe‡ doth behold
Her silvery image in the watery glass,
Decking with liquid pearl the bladed grass.
M. N. Dream, i. 1.

A CALM ONE.

In such a night as this,
When the sweet wind did gently kiss the trees,
And they did make no noise. M. of Ven. v.

* Grave, solemn.

† Economy.

‡ The moon.

GENERALLY DESCRIBED.

The gaudy, babbling, and remorseful day
 Is crept into the bosom of the sea ;
 And now loud-howling wolves arouse the jades
 That drag the tragic melancholy night :
 Who, with their drowsy, slow, and flagging wings,
 Clip* dead men's graves, and from their misty jaws
 Breathe foul contagious darkness in the air.

2 Hen. VI. iv. 1.

THE SEASON OF CRIMES.

O comfort-killing night, image of hell !
 Dim register and notary of shame !
 Black stage for tragedies and murders fell !
 Vast, sin-concealing chaos ! nurse of blame !
 Blind, muffled bawd ! dark harbour for defame !
 Grim cave of death ! whispering conspirator
 With close-tongued treason and the ravisher !

R. of Lucrece, st. 110.

Now o'er one-half the world
 Nature seems dead ; and wicked dreams abuse
 The curtained sleep : now witchcraft celebrates
 Pale Hecate's offerings ; and withered murder
 Alarumed by his sentinel, the wolf,
 Whose howl's his watch, thus with his stealthy pace,
 With Tarquin's ravishing strides, towards his design
 Moves like a ghost.

Macb. ii. 1.

When the searching eye of heaven is hid
 Behind the globe, and lights the lower world,
 Then thieves and robbers range abroad unseen,
 In murders and in outrage bloody here.

Rich. II. iii. 2.

Affairs that walk
 (As they say spirits do) at midnight, have

* Surround.

In them a wilder nature, than the business
That seeks despatch by day. Hen. VIII. v. 1.

'T is now the very witching time of night,
When churchyards yawn, and hell itself breathes out
Contagion to this world. Ham. iii. 2.

THE SEASON WHEN SPIRITS ARE SAID TO STIR ABROAD.

Now it is the time of night,
When the graves, all gaping wide,
Every one lets forth his sprite,
In the church-way paths to glide. M. N. Dream, v. 2.

SHARPENS THE SENSE OF HEARING.

Dark night, that from the eye his function takes,
The ear more quick of apprehension makes ;
Wherein it doth impair the seeing sense,
It pays the hearing double recompense.
M. N. Dream, iii. 2.

GRIEF'S CRADLE.

Peaceful night,
The tomb where grief should sleep. Pericles, i. 2.

PASSES SLOWLY TO WATCHERS.

The cripple, tardy-gaited night,
Who, like a foul and ugly witch, doth limp
So tediously away. Hen. V. iv. Cho.

INVOKED BY A MURDERER AS A SCREEN OF GUILT.

Come, thick night,
And pall* thee in the dunnest smoke of hell ;
That my keen knife see not the wound it makes ;
Nor heaven peep through the blanket of the dark,
To cry, " Hold, hold !"
Macb. i. 5.

* Cloak, envelope.

Come sealing night,
 Scarf up the tender eye of pitiful day ;
 And with thy bloody and invisible hand,
 Cancel and tear to pieces that great bond
 Which keeps me pale !

Macb. iii. 2.

NOON

SUN ON THE MERIDIAN.

Now is the sun upon the highmost hill
 Of this day's journey.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 5.

NOTHING

WHAT IT IS LIKE.

'T is like the breath of an unfeed lawyer.

K. Lear, i. 4.

NUN

A PROFESSION THAT INVOLVES A PERFECT MASTERY OVER THE PASSIONS.

Know of your youth, examine well your blood,
 Whether—you can endure the livery of a nun ;
 For eye to be in shady cloister mewed ;
 To live a barren sister all your life,
 Chanting faint hymns to the cold fruitless moon.
 Thrice blessed they, that master so their blood,
 To undergo such maiden pilgrimage :
 But earthlier happy is the rose distilled,
 Than that which, withering on the virgin thorn,
 Grows, lives, and dies in single blessedness.

M. N. Dream, i. 1.

OAK

AN OLD ONE.

Under an oak, whose boughs were mossed with age,
 And high top bald with dry antiquity.

As You Like It, vi. 3.

OATH

A MAN'S WORD OUGHT TO BE AS GOOD.

I'll take thy word for faith, not ask thine oath ;
 Who shuns not to break one, will sure crack both.

Pericles, i. 2.

UNNECESSARY TO BIND HONEST MEN TO HONEST ACTIONS.

What other oath,
 Than honesty to honesty engaged,
 That this shall be, or we will fall for it?
 Swear priests, and cowards, and men cautelous,*
 Old feeble carrions, and such suffering souls
 That welcome wrongs ; unto bad causes swear
 Such creatures as men doubt ; but do not stain
 The even virtue of our enterprise,
 Nor the insuppressive mettle of our spirits,
 To think, that or our cause or our performance
 Did need an oath.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

MORE VALUABLE FOR THEIR QUALITY, THAN QUANTITY.

'Tis not the many oaths that make the truth ;
 But the plain single vow, that is vowed true.

All's Well, iv. 2.

OFFENCE

RARELY TAKEN, BY THE FREE AND INNOCENT.

To be generous, guiltless, and of free disposition, is to take those things for bird-bolts, † that you deem cannon-bullets. There is no slander in an allowed fool, though he do nothing but rail ; nor no railing in a known discreet man, though he do nothing but reprove.

Tw. Night, i. 5.

* Subtle, deceitful.

† Short arrows.

OLD-AGE

ITS CHARACTERISTICS, HUMOROUSLY DESCRIBED.

A moist eye, a dry hand, a yellow cheek, a white beard,
a decreasing leg, an increasing belly ; voice broken, wind short, chin double, wit single, and every part blasted with antiquity. 2 Hen. IV. i. 2.

A HEALTHY ONE BEST PROMOTED BY TEMPERANCE IN YOUTH.

Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty ;
For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood ;
Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
The means of weakness and debility :
Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty, but kindly. As You Like It, ii. 3.

SHOULD BE FREED FROM WORLDLY CARES.

'Tis our fast intent
To shake all cares and business from our age,
Conferring them on younger strengths, while we Unburdened crawl towards death. K. Lear, i. 1.

NATURE'S PREPARATION FOR DEATH.

Nature, as it grows again toward earth,
Is fashioned for the journey, dull, and heavy.
Tim. of Ath. ii. 2.

APT NOT TO MAKE SUFFICIENT ALLOWANCE FOR THE FREAKS OF YOUTH.

You that are old, consider not the capacities of us that are young ; you measure the heat of our livers by the bitterness of your galls. 2 Hen. IV. i. 2.

AS MUCH PRONE TO BE OVER-CAREFUL, AS YOUTH IS TO BE INDISCREET.

It seems, it is as proper to our age
To cast beyond ourselves in our opinions,

As it is common for the younger sort
To lack discretion.

Ham. ii. 1.

WHEN ASSOCIATED WITH AN ENTERPRISE, GIVES IT A SANCTION IN THE EYES OF THE WORLD.

His silver hairs

Will purchase us a good opinion,
And buy men's voices to commend our deeds ;
It shall be said, his judgment ruled our hands ;
Our youths and wildness shall no whit appear,
But all be buried in his gravity.

Jul. Cæs. ii. 1.

EXTREME, DESCRIBED.

Last scene of all,

That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness, and mere oblivion ;
Sans* teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

As You Like It, ii. 5.

OLD-FOLK

CHARACTERIZED.

The old-folk, time's doting chronicles.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

OLD-MAN

RETROSPECTIVE LAMENT OF ONE, OVER A MIS-SPENT LIFE.

I have lived long enough : my way of life
Is fallen into the sear,† the yellow leaf ;
And that which should accompany old-age,
As honour, love, obedience, troops of friends,
I must not look to have ; but, in their stead,
Curses not loud, but deep, mouth-honour, breath,
Which the poor heart would fain deny, but dare not.

Macb. v. 3.

* Without.

OLD-MEN

THEIR CHARACTERISTICS.

Old men have grey beards, their faces are wrinkled ;
 their eyes purging thick amber and plum-tree gum ; they have a most plentiful lack of wit, together with most weak hams. Ham. ii. 2.

SHOULD ACT PROMPTLY, THEIR TIME BEING SHORT.

Let's take the instant by the forward top ;
 For we are old, and on our quick'st decrees
 The inaudible and noiseless foot of time
 Steals ere we can effect them. All's Well, v. 3.

ARE CHILDREN, ONCE AGAIN.

An old man is twice a child. Ham. ii. 2.

OPINION

PUBLIC, INFLUENCES EVENTS.

Opinion, a sovereign mistress of effects. Othello, i. 3.

OPPORTUNITY

THE GREAT INSTIGATOR AND ABETTOR OF SIN.

O opportunity ! thy guilt is great :
 'T is thou that execut'st the traitor's treason ;
 Thou sett'st the wolf where he the lamb may get ;
 Whoever plots the sin, thou point'st the season ;
 'T is thou that spurn'st at right, at law, at reason ;
 And in thy shady cell, where none may spy him,
 Sits sin, to seize the souls that wander by him.
 Thou makest the vestal violate her oath ;
 Thou blow'st the fire when temperance is thawed ;
 Thou smother'st honesty, thou murder'st troth ;
 Thou foul abettor ! thou notorious bawd !

Thou plantest scandal, and displacest laud :*
 Thou ravisher, thou traitor, thou false thief,
 Thy honey turns to gall, thy joy to grief!
 Thy secret pleasure turns to open shame ;
 Thy private feasting to a public fast ;
 Thy smoothing titles to a ragged name ;
 Thy sugared tongue to bitter wormwood taste ;
 Thy violent vanities can never last.
 How comes it then, vile opportunity,
 Being so bad, such numbers seek for thee ?

Guilty thou art of murder and of theft ;
 Guilty of perjury and subornation ;
 Guilty of treason, forgery, and shift ;
 Guilty of incest, that abomination :
 An accessory by thine inclination
 To all sins past, and all that are to come,
 From the Creation to the general Doom.

R. of Lucrece, st. 126, 127, 128, 132.

SELDOM FOUND BY THE DESERVING.

When wilt thou be the humble suppliant's friend,
 And bring him where his suit may be obtained ?
 When wilt thou sort an hour great strifes to end ?
 Or free that soul which wretchedness hath chained ?
 Give physic to the sick, ease to the pained ?
 The poor, lame, blind, halt, creep, cry out for thee ;
 But they ne'er meet with opportunity.

The patient dies while the physician sleeps ;
 The orphan pines while the oppressor feeds ;
 Justice is feasting while the widow weeps ;
 Advice is sporting while infection breeds ;
 Thou grant'st no time for charitable deeds :
 Wrath, envy, treason, rape, and murder's rages,
 The heinous hours wait on them as their pages.

* Praise.

When truth and virtue have to do with thee,
 A thousand crosses keep them from thy aid :
 They buy thy help ; but sin ne'er gives a fee,
 He gratis comes ; and thou art well appayed,*
 As well to hear as grant what he hath said.

R. of Lucrece, st. 129, 130, 131.

ORNAMENT

OUTWARD MERELY, NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

Ornament is but the guiled† shore
 To a most dangerous sea ; the beauteous scarf
 Veiling an Indian beauty : in a word,
 The seeming truth which cunning times put on
 To entrap the wisest.

M. of Ven. iii. 2.

OVER-EARNESTNESS

OFTEN DEFEATS ITS OBJECT.

When workmen strive to do better than well,
 They do confound their skill in covetousness.‡

K. John, iv. 2.

Striving to better, oft we mar what 's well. K. Lear, i. 4.

OVID

THE POET (WHY CALLED NASO).

Ovidius Naso was the man : and why, indeed, Naso, but for smelling out the odoriferous flowers of fancy, the jerks of invention ?

L. L. Lost, iv. 2.

PAIN

THE PENALTY OF PLEASURE.

Pain pays the income of each precious thing.

R. of Lucrece, st. 48.

* Satisfied.

† Beguiling, treacherous.

‡ Coveting to attain a higher degree of excellence.

LESS FELT WHEN BORNE IN COMPANY.

'T is good for men to love their present pains,
 Upon example ; so the spirit is eased ;
 And, when the mind is quickened, out of doubt,
 The organs, though defunct and dead before,
 Break up their drowsy grave, and newly move
 With casted slough* and fresh legerity. Hen. V. iv. 1.

ALLEVIATED BY ITS OWN FELLOWSHIP.

When we our betters see bearing our woes,
 We scarcely think our miseries our foes.
 Who alone suffers, suffers most in the mind,
 Leaving free things, and happy shows behind :
 But then the mind much sufferance† doth o'erskip,
 When grief hath mates, and bearing fellowship.
K. Lear, iii. 6.

SOMETIMES EASED BY THE THOUGHT OF OTHERS' SUFFERINGS.

It easeth some, though none it ever cured,
 To think their dolour others have endured.
R. of Lucrece, st. 226.

PAINTING

ILLUSTRATES MAN ; AS REGARDS HIS TENDENCY TO OUTWARD SEMBLANCE AND DECEIT.

The painting is almost the natural man,
 For since dishonour traffics with man's nature,
 He is but outside. These pencilled figures are being scribbled o'er, should undo a man? 2 Hen. VI. iv. 2.

PASSION

PROPOSES, BUT PERFORMS NOT.

What to ourselves in passion we propose,
The passion ending, doth the purpose lose.
The violence of either grief or joy
Their own enactures with themselves destroy. Ham. iii. 2.

OBEYS NOT COUNSEL.

A hot temper leaps over a cold decree: such a hare is madness, the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel, the cripple. Mer. of Ven. i. 2.

Young blood will not obey an old decree. L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

PASSIONS

NOT TO BE MASTERED BY MAN'S OWN STRENGTH.

Every man with his affects* is born;
Not by might mastered, but by special Grace.
L. L. Lost, i. 1.

DANGEROUS TO DALLY WITH.

Do not give dalliance
Too much the reign: the strongest oaths are straw
To the fire i' the blood. Tempest, iv. 1.

PASTORS

GRACELESS ONES; WHO PREACH ONE THING, AND PRACTISE
ANOTHER.

Do not, as some ungracious pastors do,
Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven;

* Affections, passions.

Whilst, like a puffed and reckless libertine,
Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads,
And recks not his own read.* Ham. i. 3.

The flamen,†
That scolds against the quality of flesh,
And not believes himself. Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

THEIR DIFFICULTY LIES MORE IN PRACTICE, THAN IN PREACHING.

It is a good divine that follows his own instructions: I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching.
Mer. of Ven. i. 2.

PATIENCE

THE WANT OF IT, FILLS THE CUP OF SUFFERING TO THE BRIM.

He bears the sentence well, that nothing bears
But the free comfort which from thence he hears;
But he bears both the sentence and the sorrow,
That, to pay grief, must of poor patience borrow.
Othello, i. 3.

ENABLES US TO LAUGH AT MISFORTUNE.

What cannot be preserved, when fortune takes,
Patience her injury a mockery makes.
The robbed that smiles, steals something from the thief;
He robs himself, that spends a bootless grief.
Othello, i. 3.

THE WANT OF IT, IS TRUE POVERTY.

How poor are they that have not patience!
What wound did ever heal but by degrees?
Othello, ii. 3.

IS CONSIDERED COWARDICE BY THE HIGH-SPIRITED.

That which in mean men we entitle patience,
Is pale cold cowardice in noble breasts. Rich. II. i. 2.

COMBINED WITH HUMILITY.

Patience, be near me still; and set me lower!
Rom. & Jul. iv. 2.

EASY TO PRACTISE, WHERE NO PROVOCATIONS EXIST.

Patience, unmoved, no marvel though she pause;*
They can be meek that have no other cause.
Com. of Err. ii. 1.

EASIER TAUGHT, THAN PRACTISED.

'T is all men's office to speak patience
To those that wring under the load of sorrow;
But no man's virtue, nor sufficiency,
To be so moral, when he shall endure
The like himself. Much Ado, v. 1.

A wretched soul, bruised with adversity,
We bid be quiet, when we hear it cry;
But were we burdened with like weight of pain,
As much, or more, we should ourselves complain.
Com. of Err. ii. 1.

Bring me a father, who so loved his child,
Whose joy of her is overwhelmed like mine,
And bid him speak of patience. Much Ado, v. 1.

PERSONIFIED.

She sat like Patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief. Tw. Night, ii. 4.

CHARACTERIZED.

Patience, thou young and rose-lipped cherubin !

Othello, iv. 2.

PEACE

ITS INAUGURATION, AFTER WAR.

Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths ;
 Our bruised arms hung up for monuments ;
 Our stern alarums changed to merry meetings,
 Our dreadful marches to delightful measures.*
 Grim-visaged war hath smoothed his wrinkled front ;
 And now, instead of mounting barbèd steeds,
 To fright the souls of fearful adversaries,
 He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber,
 To the lascivious pleasing of a lute.

Rich. III. i. 1.

ITS INNOCENCE AND REPOSE ILLUSTRATED.

Peace—which in our country's cradle
 Draws the sweet infant breath of gentle sleep.

Rich. II. i. 3.

A MORAL CONQUEST.

A peace is of the nature of a conquest ;
 For then both parties nobly are subdued,
 And neither party loser.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 2.

RIGHT BEHAVIOUR IN IT.

In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man,
 As modest stillness, and humility.

Hen. V. iii. 1.

ITS BLESSINGS.

Naked, poor, and mangled peace,
 Dear nurse of arts, plenties, and joyful births.

Hen. V. v. 2.

* Music, dancing, etc.

THE SPIRIT OF IT TO BE ENCOURAGED AS THE BEST ANSWER TO SLANDER.

Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
To silence envious tongues. Hen. VIII. iii. 2.

A WHIMSICAL DESCRIPTION OF IT.

This peace is nothing, but to rust iron, increase tailors, and breed ballad-makers. Let me have war, say I; it exceeds peace, as far as day does night; it is sprightly, waking, audible, and full of vent.* Peace is a very apoplexy, lethargy; mulled, deaf, sleepy, insensible; a getter of more bastard children than war's a destroyer of men.

Coriol. iv. 5.

PEEVISHNESS

ITS FOLLY.

Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster?
Sleep when he wakes? and creep into the jaundice
By being peevish? M. of Ven. i. 1.

PELICAN

SAID TO FEED ITS YOUNG WITH ITS OWN BLOOD.

To his good friends thus wide I'll ope my arms;
And, like the kind, life-rendering pelican,
Repat them with my blood. Ham. iv. 5.

PERSEVERANCE

NECESSARY TO MAINTAIN REPUTATION; BECAUSE MEN ARE NOT HONOURED FOR WHAT THEY WERE, SO MUCH AS FOR WHAT THEY ARE.

Time hath a wallet at his back,
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,
A great-sized monster of ingratitude.

* Matter for conversation.

Those scraps are good deeds past, which are devoured
 As fast as they are made, forgot as soon
 As done. Perseverance
 Keeps honour bright. To have done, is to hang Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
 In monumental mockery. Take the instant way ;
 For honour travels in a strait so narrow
 Where one but goes abreast : keep then the path ;
 For emulation hath a thousand sons,
 That one by one pursue : if you give way,
 Or hedge aside from the direct forthright,
 Like to an entered tide, they all rush by,
 And leave you hindmost ;
 Or, like a gallant horse fallen in first rank,
 Lie there for pavement to the abject rear,
 O'errun and trampled on. Then, what they do in present,
 Though less than yours in past, must o'ertop yours :
 For time is like a fashionable host,
 That slightly shakes his parting guest by the hand ;
 And with his arms outstretched, as he could fly,
 Grasps in the comer : welcome ever smiles,
 And farewell goes out sighing. O, let not virtue seek Remuneration for the thing it was ;
 For beauty, wit,
 High birth, vigour of bone, desert in service,
 Love, friendship, charity, are subjects all
 To envious and calumniating time.
 One touch of nature makes the whole world kin,
 That all, with one consent, praise newborn gauds,
 Though they are made and moulded of things past ;
 And give to dust, that is a little gilt,
 More laud than gilt o'er-dusted.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

PHILANTHROPIST

ONE READY TO SACRIFICE HIMSELF FOR THE GENERAL GOOD,
 AS THE TRUEST HONOUR.

If it be aught towards the general good,

Set honour in one eye, and death i' the other,
 And I will look on both indifferently :
 For, let the gods so speed me, as I love
 The name of honour, more than I fear death.

A saucy roughness, and constrains the garb
 Quite from his nature. He cannot flatter, he !
 An honest mind, and plain ; he must speak truth :
 An they will take it, so ; if not, he 's plain.
 These kind of knaves I know, which in this plainness
 Harbour more craft, and more corrupter ends,
 Than twenty silly ducking observants,
 That stretch their duties nicely.

Ham. ii. 2.

PLAYING

AN ADDRESS TO SOME PLAYERS, CONCERNING THEIR ART ; ON THE PRINCIPLE THAT ITS OBJECT IS TO REPRESENT HUMAN NATURE IN ALL ITS VARIOUS ASPECTS.

Speak the speech trippingly on the tongue : but if you

* Galleries of the theatre.

mouth it, as many of our players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus ; but use all gently : for in the very torrent, tempest, and, as I may say, whirlwind of your passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance, that may give it smoothness. Oh, it offends me to the soul, to hear a robustious, periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings ;* who, for the most part, are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb-shows and noise : I would have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termagant ; it outheroes Herod. Be not too tame neither, but let your own discretion be your tutor : suit the action to the word, the word to the action ; with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of Nature ; for anything so overdone is from the purpose of playing, whose end, both at the first and now, was and is, to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to Nature ; to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time his form and pressure.† Now, this overdone, or come tardy off, though it make the unskilful laugh, cannot but make the judicious grieve ; the censure of which one, must, in your allowance, o'erweigh a whole theatre of others. Oh, there be players, that I have seen play, (and heard others praise, and that highly,) not to speak it profanely, that, neither having the accent of Christians, nor the gait of Christian, Pagan, nor man, have so strutted and bellowed, that I have thought some of Nature's journeymen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably. Oh, reform it altogether. And let those that play your clowns, speak no more than is set down for them ; for there be of them, that will themselves laugh, to set on some quantity of barren spectators to laugh too ; though, in the meantime, some

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven ;
And, as imagination bodies forth

Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation, and a name.

Ham. iii. 3.

PRECEDENT

THE WANT OF, AN ANTECEDENT OBJECTION TO ANY ACT.

Things done without example, in their issue
Are to be feared.

Hen. VIII. i. 2.

PRECEPT

VERSUS PRACTICE.

If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages prince's palaces. It is a good divine that follows his own instructions. I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching. The brain may devise laws for the blood; but a hot temper leaps over a cold decree: such a hare is madness, the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel, the cripple.

M. of Ven. i. 2.

PRECIPICE

DESCRIPTION OF ONE, OVERHANGING THE SEA.

How fearful

And dizzy 'tis to cast one's eyes so low!
The crows and choughs, that wing the midway air,
Show scarce so gross as beetles: halfway down
Hangs one that gathers samphire—dreadful trade!
Methinks, he seems no bigger than his head:
The fishermen, that walk upon the beach,
Appear like mice; and yon tall anchoring bark,
Diminished to her cock;* her cock, a buoy
Almost too small for sight. The murmuring surge,

* Cock-boat.

That on the unnumbered idle pebbles chafes,
 Cannot be heard so high. I'll look no more;
 Lest my brain turn, and the deficient sight
 Topple down headlong.

K. Lear, iv. 6.

The dreadful summit of the cliff,
 That beetles* o'er his base into the sea,
 The very place puts toys of desperation,
 Without more motive into every brain,
 That looks so many fathoms to the sea,
 And it hears it roar beneath.

Ham. i. 4.

PRECIPITATION

OFT MISSES ITS AIMS, BY OVER-EARNESTNESS.

We may outrun,
 By violent swiftness, that which we run at,
 And lose by over-running. Know you not,
 The fire, that mounts the liquor till it run o'er,
 In seeming to augment it, wastes it?

Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 6.

Wisely, and slow; they stumble that run fast.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

PREFERMENT

TOO OFTEN GAINED BY FAVOURITISM OR INTEREST.

'T is the curse of service;
 Preferment goes by letter and affection,†
 Not by the old gradation, where each second
 Stood heir to the first.

Othello, i. 1.

* Projects.

† Letters of recommendation; and partiality.

IF AWARDED ONLY TO HONEST MERIT, MANY LOW ONES WOULD BE EXALTED, AND HIGH ONES ABASED.

Oh that estates, degrees, and offices
Were not derived corruptly ! and that clear honour
Were purchased by the merit of the wearer !
How many then should cover, that stand bare !
How many be commanded, that command !
How much low peasantry would then be gleaned
From the true seed of honour ! and how much honour
Picked from the chaff and ruin of the times,
To be new varnished ! M. of Ven. ii. 8.

PRESENT

THE ; MEN NEVER CONTENTED WITH IT.

O thoughts of men accurst !
Past, and to come, seem best ; things present, worst.
2 Hen. IV. i. 3.

What our contempts do often hurl from us,
We wish it ours again ; the present pleasure,
By revolution lowering, does become
The opposite of itself. Ant. & Cleop. i. 2.

The sweets we wish for, turn to loathèd sour,
Even in the moment that we call them ours.
R. of Lucrece, st. 124.

PRIDE

DEPRIVES MEN OF SUCH PRAISE AS IS REALLY DUE TO THEM, AND THUS DEFEATS ITSELF.

He that is proud, eats up himself : pride is his own glass, his own trumpet, his own chronicle ; and whatever praises itself but in the deed, devours the deed in the praise.
Tr. & Cress. ii. 3.

MARS A MAN'S SUCCESS IN LIFE.

Pride ;—

Which out of daily fortune ever taints
The happy man.

Coriol. iv. 7.

ONLY TAUGHT ITS OWN DEFORMITY, BY SEEING ITSELF IN ANOTHER.

Pride hath no other glass
To show itself, but pride ; for supple knees
Feed arrogance, and are the proud man's fees.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

NOT TAUGHT, BUT VOLUNTARY.

All pride is willing pride.

L. L. Lost, ii. 1.

SO GENERAL, ESPECIALLY IN CITIES, THAT NO ONE NEED CON-SIDER HIMSELF ESPECIALLY POINTED AT BY THE ACCUSATION.

Why, who cries out on pride,
That can therein tax any private party ?
Doth it not flow as hugely as the sea,
Till that the very means do ebb ?
What woman in the city do I name,
When that I say, the city-woman bears
The cost of princes on unworthy shoulders ?
Who can come in, and say, that I mean her,
When such a one as she, such is the neighbour ?
Or what is he of basest function,
That says, his bravery is not on my cost,
(Thinking that I mean him,) but therein suits
His folly to the mettle of my speech ?
There then : how ? what then ? let me see wherein
My tongue hath wronged him : if it do him right,
Then he hath wronged himself ; if he be free,
Why then my taxing, like a wild goose, flies
Unclaimed of any man.

As You Like It, ii. 5.

PRINCES

DIFFER FROM THE LOW-BORN CHIEFLY IN OUTWARD TITLE, AND INCREASE OF CARE.

Princes have but their title for their glories,
An outward honour for an inward toil ;
And, for unfelt imaginations,
They often feel a world of restless cares :
So that, between their titles and low name,
There's nothing differs but the outward fame.

Rich. III. i. 4.

ARE BOUND TO USE HOSPITALITY AND BOUNTY.

Princes, in this, should live like gods above,
Who freely give to every one that comes
To honour them ; and princes not doing so,
Are like to gnats, which make a sound, but killed
Are wondered at.

Pericles, ii. 3.

ARE LOOKED UP TO FOR AN EXAMPLE.

Princes are the glass, the school, the book,
Where subjects' eyes do learn, do read, do look.

R. of Lucrece, st. 88.

MAY NOT MARRY AS THEY PLEASE, BUT THEREIN MUST CONSULT THE WELFARE OF THE STATE.

His greatness weighed, his will is not his own ;
For he himself is subject to his birth :
He may not, as unvalued persons do,
Carve for himself ; for on his choice depends
The safety and the health of the whole state ;
And therefore must his choice be circumscribed
Unto the voice and yielding of that body
Whereof he is the head.

PROMISES

CHEAP, AND ALWAYS IN FASHION.

Promising is the very air o' the time; it opens the eyes of expectation: performance is ever the duller for his act; and, but in the plainer and simpler kind of people, the deed of saying* is quite out of use. To promise is most courtly and fashionable: performance is a kind of will, or testament, which argues a great sickness in his judgment that makes it. Tim. of Ath. v. 1.

Merry Wives, iii. 4.

PROVIDENCE

A SPECIAL ONE, WHOSE ENDS ARE IRRESISTIBLE.

We defy augury : there is a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be now, 't is not to come ; if it be not to come, it will be now ; if it be not now, yet it will come ; the readiness is all ; since no man, of aught he leaves, knows, what is 't to leave betimes.

Ham. v. 2.

Our indiscretion sometimes serves us well,

When our deep plots do pall;* and that should teach us,
 There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
 Rough-hew them how we will. Ham. v. 2.

Most it is presumption in us, when
 The help of Heaven, we count the act of men.
All's Well, ii. 1.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

SHOULD BE ACCOMPANIED WITH ACTION.

In such business
 Action is eloquence, and the eyes of the ignorant
 More learned than the ears. Coriol. iii. 2.

PUNNING

AN EASY SUBSTITUTE FOR WIT.

How every fool can play upon the word! I think, the best grace of wit will shortly turn into silence; and discourse grow commendable in none only but parrots.
M. of Ven. iii. 5.

PURITANS

A HINT AT THEIR NARROW-MINDEDNESS.

Dost thou think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale? Tw. Night, ii. 3.

PURPOSES

FUTILE, WHEN BEGOTTEN OF PASSION.

Purpose is but the slave to memory;
 Of violent birth, but poor validity;
 Which now, like fruits unripe, stick on the tree;
 But fall, unshaken, when they mellow be.

* Fail.

What to ourselves in passion we propose,
 The passion ending, doth the purpose lose.
 The violence of either grief or joy
 Their own enactures with themselves destroy.

Ham. iii. 2.

PURSE

OFTEN THE SEAT OF LOVE.

Their love
 Lies in their purses ; and whoso empties them,
 By so much fills their hearts with deadly hate.

Rich. II. ii. 2.

THE DISEASE OF AN EMPTY ONE, NEVER CURED BY BORROWING.

No remedy against this consumption of the purse :
 borrowing only lingers and lingers it out, but the disease is incurable.

2 Hen. IV. i. 2.

QUARRELLING

ONLY A BASTARD KIND OF VALOUR.

Quarrelling
 Is valour misbegot, and came into the world
 When sects and factions were but newly born.

Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

QUARRELS

TO BE AVOIDED IF POSSIBLE ; OR, BOLDLY CARRIED THROUGH.

Beware
 Of entrance to a quarrel ; but, being in,
 Bear it, that the opposer may beware of thee.

Ham. i. 3.

QUEEN ELIZABETH

SHAKSPEARE'S COMPLIMENT TO HER MAIDEN ESTATE.

Once I sat upon a promontory,
 And heard a mermaid, on a dolphin's back,

Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,
 That the rude sea grew civil at her song ;
 And certain stars shot madly from their spheres,
 To hear the sea-maid's music.
 That very time I saw,
 Flying between the cold moon and the earth,
 Cupid all armed : a certain aim he took
 At a fair vestal, throned by the west ;
 And loosed his love-shaft smartly from his bow,
 As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts :
 But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft
 Quenched in the chaste beams of the watery moon ;
 And the imperial votaress passed on,
 In maiden meditation, fancy-free.*
 Yet marked I where the bolt of Cupid fell :
 It fell upon a little western flower,
 Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound ;
 And maidens call it Love-in-idleness.

M. N. Dream, ii. 1.

RAINBOW

ADDRESSED BY CERES ; AND PERSONIFIED BY IRIS.

Hail, many-coloured messenger, that ne'er
 Dost disobey the wife of Jupiter ;
 Who, with thy saffron wings, upon my flowers
 Diffusest honey-drops, refreshing showers ;
 And with each end of thy blue bow dost crown
 My bosky acres,† and my unshrubbed down,
 Rich scarf to my proud earth !

Tempest, iv.

RANK

AND INFLUENCE, COURTED BY ALL.

Every grize‡ of fortune

* Free from love. † Wooded : from bosque, Span. ; or bosquet, French.

‡ Grade, degree.

Is smoothed by that below : the learned pate
Ducks to the golden fool. Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

RANKS

AND DISTINCTIONS, NECESSARY IN THE WORLD.

Oh, when degree is shaken,
Which is the ladder of all high designs,
The enterprise is sick ! Tr. & Cress. i. 3.

Though mean and mighty,
Together, have one dust ; yet reverence,
That angel of the world, doth make distinction
Of place 'tween high and low. Cymb. iv. 2.

Clay and clay differs in dignity,
Whose dust is both alike. Cymb. iv. 2.

RASHNESS

SOMETIMES SUCCEEDS, WHEN DISCRETION FAILS, SINCE ALL ISSUES ARE FROM ABOVE.

Praised be rashness for it,—let us know,
Our indiscretion sometimes serves us well,
When our deep plots do pall ;* and that should teach us,
There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough-hew them how we will. Ham. v. 2.

RATS

SAID TO LEAVE A VESSEL NOT SEA-WORTHY.

A rotten carcase of a boat, not rigged,
Nor tackle, sail, nor mast ; the very rats
Instinctively had quit her. Tempest, i. 2.

* Fail.

REASON

GIVEN MEN TO RESTRAIN AND COUNTERBALANCE THE IMPULSES
OF THE FLESH.

If the balance of our lives had not one scale of reason to poise another of sensuality, the blood and baseness of our natures would conduct us to most preposterous conclusions : but we have reason to cool our raging motions, our carnal stings, our unbitted lusts. Othello, i. 2.

OFTEN UNHEEDED BY PLEASURE, AND REVENGE.

Pleasure and revenge
Have ears more deaf than adders to the voice
Of any true decision. Tr. & Cress. ii. 2.

REBELLION

IN A STATE ; THE FOLLY AND UNREASONABLENESS OF IT ILLUSTRATED BY A FABLE.

There was a time, when all the body's members
Rebelled against the belly ; thus accused it :
That only like a gulf it did remain
I' the midst o' the body, idle and inactive,
Still cupboarding the viand, never bearing
Like labour with the rest ; where the other instruments
Did see, and hear, devise, instruct, walk, feel,
And, mutually participate, did minister
Unto the appetite and affection common
Of the whole body. The belly answered—
(Your most grave belly was deliberate,
Not rash like his accusers)—and thus answered :
“ True is it, my incorporate friends,” quoth he,
“ That I receive the general food at first,
Which you do live upon : and fit it is ;
Because I am the storehouse, and the shop
Of the whole body. But if you do remember,

I send it through the rivers of your blood,
 Even to the court, the heart, to the seat o' the brain ;
 And, through the cranks and offices of man,
 The strongest nerves, and small inferior veins,
 From me receive that natural competency
 Whereby they live. And though all at once cannot See what I do deliver out to each ;
 Yet can I make my audit up, that all
 From me do back receive the flour of all,
 And leave me but the bran."

Application.

The senators of Rome are this good belly,
 And you the mutinous members : for examine
 Their counsels, and their cares ; digest things rightly,
 Touching the weal o' the common ; you shall find,
 No public benefit, which you receive,
 But it proceeds, or comes, from them to you,
 And no way from yourselves. Coriol. i. 1.

RECREATION

A NECESSARY RELIEF FOR THE MIND AND BODY.

Sweet recreation barred, what doth ensue,
 But moody and dull melancholy,
 Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair ;
 And, at her heels, a huge infectious troop
 Of pale distemperatures, and foes to life ?

Com. of Err. v.

RECRUIT

A PRATING AND COWARDLY ONE, DESCRIBED.

Why, 't is a gull, a fool, a rogue ; that now and then goes to the wars, to grace himself at his return into London under the form of a soldier. And such fellows are perfect in great commanders' names : and they will learn you by rote, where services were done; at such a sconce,* at such a breach, at such a convoy; who came off bravely, who was shot, who disgraced, what terms the enemy stood on; and this they con perfectly in the phrase of war, which they trick up with new-turned oaths. And what a beard of the general's cut, and a horrid suit of the camp, will do among foaming bottles, and ale-washed wits, is wonderful to be thought on.

Hen. V. iii. 6.

RECRUITS

AN APOLOGY FOR BAD ONES.

Tut, tut! good enough to toss; food for powder, food for powder: they'll fill a pit, as well as better.

1 Hen. IV. iv. 2.

REFORMATION

OF A WILD SON, ON THE DEATH OF HIS FATHER.

The breath no sooner left his father's body,
But that his wildness, mortified in him,
Seemed to die too: yea, at that very moment,
Consideration like an angel came,
And whipped the offending Adam out of him;
Leaving his body as a paradise,
To envelope and contain celestial spirits.

Hen. V. i. 1.

RARELY PERFECT.

Sin, that amends, is but patched with virtue.

Tw. Night, i. 5.

RELATIONS

OFTEN DANGEROUS.

The nearer bloody.

The near in blood,

Macb. ii. 3.

* An entrenchment thrown up.

RELIGION

OFTEN ASSUMED AS A CLOAK FOR CRIME.

Divinity of hell!

When devils will their blackest sins put on,
They do suggest at first with heavenly shows.

Othello, ii. 3.

We are oft to blame in this :

'T is too much proved, that, with devotion's visage,
And pious action, we do sugar o'er
The devil himself.

Ham. iii. 1.

In religion

What damn'd error, but some sober brow
Will bless it, and approve it with a text,
Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? M. of Ven. iii. 2.

REMEDIES

OFTEN IDLY LOOKED FOR FROM HEAVEN, WHEN THEY DEPEND ON OUR OWN EXERTIONS.

Our remedies oft in ourselves do lie,
Which we ascribe to heaven : the fated sky
Gives us free scope ; only, doth backward pull
Our slow designs, when we ourselves are dull.

All's Well, i. 1.

REPENTANCE

SHOULD BE FULL AND UNRESERVED.

Confess yourself to heaven ;
Repent what's past ; avoid what is to come ;
And do not spread the compost on the weeds,
To make them ranker.

Ham. iii. 4.

TOO OFTEN DELAYED, TILL EVIL DESIRE HAS CEASED.

The flesh being proud, desire doth fight with grace,

For there it revels ; and when that decays,
The guilty rebel for remission prays. R. of Lucrece, st. 102.

THAT SPRINGS FROM FEAR, IS MERELY SELFISHNESS.

But lest you do repent,
As that the sin hath brought you to this shame,—
Which sorrow is always toward ourselves, not heaven ;
Showing, we'd not spare heaven, as we love it,
But as we stand in fear. Mea. for Mea. ii. 3.

SHOULD BE ACCEPTED AT THE HANDS OF OUR FELLOW-MEN, AS HEAVEN ACCEPTS IT FROM US.

Who by repentance is not satisfied,
Is nor of heaven nor earth ; for these are pleased ;
By penitence the Eternal's wrath 's appeased.
Two Gent. of Ver. v. 4.

PENITENTIAL STRUGGLES OF A FRATRICIDE.

Oh, my offence is rank, it smells to heaven !
It hath the primal, eldest curse upon 't !
A brother's murder ! Pray—no, I cannot,
Though inclination be as sharp as will :
My stronger guilt defeats my strong intent ;
And, like a man to double business bound,
I stand in pause where I shall first begin,
And both neglect. What if this cursèd hand
Were thicker than itself with brother's blood ?
Is there not rain enough in the sweet heavens,
To wash it white as snow ? Whereto serves mercy
But to confront the visage of offence ?
And what 's in prayer, but this twofold force—
To be forestallèd ere we come to fall,
Or pardoned being down ? Then I 'll look up ;
My fault is past : but, oh, what form of prayer
Can serve my turn ? Forgive me my foul murder !
That cannot be ; since I am still possessed
Of those effects for which I did the murder—

My crown, mine own ambition, and my queen.
 May one be pardoned, and retain the offence?
 In the corrupted currents of this world,
 Offence's gilded hand may shove by* justice ;
 And oft 'tis seen, the wicked prize itself
 Buys out the law. But 'tis not so above :
 There is no shuffling ; there the action lies
 In his true nature ; and we ourselves compelled,
 Even to the teeth and forehead of our faults,
 To give in evidence. What then ? what rests ?
 Try what repentance can : what can it not ?
 Yet when can it, when one cannot repent ?
 Oh, wretched state ! O bosom, black as death !
 O limed† soul, that, struggling to be free,
 Art more engaged ! Help, angels ; make essay !
 Bow, stubborn knees ! and, heart, with strings of steel,
 Be soft as sinews of the newborn babe :
 All may be well ! Ham. iii. 3.

A DEATH-BED ONE, DESCRIBED.

I have spoke

With one that saw him die ; who did report,
 That very frankly he confessed his treasons ;
 Implored your highness' pardon ; and set forth
 A deep repentance : nothing in his life
 Became him, like the leaving it ; he died
 As one that had been studied in his death,
 To throw away the dearest thing he owed,‡
 As 't were a careless trifle. Macb. i. 4.

REPLETION

ITS SOOTHING EFFECTS.—PETITION NO MAN BEFORE HIS DINNER.
 He was not taken well ; he had not dined :

* Set aside.

† Ensnared, as with birdlime.

‡ Owned.

The veins unfilled, our blood is cold, and then
 We pout upon the morning, are unapt
 To give, or to forgive ; but when we have stuffed
 These pipes, and these conveyances of our blood,
 With wine and feeding, we have suppler souls
 Than in our priest-like fasts : therefore I 'll watch him
 Till he be dieted to my request,
 And then I 'll set upon him. Coriol. v. 1.

Discourse is heavy, fasting. Cymb. iii. 6.

REPROOF

TO BE ADMINISTERED TO YOUNG MEN, RATHER IN THEIR MIRTH, THAN IN THEIR MOODINESS.

His temper must be well observed :
 Chide him for faults, and do it reverently,
 When you perceive his blood inclined to mirth :
 But, being moody, give him line and scope ;
 Till that his passions, like a whale on ground,
 Confound themselves with working. Learn this,
 And thou shalt prove a shelter to thy friends ;
 A hoop of gold, to bind thy brothers in ;
 That the united vessel of their blood,
 Mingled with venom of suggestion,*
 (As, force perforce, the age will pour it in,)
 Shall never leak, though it do work as strong
 As aconitum† or rash gunpowder. 2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

When we rage, advice is often seen,
 By blunting us, to make our wits more keen.
A Lov. Comp. l. 159, 160.

REPUTATION

THE PRE-EMINENT VALUE OF A GOOD ONE.

Good name, in man and woman,

* Evil desire.

† Wolfsbane, poison.

Is the immediate jewel of their souls.

Who steals my purse, steals trash; 't is something, nothing;

'T was mine, 't is his, and has been slave to thousands :

But he that filches from me my good name,

Robbs me of that which not enriches him,

And makes me poor indeed !

Othello, iii. 3.

The purest treasure mortal times afford

Is spotless reputation ; that away,

Men are but gilded loam, or painted clay.

Rich. II. i. 1.

Oh, I have lost my reputation ! I have lost the immortal part, Sir, of myself, and what remains is bestial.

Othello, ii. 3.

THE MISERY OF A BAD ONE, UNJUSTLY ATTRIBUTED.

'T is better to be vile, than vile esteemed,

When not to be receives reproach of being ;

And the just pleasure lost, which is so deemed

Not by our feeling, but by others' seeing.

Sonnet 121.

OFTEN NO TRUE TEST OF A MAN'S REAL DESERTS.

Reputation is an idle and most false imposition ; oft got without merit, and lost without deserving.

Othello, ii. 3.

RESIGNATION

SUGGESTIONS, TO ASSIST IT.

When remedies are past, the griefs are ended,

By seeing the worst, which late on hopes depended.

To mourn a mischief that is past and gone,

Is the next way to draw new mischief on.

What cannot be preserved, when fortune takes,

Patience her injury a mockery makes.

The robbed that smiles, steals something from the thief ;

He robs himself, that spends a bootless* grief.

Othello, i. 3.

* Profitless.

He bears the sentence well, that nothing bears
 But the free comfort that from thence he hears ;
 But he bears both the sentence and the sorrow,
 That, to pay grief, must of poor patience borrow. Oth. i. 3.

What's gone, and what's past help, should be past grief. Wint. Tale, iii. 3.

Gnarling sorrow hath less power to bite
 The heart that mocks at it, and sets it light. Rich. II. i. 3.

Things without remedy,
 Should be without regard : what's done, is done.
Macb. iii. 2.

Let determined things, to destiny
 Hold unbewailed their way. Ant. & Cleop. iii. 6.

REVELLER

DEFINITION OF ONE.

One that converses more with the buttock of the night than with the forehead of the morning. Coriol. ii. 1.

REVENGE

LESS VALIANT THAN FORBEARANCE.

To revenge is no valour,* but to bear. Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

LESS RARE.

The rarer action is
 In virtue, than in vengeance. Tempest, v. 1.

REVERSES

HARDER TO BEAR THAN THE LOWEST STATE OF ILL-FORTUNE, WHICH HAS NOTHING TO FEAR, AND EVERYTHING TO HOPE.

To be worst,
 The lowest and most dejected thing in fortune,

* "Semper et infirmi est animi exiguique voluptas Ultio."—Juv. Sat. xiii. 190.

Stands still in esperance,* lives not in fear :
 The lamentable change is from the best ;
 The worst returns to laughter. K. Lear, iv. 1.

OF FORTUNE, SHOULD BE FEARED, AND PROVIDED AGAINST, IN AFFLUENCE.†

You should have feared false times, when you did feast ;
 Suspect still comes where an estate is least. T. of A. iv. 3.

FALLING MEN OFTEN BEAR THEM WITH FAINT HEART ; SO THAT EXTRICATION BECOMES IMPOSSIBLE.

Ebbing men, indeed,
 Most often do so near the bottom run,
 By their own fear or sloth. Tempest, ii. 1.

REVOLUTIONISTS

DEFINED.

Fickle changelings, and poor discontents,
 Which gape, and rub the elbow, at the news
 Of hurlyburly innovation.
 Moody beggars, starving for a time
 Of pellmell havoc and confusion. 1 Hen. IV. v. 1.

RICH

MEN, BEST SOFTENED TO THE POOR, BY TASTING SOME OF THEIR SUFFERINGS.

Poor naked wretches, wheresoe'er you are
 That bide the pelting of this pitiless storm,
 How shall your houseless heads and unfed sides,
 Your looped and windowed raggedness, defend you
 From seasons such as these ? Oh, I have ta'en

* Hope.

† "Sperat infestis, metuit secundis
 Alteram sortem bene præparatum
 Pectus."—Hor. Ode x. 13. lib. 2.

Too little care of this! Take physic, pomp;
 Expose thyself to feel what wretches feel;
 That thou may'st shake the superflux to them,
 And show the heavens more just. K. Lear, iii. 4.

RICHES

YIELD ONLY SUPERFICIAL HAPPINESS AND FRIENDSHIPS.

Who would not wish from wealth to be exempt,
 Since riches point to misery and contempt?
 Who'd be so mocked with glory? or to live
 But in a dream of friendship?
 To have his pomp, and all what state compounds,
 But only painted, like his varnished friends?
Tim. of Ath. iv. 2.

RIOTS

REBELLIOUS ONES CHARACTERIZED.

Base and abject routs,
 Led on by bloody youth, guarded* with rage,
 And countenanced by boys and beggary.
2 Hen. IV. iv. 1.

RIVULETS

THE OCEAN'S RATEPAYERS.

The petty streams that pay a daily debt
 To their salt sovereign. R. of Lucrece, st. 93.

RULERS

NOT TO SUCCUMB CONSTANTLY TO THE CLAMOURS OF THE PEOPLE.

Where gentry, title, wisdom,
 Cannot conclude but by the yea and no
 Of general ignorance; it must omit

* Faced; in allusion to the facings of a soldier's coat.

Real necessities, and give way the while
 To unstable slightness : purpose so barred, it follows,
 Nothing is done to purpose. Coriol. iii. 1.

RUMOUR

LIGHTLY BEGOTTEN, AND EASILY CIRCULATED.

Rumour is a pipe
 Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures ;
 And of so easy and so plain a stop,
 That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,
 The still-discordant wavering multitude,
 Can play upon it. 2 Hen. IV. Induction.

SADNESS

WHEN ACCOMPANIED WITH NERVOUS AND IMAGINARY FEARS.

So heavy sad,
 As—though, in thinking, on no thought I think—
 Makes me with heavy nothing faint and shrink.
Rich. II. ii. 2.

SALVATION

FOR NO MAN, IF GOD WERE "EXTREME TO MARK WHAT IS DONE AMISS."

In the course of justice, none of us
 Should see salvation. M. of Ven. iv. 1.

SCHOOLBOY

NOT TOO PARTIAL TO BOOKS.

The whining schoolboy, with his satchel,
 And shining morning face, creeping like snail,
 Unwillingly to school. As You Like It, ii. 5.

SCORN

PUBLIC ; THE BITTEREST OF ALL TRIALS TO A NOBLE NATURE.

Had it pleased heaven
 To try me with affliction ; had he rained
 All kinds of sores and shames on my bare head ;
 Steeped me in poverty to the very lips ;
 Given to captivity me and my utmost hopes ;
 I should have found in some part of my soul
 A drop of patience ; but, alas, to make me
 A fix'd figure, for the hand of scorn
 To point his slow, unmoving finger at ! Othello, iv. 2.

SCRIPTURE

OFTEN QUOTED, WITH A WRONG OBJECT AND FALSE APPLICATION.

In religion,
 What damn'd error, but some sober brow
 Will bless it, and approve it with a text,
 Hiding the grossness with fair ornament ?
M. of Ven. iii. 2.

The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose.
M. of Ven. i. 3.

SEA

CHARACTERIZED.

The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head
 Spits in the face of heaven. M. of Ven. ii. 6.

A ROUGH ONE.

Have I not heard the sea, puffed up with winds,
 Rage like an angry boar, enshafed with sweat ?
Tam. the Shrew, i. 2.

In the visitations of the winds,
 Who take the ruffian billows by the top,

Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them
 With deafening clamours in the slippery clouds,
 That, with the hurly, death itself awakes. 2 Hen. IV. iii. 1.

THE BLACK SEA HAS NO TIDES.

The Pontic sea,
 Whose icy current and compulsive course
 Ne'er feels retiring ebb, but keeps due on
 To the Propontic and the Hellespont. Othello, iii. 3.

SEASON

GIVES TO EACH THING ITS CHARACTERISTIC AND PARTICULAR EXCELLENCE.

Nothing, I see, is good without respect ;*
 The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark,
 When neither is attended ; and, I think,
 The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
 When every goose is cackling, would be thought
 No better a musician than the wren.
 How many things by season seasoned are
 To their right praise and true perfection ! M. of Ven. v.

EVERYTHING HAS ITS SEASON.

Let Hercules himself do what he may,
 The cat will mew, and dog will have his day. Ham. v. 1.

SECRECY

EVERY MAN SHOULD RESERVE SOME OF HIS THOUGHTS.

Who shall be true to us,
 When we are so unsecret to ourselves ? Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.

* Reference to circumstances.

OF A LOVER ; COMPARED TO THE CLOSED BUD.

He, his own affections' counsellor,
Is to himself so secret and so close,
So far from sounding and discovery,
As is the bud bit with an envious worm,
Ere he can spread his sweet leaves to the air,
Or dedicate his beauty to the sun. Rom. & Jul. i. 1.

She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek. Tw. Night, ii. 4.

SECURITY

IN THE SENSE OF A BLIND AND IDLE CONFIDENCE IN THE FUTURE ; IS DANGEROUS, BY PUTTING MEN OFF THEIR GUARD.

The wound of peace is surety,
Surety secure ; but modest doubt is called
The beacon of the wise, the tent* that searches
To the bottom of the worst. Tr. & Cress. ii. 2.

Blind fear, that, seeing† reason leads, finds safer footing
than blind reason stumbling without fear : to fear the worst often cures the worst. Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.

You all know, security
Is mortal's chiefest enemy. Macb. iii. 5.

SEDUCER

A DISGRACE TO HUMANITY.

Let fair humanity abhor the deed
That spots and stains love's modest snow-white weed.
R. of Lucrece, st. 28.

* Lint, applied to a wound.

† Quicksighted, vigilant.

SELF-DECEIT

MAKES MEN THEIR OWN TRAITORS AND BETRAYERS.

What things are we? Merely our own traitors: and as in the common course of all treasons, we still see them reveal themselves, till they attain to their abhorred ends; so he, that in this action contrives against his own nobility, in his proper stream o'erflows himself.* All's Well, iv. 3.

SELF-DENIAL

A GREAT VICTORY.†

Brave conquerors! for so you are
That war against your own affections,
And the huge army of the world's desires. L. L. Lost, i. 1.

SELF-LOVE

A BAR TO ALL OTHER.

She cannot love,
Nor take no shape nor project of affection,
She is so self-endear'd. Much Ado, iii. 1.

SELF-NEGLECT

CAUTION AGAINST IT; AS EXHIBITED IN THE OMISSION OF DUTIES.

Oh, beware!
Those wounds heal ill, that men do give themselves:
Omission to do what is necessary
Seals a commission to a blank of danger;
And danger, like an ague, subtly taints
Even then when we sit iply in the sun. Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

* Swamps himself by his own conduct.

† "Latius regnes avidum domando
Spiritem, quàm si Libyam remotis
Gadibus jungas, et uterque Pœnus
Serviat uni."—Hor. Od. ii. 9. lib. 2.

A GREATER SIN THAN SELF-LOVE.

Self-love is not so vile a sin

As self-neglecting.

*Hen. V. ii. 4SELF-PRAISE

NO RECOMMENDATION.

The worthiness of praise disdains his worth,
 If that the praised himself bring the praise forth.

Tr. & Cress. i. 3.

PREJUDICES THE EFFECT OF A GOOD DEED.

Whatever praises itself but in the deed, devours the deed in the praise.

Tr. & Cress. ii. 3.

IS, IN PRACTICE, SELF-DETRACTION.

Then we wound our modesty, and make foul the clearness of our deservings, when of ourselves we publish them.

*All's Well, i. 3.SELF-TRUST

NO MAN TRUE WITHOUT IT.

Where is truth, if there be no self-trust?

*R. of Lucrece, st. 23.SERVANTS

OFTEN INJURE THEIR MASTERS, BY GOSSIPING.

Many a man's tongue shakes out his master's undoing.

*All's Well, ii. 4.SERVICE

DEPENDS FOR ITS REWARD, MORE ON PUBLIC OPINION THAN ITS OWN MERITS.

This service is not service, so being done,
 But being so allowed.

Cymb. iii. 3.

THE MERIT OF IT TOO OFTEN MISAPPLIED BY THE WORLD.

The merit of service is seldom attributed to the true and exact performer. All's Well, iii. 6.

TRUE ; A VILLAIN'S VIEW OF IT.

You shall mark

Many a courteous and knee-crooking knave,
That, doting on his own obsequious bondage,
Wears out his time just like his master's ass,
For nought but provender ; and, when he 's old, cashiered :
Whip me such honest knaves. Others there are,
Who, trimmed in forms and visages of duty,
Keep yet their hearts attending on themselves ;
And, throwing but shows of service on their lords, [coats,
Do well thrive by them, and, when they have lined their
Do themselves homage : these fellows have some souls.

Othello, i. 1.

SHEEP

REQUIRE THE CONSTANT PRESENCE OF THE SHEPHERD.

Indeed, a sheep doth very often stray
An if the shepherd be awhile away. Two Gent. of Ver. i. 1.

SHEPHERD

THE QUIET HAPPINESS OF HIS LIFE.

O God ! methinks it were a happy life,
To be no better than a homely swain ;
To sit upon a hill—
To carve out dials quaintly, point by point,
Thereby to see the minutes how they run ;
How many make the hour full complete ;
How many hours bring about the day ;
How many days will finish up the year ;
How many years a mortal man may live.

When this is known, then to divide the times :
 So many hours must I tend my flock ;
 So many hours must I take my rest ;
 So many hours must I contemplate ;
 So many hours must I sport myself ;
 So many days my ewes have been with young ;
 So many weeks ere the poor fools will yeau ;
 So many years ere I shall shear the fleece :
 So minutes, hours, days, weeks, months, and years,
 Passed over to the end they were created,
 Would bring white hairs unto a quiet grave.
 Ah, what a life were this ! how sweet, how lovely !

3 Hen. VI. ii. 5.

HIS LIFE PREFERABLE TO THAT OF A KING.

Gives not the hawthorn-bush a sweeter shade
 To shepherds, looking on their silly sheep,
 Than doth a rich embroidered canopy
 To kings, that fear their subjects' treachery ?
 Oh yes, it doth ; a thousandfold it doth.
 And to conclude ; the shepherd's homely curds,
 His cold thin drink out of his leathern bottle,
 His wonted sleep under a fresh tree's shade,
 All which secure and sweetly he enjoys,
 Is far beyond a prince's delicacies,*
 His viands sparkling in a golden cup,
 His body couchèd in a curious bed,
 When care, mistrust, and treason wait on him.

SHIP

THE COURSE OF ONE, COMPARED TO THAT OF A PRODIGAL.

How like a younker, or a prodigal,
 The scarfèd† bark puts from her native bay,
 Hugged and embracèd by the strumpet wind !
 How like the prodigal doth she return :

* Delicacies.

† Decorated with flags, colours, etc.

With over-weathered ribs, and ragged sails ;
Lean, rent, and beggared by the strumpet wind !

SHIPWRECK

QUAINT DESCRIPTION OF ONE.

Oh, the most piteous cry of the poor souls ! sometimes to see 'em, and not to see 'em : now the ship boring the moon with her mainmast ; and anon swallowed with yest and froth, as you'd thrust a cork into a hoghead.

SINCERITY

Such harmless creatures have a true respect
To talk in deeds, while others saucily
Promise more speed, but do it leisurely :
Even so, this pattern of the worn-out age

Pawned honest looks, but laid no words to gage.

SLEEP

ITS GOOD OFFICES TO MAN, AS A RENOVATOR OF MIND AND BODY.

Innocent sleep ;

Sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care,*
The death of each day's life, sore labour's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast.

Macb. ii. 2.

FAVOURS THE YOUNG RATHER THAN THE OLD.

Care keeps his watch in every old man's eye ;
And where care lodges, sleep will never lie :
But where unbruised youth with unstuffed brain
Doth couch his limbs, there golden sleep doth reign.

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

Boy! Lucius! Fast asleep? It is no matter ;
Enjoy the honey-heavy dew of slumber ;
Thou hast no figures nor no fantasies,
Which busy care draws in the brains of men ;
Therefore thou sleep'st so sound.†

M. N. Dream, iii. 2.

ADDRESSED BY A CAREWORN AND WAKEFUL KING.

Sleep, gentle sleep,
Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down,
And steep my senses in forgetfulness ?
Why rather, sleep, liest thou in smoky cribs,
Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee,
And hushed with buzzing night-flies to thy slumber,
Than in the perfumed chambers of the great,
Under the canopies of costly state,
And lulled with sounds of sweetest melody ?
O thou dull god, why liest thou with the vile,
In loathsome beds ; and leav'st the kingly couch
A watch-case to a common 'larum bell ?
Wilt thou upon the high and giddy mast
Seal up the ship-boy's eyes, and rock his brains
In cradle of the rude imperious surge,
And in the visitations of the winds,

Who take the ruffian billows by the top,
 Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them
 With deafening clamours in the slippery clouds,
 That, with the hurly, death itself awakes—
 Canst thou, O partial sleep, give thy repose
 To the wet seaboy in an hour so rude,
 And, in the calmest and most stillest night,
 With all appliances and means to boot,
 Deny it to a king? Then, happy low,* lie down!
 Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

SOLDIER

HIS ORDINARY CHARACTERISTICS.

 Seeking the bubble reputation
 Even in the cannon's mouth. As You Like It, ii. 5.

THE HARDSHIPS AND DISAPPOINTMENTS OF HIS OCCUPATION.

The toil o' the war,
 A pain that only seems to seek out danger
 I' the name of fame and honour ; which dies i' the search ;
 And hath as oft a slanderous epitaph,
 As record of fair act ; nay, many times,
 Doth ill deserve by doing well ; what's worse,
 Must courtesy at the censure. Cymb. iii. 2.

USUALLY ILL-PAID.

What would you have me ? go to the wars, would you ?
 where a man may serve seven years for the loss of a leg, and have not money enough in the end to buy him a wooden one ? Pericles, iv. 5.

SHOULD PREPARE HIMSELF FOR HIS END BEFORE BATTLE.

Every subject's duty is the king's ; but every subject's soul is his own. Therefore should every soldier in the wars do as every sick man in his bed—wash every mote out of his conscience ; and dying so, death is to him advantage ; or not dying, the time was blessedly lost, wherein such preparation was gained : and, in him that escapes, it were not sin to think, that making God so free an offer,
 He let him outlive that day to see his greatness, and to teach others how they should prepare. Hen. V. iv. 1.

SONGS

THE OLD ONES, SIMPLER AND MORE AFFECTING THAN THE MODERN.

That old and antique song we heard last night,
 Methought it did relieve my passion much ;

More than light airs and recollected* terms
Of these most brisk and giddy-pacëd times.

As You Like It, ii. 4.

SOUL

THE FOLLY OF MAKING IT THE BODY'S SLAVE, TO THE DAMAGE
OF ITS HIGHER DESTINIES IN A FUTURE STATE.

Poor soul, the centre of my sinful earth,
Fooled by those rebel powers that thee array,
Why dost thou pine within, and suffer dearth,
Painting thy outward walls so costly gay?
Why so large cost, having so short a lease,
Dost thou upon thy fading mansion spend!
Shall worms, inheritors of this excess,
Eat up thy charge? Is this thy body's end?
Then, soul, live thou upon thy servant's loss,
And let that pine to aggravate thy store;
Buy terms divine in selling hours of dross;
Within be fed, without be rich no more:
So shalt thou feed on death, that feeds on men;
And, death once dead, there's no more dying then.

 Gallow ‡ the very wanderers of the dark,
 And make them keep their caves. Since I was man,
 Such sheets of fire, such bursts of horrid thunder,
 Such groans of horrid wind and rain, I never Remember to have heard: man's nature cannot carry
 The affliction nor the fear. Let the great gods,
 That keep this dreadful pother o'er our heads,
 Find out their enemies now. Tremble, thou wretch,
 That hast within thee undivulg'd crimes,
 Unwhipped of justice. Hide thee, thou bloody hand;

STUDY

ITS END AND OBJECT, DEFINED.

Q. What is the end of study? let me know.
 A. Why, that to know, which else we should not know.
 Q. Things hid and barred, you mean, from common sense?
 A. Ay, that is study's godlike recompense. L. L. Lost, i. 1.

 As motion and long-during action tires
 The sinewy vigour of the traveller. L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

SATIRICAL VIEW OF IT ; BASED ON ITS INJURIOUS EFFECTS UPON
 THE EYES, AND ITS ENDLESS AND UNSATISFACTORY NATURE.

All delights are vain ; but that most vain,
 Which with pain purchased doth inherit pain :
 As, painfully to pore upon a book
 To seek the light of truth ; while truth the while Doth falsely blind the eyesight of his look :
 Light, † seeking light, doth light of light † beguile ;
 So, ere you find where light in darkness lies,
 Your light grows dark by losing of your eyes.

* Delight in.

† Of the eye.

Study is like the heaven's glorious sun,
 That will not be deep searched with saucy looks.

 Have no more profit of their shining nights,
 Than those that walk, and wot ‡ not what they are.
 Too much to know, is to know naught but fame ;
 And every godfather can give a name. L. L. Lost, i. 1.

OFTEN PURSUED, TO THE NEGLECT OF PRIOR DUTIES ; AND THUS FAILS OF SATISFACTION.

Study evermore is overshot :
 While it doth study to have what it would,
 It doth forget to do the thing it should :
 And when it hath the thing it hunteth most,
 'T is won, as towns with fire ; so won, so lost.
L. L. Lost, i. 1.

Wherein we play in. As You Like It, ii. 5.

SUICIDE

THE MEDITATIVE SCRUPLES AND APPREHENSIONS OF ONE WHO IS HESITATING ABOUT ITS COMMISSION.

To be, or not to be ; that is the question :
Whether 't is nobler in the mind, to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune ;
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And, by opposing, end them ? To die—to sleep ;—
No more ;—and, by a sleep, to say we end
The heart-ache, and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to ; 't is a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To die—to sleep ;
To sleep ! perchance to dream : ay, there 's the rub ;
For in that sleep of death what dreams may come,
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
Must give us pause. There 's the respect,*
That makes calamity of so long life :
For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
The pangs of despised love, the laws delay,
The insolence of office, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin—who would fardels† bear,

* Consideration.

† Burdens.

To grunt and sweat under a weary life ;
 But that the dread of something after death—
 The undiscovered country, from whose bourn
 No traveller returns—puzzles the will ;
 And makes us rather bear those ills we have,
 Than fly to others that we know not of ?
 Thus conscience does make cowards of us all ;
 And thus the native hue of resolution
 Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought ;
 And enterprises of great pith and moment,
 With this regard* their currents turn awry,
 And lose the name of action.

Lifts up his burning head, each under eye
Doth homage to his new-appearing sight,
Serving with looks his sacred majesty;
And having climbed the steep-up heavenly hill,
Resembling strong youth in his middle age,
Yet mortal looks adore his beauty still,
Attending on his golden pilgrimage;
But when from highmost pitch, with weary car,

Rich. II. iii. 4.

TAVERNS

THEIR FREQUENTERS, BEGGARED IN BRAIN AND PURSE.

Tavern bills ; which are often the sadness of parting, as the procuring of mirth : you come in faint for want of meat, depart reeling with too much drink ; sorry that you have paid too much, and sorry that you are paid too much ; purse and brain both empty ; the brain heavier for being too light, the purse too light, being drawn of heaviness.

Cymb. v. 4.

TEAR

ITS RAINBOW HUES.

What's the matter,
 That this distempered messenger of wet,
 The many-coloured Iris,* rounds thine eye ?

All's Well, i. 3.

* Rainbow.

TEARS

FOR THE HAPPY DEAD, ARE REASON'S REJOICING.

For, though fond nature bids us all lament,
Yet nature's tears are reason's merriment.

Rom. & Jul. iv. 5.

OF JOY, MARK A KIND AND TRUTHFUL DISPOSITION.

A kind overflow of kindness: there are no faces truer than those that are so washed. How much better is it to weep at joy, than to joy at weeping!

Much Ado, i. 1.

OF A WEEPING BEAUTY.

Here overcome, as one full of despair,
She vailed her eyelids, who, like sluices, stopped
The crystal tide that from her two cheeks fair
In the sweet channel of her bosom dropped:
But through the flood-gates breaks the silver rain,
And with his strong course opens them again.
O, how her eyes and tears did lend and borrow!
Her eyes seen in the tears, tears in her eye;
Both crystals, where they viewed each other's sorrow;
Sorrow, that friendly sighs sought still to dry;
But like a stormy day, now wind, now rain,
Sighs dry her cheeks, tears make them wet again.

Ven. & Adon. st. 160, 161.

Round about her tear-distain'd eye
Blue circles streamed, like rainbows in the sky:
These water-galls in her dim element
Foretell new storms to those already spent.

R. of Lucrece, st. 227.

OF AN OLD MAN.

His tears run down his beard, like winter's drops
From eaves of reeds.*

Tempest, v.

* Thatch.

OF A QUEEN.

And now and then an ample tear trilled down
 Her delicate cheek : it seemed, she was a queen
 Over her passion ; who, most rebel-like,
 Sought to be queen o'er her. K. Lear, iv. 3.

CROCODILE ONES COMMON TO HYPOCRITES.

Trust not those cunning waters of his eyes,
 For villany is not without such rheum ;
 And he, long traded in it, makes it seem
 Like rivers of remorse and innocency. K. John, iv. 3.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE EXPONENTS OF NATURE.

I forbid my tears : but yet
 It is our trick ; nature her custom holds,
 Let shame say what it will. Ham. iv. 7.

ARE CATCHING, AMONG THE SENSITIVE.

Passion, I see, is catching ; for mine eyes,
 Seeing those beads of sorrow stand in thine,
 Began to water. Jul. Cæs. iii. 1.

OF ONE NOT USED TO WEEP, ARE COPIOUS, WHEN HE YIELDS.

Whose subdued eyes,
 Albeit unused to the melting mood,
 Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees
 Their medicinal gum. Othello, v. 2.

TEMPER

OF ONE SLOW TO ANGER, ILLUSTRATED.

Oh, you are yoked with a lamb,
 That carries anger, as the flint bears fire ;
 Who, much enforced, shows a hasty spark,
 And straight is cold again. Jul. Cæs. iv. 3.

TEMPERAMENTS

OF MEN, MADE VARIOUS BY NATURE.

Nature hath made strange fellows in her time ;
 Some that will evermore peep through their eyes,
 And laugh, like parrots at a bag-piper ;
 And other of such vinegar aspect,
 That they 'll not show their teeth in way of smile,
 Though Nestor swear the jest be laughable. M. of Ven. i. 1.

TEMPERANCE

IN YOUTH, THE BEST WAY OF PROMOTING A HEALTHY OLD-AGE.

Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty ;
 For in my youth I never did apply
 Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood ;
 Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
 The means of weakness and debility :
 Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
 Frosty, but kindly. As You Like It, ii. 3.

TEMPEST

A VIOLENT ONE, SUGGESTS HEAVEN'S WRATH TO MEN.

I have seen tempests, when the scolding winds
 Have rived the knotty oak ; and I have seen
 The ambitious ocean swell, and rage, and foam,
 To be exalted with the threatening clouds :
 But never till to-night—never till now,
 Did I go through a tempest dropping fire.
 Either there is a civil strife in heaven ;
 Or else the world, too saucy with the gods,
 Incenses them to send destruction. Jul. Cæs. i. 3.

SHOULD INSPIRE MEN WITH RELIGIOUS AWE.

It is the part of men to fear and tremble,
 When the most mighty gods, by tokens, send
 Such dreadful heralds to astonish us. Jul. Cæs. i. 3.

TEMPTATION

ITS FIRST APPROACHES TO BE AVOIDED.*

Keep you in the rear of your affection,
Out of the shot and danger of desire.
The chariest maid is prodigal enough,
If she unmask her beauty to the moon. Ham. i. 3.

MEN SOMETIMES TEMPT THEMSELVES, BY DALLYING WITH THEIR OWN POWERS.

Something may be done which we will not :
And sometimes we are devils to ourselves,
When we will tempt the frailty of our powers,
Presuming on their changeful potency. Tr. & Cress. iv. 4.

A SUBTLE ONE.

Most dangerous
Is that temptation, that doth goad us on
To sin in loving virtue. Mea. for Mea. ii. 2.

THINKING

MAINLY INFLUENCES OUR ESTIMATE OF THINGS, RATHER THAN THE THINGS THEMSELVES.

There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so. Ham. ii. 2.

THOUGHT

ITS RAPIDITY OF FLIGHT.

Nimble thought can jump both sea and land,
As soon as think the place where he would be. Sonnet 44.

THOUGHTLESSNESS

A RESULT OF EXCESS, AND ABUSE OF THE GIFTS OF NATURE.

Dry up thy marrows, vines, and plough-torn leas ;

* "Principiis obsta : sero medicina paratur Cum mala per longas convaluere moras."—Ovid. Met.

Whereof ingrateful man, with liquorish draughts,
 And morsels unctuous, greases his pure mind,
 That from it all consideration slips. Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

THOUGHTS

OF MEN ; WHETHER TENDING TOWARDS AMBITION, RELIGION, OR CONTENTMENT, ARE USUALLY VAIN AND UNSATISFACTORY.

A generation of still-breeding thoughts ;
 And these same thoughts people this little world,
 For no thought is contented. The better sort—
 As thoughts of things divine—are intermixed
 With scruples, and do set the Word itself
 Against the Word :
 As thus ; “ Come, little ones : ” and then again ;
 It is as hard to come, as for a camel
 To thread the postern of a needle’s eye.”
 Thoughts tending to ambition, they do plot
 Unlikely wonders ; how these vain weak nails
 May tear a passage through the flinty ribs
 Of this hard world, my ragged prison walls ;
 And, for* they cannot, die in their own pride.
 Thoughts tending to content, flatter themselves ;
 That they are not the first of fortune’s slaves ;
 Nor shall not be the last ; like silly beggars,
 Who, sitting in the stocks, refuge their shame—
 That many have, and others must, sit there :
 And in this thought they find a kind of ease,
 Bearing their own misfortune on the back
 Of such as have before endured the like. Rich. II. v. 5.

THUNDER

CHARACTERIZED.

The thunder ;—

* Forasmuch as.

That deep and dreadful organ pipe. Tempest, iii. 3.

Heaven's artillery. Tam. the Shrew, i. 2.

TIME

NICKNAMED.

Thou ceaseless lackey to eternity. R. of Lucrece, st. 139.

Old time, the clock-setter, that bald sexton time.
K. John, iii. 1.

ITS STEADY PROGRESS, AND DESTROYING EFFECTS.

Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
So do our minutes hasten to their end ;
Each changing place with that which goes before ;
In sequent toil all forwards do contend.
Nativity, once in the main* of light,
Crawls to maturity ; wherewith being crowned,
Crooked eclipses 'gainst his glory fight ;
And time, that gave, doth now his gift confound.
Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth,
And delves the parallels in beauty's brow ;
Feeds on the rarities of nature's truth,
And nothing stands but for his scythe to mow.† Sonnet 60

ITS POWER OF ALTERING THINGS.

Reckoning time, whose millioned accidents
Creep in 'twixt vows, and change decrees of kings,
Tan sacred beauty, blunt the sharp'st intents,
Divert strong minds to the course of altering things.
Sonnet 115.

EXHIBITS ITS PROGRESS, BY ITS EFFECTS.

Thy glass will show thee how thy beauties wear,

* Great body.

† "Damnosa quid non imminuit dies?"—Hor. vi. 45. lib. 3.

Thy dial how thy precious minutes waste ;
 The vacant leaves thy mind's imprint will bear,
 And of this book this learning may'st thou taste.
 The wrinkles which thy glass will surely show,
 Of mouth'd graves will give thee memory ;
 Thou by thy dial's shady stealth may'st know
 Time's thievish progress to eternity.

Sonnet 77.

ITS VARIOUS OPERATIONS AND RESULTS.

Time's glory is to calm contending kings,
 To unmask falsehood, and bring truth to light ;
 To stamp the seal of time in aged things,
 To wake the morn, and sentinel the night ;
 To wrong the wronger till he render right ;
 To ruate proud buildings with thy hours,
 And smear with dust their glittering golden towers :

To fill with wormholes stately monuments ;
 To feed oblivion with decay of things ;
 To blot old books, and alter their contents ;
 To pluck the quills from ancient ravens' wings ;
 To dry the old oak's sap, and cherish springs ;
 To spoil antiquities of hammered steel ;
 And turn the giddy round of fortune's wheel :

To show the beldam, daughters of her daughter ;
 To make the child a man, the man a child ;
 To slay the tiger, that doth live by slaughter ;
 To tame the unicorn and lion wild ;
 To mock the subtle, in themselves beguiled ;
 To cheer the ploughman with increaseful crops ;
 And waste huge stones with little water-drops.

R. of Lucrece, st. 135, 136, 137.

WHIMSICAL ACCOUNT OF THE VARIOUS PACES AT WHICH IT SEEMS TO TRAVEL WITH DIFFERENT PERSONS.

Time travels in divers paces with divers persons. I'll tell you who time ambles withal, who time trots withal, who time gallops withal, and who he stands still withal. Marry, he trots hard with a young maid, between the contract of her marriage, and the day it is solemnized: if the interim be but a se'nnight,* time's pace is so hard that it seems the length of seven years. He ambles, with a priest that lacks Latin, and a rich man that hath not the gout: for the one sleeps easily, because he cannot study; and the other lives merrily, because he feels no pain: the one lacking the burden of lean and wasteful learning; the other knowing no burden of heavy tedious penury. He gallops, with the thief to the gallows; for though he go as softly as foot can fall, he thinks himself too soon there. He stays still, with lawyers in the vacation; for they sleep between term and term, and then they perceive not how time moves.

As You Like It, iii. 2.

AN ABSOLUTE MONARCH.

Time's the king of men,
For he's their parent, and he is their grave,
And gives them what he will, not what they crave.

Pericles, ii. 3.

DEVELOPES AND DETERMINES ALL THINGS.

The extreme parts of time extremely form
All causes to the purpose of his speed;
And often, at his very loose,† decides
That which long process could not arbitrate.

L. L. Lost, v. 2.

ITS WORK AMONG THE SEASONS.‡

To hideous winter, and confounds him there ;
 Sap-checked with frost, and lusty leaves quite gone,
 Beauty o'er-snowed, and bareness everywhere. Sonnet 5.

ITS WORK ON THE HUMAN COUNTENANCE.

Careful hours, with Time's deform'd hand,
 Have written strange defeatures in my face.
Com. of Err. v.

When forty winters shall besiege thy brow,
 And dig deep trenches in thy beauty's field. Sonnet 2.

Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth,
 And delves the parallels in beauty's brow. Sonnet 60.

THE NEGLECT OF IT IN YOUTH, INVOLVES AN UNFURNISHED
OLD-AGE.

Myself have been an idle truant,
 Omitting the sweet benefit of time,
 To clothe mine age with angel-like perfection.
Two Gent. of Ver. ii. 4.

TOMORROW

STEALTHILY MULTIPLIED, MAKES UP OUR LIFE.

Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow,
 Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,
 To the last syllable of recorded time ;
 And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
 The way to dusty death. Macb. v. 5.

TONGUE

CHARACTERIZED.

TOOTH-ACHE

DEFIES PHILOSOPHY.

I pray thee, peace ; I will be flesh and blood ;

For there was never yet philosopher
That could endure the tooth-ache patiently. Much Ado, v. 1.

TRAITORS

HYPOCRITICAL ONES ; WHO VEIL THEIR TREASON UNDER THE CLOAK OF RELIGION.

Devils, that suggest by treasons,
Do botch and bungle up damnation
With patches, colours, and with forms, being fetched
From glistening semblances of piety. Hen. V. ii. 2.

THEIR PLAUSIBILITY OF SELF-DEFENCE.

Thus do all traitors ;
If their purgation did consist in words,
They are as innocent as grace itself. You Like It, i. 3.

TRANSMIGRATION

OF SOULS, THE PYTHAGOREAN THEORY, CONDEMNED.

Q. What is the opinion of Pythagoras, concerning wild-fowl ?

A. That the soul of our grandam might haply inhabit a bird.

Q. What thinkest thou of his opinion ?

A. I think nobly of the soul, and no way approve his opinion. Tw. Night, iv. 2.

TRAVEL

EXPANDS THE MIND AND IDEAS.

Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits.
Two Gent. of Ver. i. 1.

TRAVELLER

ADVICE TO A YOUNG ONE ON SETTING OUT.

Give thy thoughts no tongue,
Nor any unproportioned thought his act :

Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar :
 The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
 Grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steel ;
 But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
 Of each new-hatched, unfledged comrade : beware
 Of entrance to a quarrel ; but, being in,
 Bear it, that the opposer may beware of thee :
 Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice :
 Take each man's censure,* but reserve thy judgment :
 Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
 But not expressed in fancy ; rich, not gaudy ;
 For the apparel oft proclaims the man :
 Neither a borrower, nor a lender be ;
 For loan oft loses both itself and friend ;
 And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.†
 This, above all : to thine own self be true ;
 And it must follow, as the night to day,
 Thou canst not then be false to any man.

Ham. i. 3.

A YOUNG ONE ; APT TO RELY MORE ON HIS OWN JUDGMENT, THAN ON THE EXPERIENCE OF OTHERS.

I was then a young traveller : rather shunned to go even with what I heard, than in my every action to be guided by others' experiences.

Cymb. i. 5.

ONE WHO ENRICHES HIS EYES, AT THE EXPENSE OF HIS POCKET.

A traveller ! By my faith you have great reason to be sad. I fear, you have sold your own lands, to see other men's ; then, to have seen much, and to have nothing, is to have rich eyes and poor hands.

As You Like It, iv. 1.

* Opinion.

† Economy.

TRAVELLERS

APT TO RETURN DISCONTENTED WITH THEIR OWN COUNTRY.

Farewell, monsieur traveller. Look, you lisp, and wear strange suits; disable* all the benefits of your own country; be out of love with your nativity, and almost chide God for making you that countenance you are; or I will scarce think you have swam in a gondola.†

As You Like It, iv. 1.

USUALLY SLEEP SOUNDLY.

As fast locked up in sleep as guiltless labour,
When it lies starkly in a traveller's bones.

Mea. for Mea. iv. 2.

TREASON

TWIN-BROTHER TO MURDER.

Treason and murder ever keep together,
As two yoke-devils sworn to either's purpose,
Working so grossly in a natural cause,
That admiration did not whoop at them.

Hen. V. ii. 2.

NEVER TO BE TRUSTED, EVEN AFTER RECANTATION.

Treason is but trusted like the fox;
Who ne'er so tame, so cherished, and locked up,
Will have a wild trick of his ancestors.

1 Hen. IV. v. 2.

HIGH; SELDOM SUCCESSFUL.

There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would,
Acts little of his will.

Ham. iv. 5.

TRUTH

HOW REGARDED BY THE WORLD.

Simple truth, miscalled simplicity.

Sonnet 66.

* Depreciate.

And simpler than the infancy of truth.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.

ILLUSTRATIVE COMPARISONS.

As true as steel, as plantage* to the moon,
As sun to day, as turtle to her mate,
As iron to adamant, as earth to the centre.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.

TURNING-POINT

IN LIFE; ONE FOR EVERY MAN, IF HE WILL TAKE ADVANTAGE
OF IT.

There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune ;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries ;
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures.

Jul. Cæs. iv. 3.

Men at some time are masters of their fates.

Jul. Cæs. i. 2.

TYRANTS

THEIR EVER-INCREASING FEARS.

Tyrants' fears

Thou know'st this—
'Tis time to fear, when tyrants seem to kiss.

Pericles, i. 2.

* Herbage, plants, etc. subject to the influence of the moon.

UNCERTAINTY

MORE TRYING TO BEAR THAN KNOWN LOSS.

They that lose half, with greater patience bear it,
Than they whose whole is swallowed in confusion.

R. of Lucrece, st. 166.

UNTHRIFTINESS

NO SYMPATHY FOR IT, IN THE WORLD.

What man didst thou ever know unthrift, that was beloved after his means?

Tim. of Ath. iv. 3.

USE

AND ABUSE.

Naught so vile that on the earth doth live,
But to the earth some special good doth give;
Nor aught so good, but, strained from that fair use,
Revolts from true birth, stumbling on abuse:
Virtue itself turns vice, being misapplied;
And vice sometime's by action dignified.*

Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

BEGETS A HABIT.

How use doth breed a habit in a man!

Two Gent. of Ver. v. 4.

SOON SUPERINDUCES A HABIT OF DOING GOOD ACTIONS, NO LESS THAN BAD ONES; AND THUS ASSISTS MEN IN REFORMATION AFTER THE FIRST EFFORT HAS BEEN MADE.

That monster, custom, who all sense doth eat
Of habit's devil, † is angel yet in this;—
That to the use of actions fair and good
He likewise gives a frock or livery,

* "Fallit enim vitium specie virtutis."—Juv. Sat. xiv. 109.

† Who destroys in us the keen sense of habit's evil consequences.

That aptly is put on. Refrain tonight ;
 And that shall lend a kind of easiness
 To the next abstinence ; the next more easy ;
 For use can almost change the stamp of nature,
 And either curb the devil, or throw him out
 With wondrous potency.

Ham. iii. 4.

USURERS

CHARACTERIZED.

Bawds between gold and want.

Tim. of Ath. ii. 2.

USURPATION

VIOLENTLY BEGUN, MUST BE AS VIOLENTLY MAINTAINED.

A sceptre snatched with an unruly hand,
 Must be as boisterously maintained as gained :
 And he that stands upon a slippery place,
 Makes nice of no vile hold to stay him up.

K. John, iii. 4.

VAINGLORY

AN INSTANCE OF IT ; AS EXHIBITED IN A MAN.

Why, he stalks up and down like a peacock—a stride and a stand : ruminates like an hostess, that hath no arithmetic but her brain to set down her reckoning : bites his lips with a politic regard,* as who should say, there were wit in his head, an 't would out.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 3.

VALOUR

MORAL, IS THE TRUEST ; WHICH IS LONG-SUFFERING IN INJURIES, AND FORGIVING.

He's truly valiant, that can wisely suffer
 The worst that man can breathe ; and make his wrongs

* A view to look knowing.

His outsides ; wear them like his raiment, carelessly ;
 And ne'er prefer his injuries to his heart,
 To bring it into danger. Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

PERSONAL, IS INCREASED BY WANT, AND DIMINISHED BY ABUNDANCE.

Famine,
 Ere clean it o'erthrow nature, makes it valiant.
 Plenty and peace breed cowards ; hardness ever
 Of hardness is mother. Cymb. iii. 6.

IN A DESPERATE CAUSE IS FOOL-HARDINESS.

Manhood is called foolery, when it stands
 Against a falling fabric. Coriol. iii. 1.

OF HEART, WITHOUT HEAD, DESTROYS ITSELF.

When valour preys on reason,
 It eats the sword it fights with. Ant. & Cleop. iii. 11.

REVENGE IS NONE.

To revenge is no valour, but to bear. Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

QUARRELLING IS A BASTARD KIND.

Your words have took such pains, as if they laboured
 To bring manslaughter into form, set quarrelling
 Upon the head of valour ; which, indeed,
 Is valour misbegot, and came into the world
 When sects and factions were but newly born.
Tim. of Ath. iii. 5.

IN MEN, GREATLY PRIZED BY WOMEN.

There is no love-broker in the world can more prevail in man's commendation with woman, than report of valour.
Tw. Night, iii. 2.

VALUE

OF THINGS, RATED ACCORDING TO THE ESTEEM IN WHICH THEIR OWNER IS HELD.

Things of like value, differing in the owners,

The due o' the verdict with it. Hen. VIII. v. 1.

VICE

ITS OUTWARD PLAUSIBILITY.

There is no vice so simple, but assumes
Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.
Mer. of Ven. iii. 2.

ULTIMATELY HARDENS MEN, SO AS TO DESTROY THEIR POWER OF JUDGMENT; AND THEN THEY BECOME "GIVEN OVER TO A RE-PROBATE MIND."

When we in our viciousness grow hard,
(O misery on 't!) the wise gods seal our eyes;
In our own filth drop our clear judgments; make us
Adore our error; laugh at us, while we strut
To our confusion. Ant. & Cleop. iii. 11.

* Valued according to the dignity of their possessors.

ALWAYS READY WITH A LIE TO VINDICATE ITSELF.

I ne'er heard yet,
 That any of these bolder vices wanted
 Less impudence to gainsay what they did,
 Than to perform it first. Wint. Tale, iii. 2.

 Make instruments to scourge us. K. Lear, v. 3.

VICTORY

WITHOUT LOSS OF MEN, DOUBLY GREAT.

A victory is twice itself, when the achiever brings home full numbers. Much Ado, i. 1.

AND KNOWLEDGE ; GREATER GIFTS THAN RANK OR WEALTH.

I held it ever
 Virtue and cunning* were endowments greater
 Than nobleness and riches : † careless heirs
 May the two latter darken and expend ;

Virtue, as it never will be moved,
Though lewdness court it in a shape of heaven ;
So lust, though to a radiant angel linked,
Will sate itself in a celestial bed,
And prey on garbage.*

Ham. i. 5.

EVER THE PREY OF ENVY.

My heart laments that virtue cannot live
Out of the teeth of emulation.†

Jul. Cæs. ii. 3.

OF A WOMAN, RICHER THAN GOLD.

I am a simple maid ; and therein wealthiest
That, I protest, I simply am a maid.

All's Well, ii. 3.

The honour of a maid is her name ; and no legacy is so rich as honesty.‡

All's Well, iii. 5.

VIRTUES

IN SENSE OF GIFTS ; “ HEAVEN GIVES THEM TO MEN ON TRUST,
TO BE EXERCISED, AND SO REFLECT THE GLORY OF THE GIVER ;
AS “ A CANDLE IS NOT MADE TO BE PUT UNDER A BUSHEL.”

Heaven doth with us, as we with torches do,
Not light then for themselves : for if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 't were all alike
As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touched,
But to fine issues : § nor nature never lends
The smallest scruple of her excellence,
But, like a thrifty goddess, she determines
Herself the glory of the creditor,
Both thanks and use.

‡ Virtue.

§ High ends.

UNGRACEFULLY EXHIBITED, LOSE THEIR COMMENDATION.

All his virtues—
 Not virtuously on his own part beheld—
 Do, in our eyes, begin to lose their gloss ;
 Yea, like fair fruit in an unwholesome dish,
 Are like to rot untasted. Tr. & Cress. ii. 3.

VOWS

OF A SEDUCER ; THEIR PLAUSIBILITY FOR BEGUILEMENT.

Do not believe his vows ; for they are brokers
 Not of that die which their investments show,
 But mere implorators of unholy suits,
 Breathing like sanctified and pious bonds,
 The better to beguile. Ham. i. 3.

WANT

ITS POWER TO SEDUCE.

Want will perjure
 The ne'er-touched vestal. Ant. & Cleop. iii. 10.

WANTON

DESCRIPTION OF A FINISHED ONE AND HER WILES.

Fie, fie upon her !
 There 's language in her eye, her cheek, her lip ;
 Nay, her foot speaks ; her wanton spirits look out
 At every joint and motive* of her body.
 O, these encounterers, so glib of tongue,
 That give a coasting† welcome ere it comes,
 And wide unclasp the tablets of their thoughts
 To every ticklish reader ! set them down
 For sluttish spoils of opportunity,
 And daughters of the game. Tr. & Cress. iv. 5.

* Motion.

† Conciliatory.

WANTONNESS

ALWAYS EXCESSIVE, WHEN GRAVE MEN FALL INTO IT.

The blood of youth burns not with such excess,
As gravity's revolt to wantonness. L. L. Lost, v. 2.

WAR

EVERY KINGDOM SHOULD BE PREPARED FOR IT BY FORTIFYING ITSELF IN TIME OF PEACE.

Peace itself should not so dull* a kingdom,
(Tho' war, nor no known quarrel, were in question,)
But that defences, musters, preparations,
Should be maintained, assembled, and collected,
As were a war in expectation.† Hen. V. ii. 4.

ITS SPIRIT SHOULD BE REPRESSED, WHILE ITS PREPARATIONS ARE MAINTAINED.

Tame the savage spirit of wild war ;
That like a lion fostered up at hand,
It may lie gently at the foot of peace,
And be no further harmful than in show. K. John, v. 2.

CIVIL.

Its tenderness, and make itself a pastime.
To harder bosoms!

Wint. Tale, i. 2.

WEEDS

Now 't is the spring, and weeds are shallow-rooted ;
Suffer them now, and they 'll o'errun the garden,
And choke the herbs for want of husbandry.

WELCOME

A GENUINE ONE DEPENDS NOT UPON DISPLAY OF WORDS.

Where I have come, great clerks have purposed
To greet me with premeditated welcomes ;
Where I have seen them shiver and look pale,
Make periods in the midst of sentences,
Throttle their practised accent in their fears,
And, in conclusion, dumbly have broke off,
Not paying me a welcome. Trust me,
Out of this silence, yet, I picked a welcome ;
And in the modesty of fearful duty
I read as much, as from the rattling tongue
Of saucy and audacious eloquence.
Love therefore, and tongue-tied simplicity,
In least, speak most, to my capacity.

M. N. Dream, v. 1.

MAINLY INFLUENCES THE PLEASURE OF A FEAST.

Small cheer, and great welcome makes a merry feast.

WICKED

MEN ; WILL DO ANY DEEDS TO CONCEAL THEIR CRIMES.

Wisdom sees, those men
Blush not in actions blacker than the night,
Will shun no course to keep them from the light.

Pericles, i. 1.

PEOPLE ; SO REGARDED BY COMPARISON.

Those wicked creatures yet do look well-favoured,
When others are more wicked ; not being the worst,
Stands in some rank of praise.

K. Lear, ii. 4.

WIFE

THE ELEMENTS OF A MODEL ONE ARE DOCILITY AND GENTLENESS.

An unlessoned girl, unschooled, unpractised :
Happy in this, she is not yet so old
But she may learn ; and happier than this,
She is not bred so dull but she can learn ;
Happiest of all, is, that her gentle spirit
Commits itself to yours to be directed,
As from her lord, her governor, and king. M. of Ven. iii. 2.

A REPROOF, FOR A SHREWISH ONE.

Fie, fie ! unknit that threatening unkind brow ;
And dart not scornful glances from those eyes,
To wound thy lord, thy king, thy governor.
It blots thy beauty, as frost bites the meads ;
Confounds thy fame, as whirlwinds shake fair buds ;
And in no sense is meet or amiable.
A woman moved, is like a fountain troubled,
Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty ;
And, while it is so, none so dry or thirsty
Will deign to sip, or touch one drop of it.

Tam. the Shrew, v. 2.

A HUSBAND'S ANGUISH OVER A TRUANT ONE.

But there, where I have garnered up my heart ;
 Where either I must live, or bear no life ;
 The fountain from the which my current runs,
 Or else dries up ; to be discarded thence ;
 Or keep it as a cistern, for foul toads
 To knot and gender in ! Turn thy complexion there !
 Patience, thou young and rose-lipped cherubim !
 Ay, there, look grim as hell ! Othello, iv. 2.

WILFULNESS

BEST CORRECTED, BY THE EXPERIENCE OF ITS OWN ERRORS.

To wilful men
 The injuries that they themselves procure
 Must be their schoolmasters. K. Lear, ii. 4.

WILL

OF MAN ; IS KINDLED BY THE SENSES.

My will enkindled by mine eyes and ears,
 Two traded pilots 'twixt the dangerous shores
 Of will and judgment. Tr. & Cress. ii. 2.

HUMAN ; ITS STRUGGLES WITH GRACE, ILLUSTRATED.

Within the infant rind of this small flower
 Poison hath residence, and medicine power :
 For this, being smelt, with that part cheers each part ;
 Being tasted, slays all senses with the heart.
 Two such opposèd foes encamp them still
 In man as well as herbs—grace and rude will ;
 And, where the worsèr is predominant,
 Full soon the canker death eats up that plant.
Rom. & Jul. ii. 3.

OF MAN IS HIS OWN, BUT NOT THE ISSUES OF IT.

Our wills and fates do so contrary run,
That our devices still are overthrown ;
Our thoughts are ours, their ends none of our own.

OF MAN, SWAYED BY HIS REASON.

The will of man is by his reason swayed.

M. N. Dream, ii. 2.

WINDS

AND WAVES AT ODDS.

The visitations of the winds,
Who take the ruffian billows by the top,
Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them
With deafening clamours in the slippery clouds,
That, with the hurly, death itself awakes.

WINE

WARMS THE BLOOD, INCREASES THE ACTION OF THE HEART, AND STIMULATES THE BRAIN;—A TIPPLER'S RHAPSODY ON ITS VIRTUES.

A good sherris sack hath a twofold operation in it: it ascends me into the brain; dries me there all the foolish, and dull, and crudy vapours which environ it; makes it apprehensive—quick—forgetive—full of nimble, fiery, and delectable shapes; which delivered o'er to the voice, (the tongue,) which is the birth, becomes excellent wit. The second property of your excellent sherris is, the warming of the blood; which, before cold and settled, left the liver white and pale, which is the badge of pusillanimity and cowardice: but the sherris warms it, and makes it course from the inwards to the parts extreme. It illumineth the face, which, as a beacon, gives warning to all the rest of this little kingdom, man, to arm: and then the vital commoners, and inland petty spirits, muster me all to their captain, the heart: who, great, and puffed up with this retinue, doth any deed of courage; and this valour comes of sherris.* So that skill in the weapon is nothing without sack; for that sets it a-work; and learning, a mere hoard of gold kept by a devil, till sack commences it, and sets it in act and use.—If I had a thousand sons, the first human principle I would teach them should be, to forswear thin potations, and addict themselves to sack.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 3.

WISDOM

HOPELESSLY WEAK, WHEN IT TURNS TO FOLLY.

None are so surely caught, when they are caught,
As wit turned fool: folly, in wisdom hatched,
Hath wisdom's warrant, and the help of school;
And wit's own grace to grace a learned fool.
Folly in fools bears not so strong a note,
As foolery in the wise, when wit doth dote;
Since all the power thereof it doth apply,
To prove, by wit, worth in simplicity.

L. L. Lost, v. 2.

WIT

CONCISENESS IS ITS ESSENCE.

Brevity is the soul of wit,†
And tediousness the limbs and outward flourishes.

Ham. ii. 2.

WIVES

TAUGHT, BY THE LAW OF NATURE, TO OBEY THEIR HUSBANDS.

Headstrong liberty is lashed with woe.

* "Quid non ebrietas designat? opera recondit;
Spes jubet esse ratas; ad prælia trudit inertem;
Solicitis animis onus eximit; addocet artes.

Contractâ quem non in paupertate solutum?"

Hor. Epist. v. 16. lib. 1.

† "Quidquid præcipies, esto brevis."—Hor. Ars Poet. 335.

There's nothing situate under Heaven's eye,
 But hath its bound, in earth, in sea, in sky :
 The beasts, the fishes, and the winged fowls
 Are their males' subjects, and at their controls :
 Men, more divine, the masters of all these,
 Lords of the wide world, and wild watery seas,
 Indued with intellectual sense and souls,
 Of more pre-eminence than fish and fowls,
 Are masters to their females, and their lords :
 Then let your will attend on their accords.

Com. of Err. ii. 1.

EXHORTED TO A LOVING AND CHEERFUL SUBJECTION TO THEIR LORDS; BY A ONCE-FROWARD WIFE.

Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper,
 Thy head, thy sovereign ; one that cares for thee,
 And for thy maintenance ; commits his body
 To painful labour, both by sea and land ;
 To watch the night in storms, the day in cold,
 While thou liest warm at home, secure and safe ;
 And craves no other tribute at thy hands,
 But love, fair looks, and true obedience ;
 Too little payment for so great a debt.
 Such duty as the subject owes the prince,
 Even such, a woman oweth to her husband :
 And when she's froward, peevish, sullen, suor,
 And not obedient to his loving will,
 What is she, but a foul contending rebel,
 And graceless traitor to her loving lord ?
 I am ashamed, that women are so simple
 To offer war, where they should kneel for peace
 Or seek for rule, supremacy, and sway,
 When they are bound to serve, love, and obey.
 Why are our bodies soft, and weak, and smooth
 Unapt to toil and trouble in the world ;

But that our soft conditions,* and our hearts
 Should well agree with our external parts ?
 Come, come, you froward and unable worms !
 My mind hath been as big as one of yours,
 My heart as great ; my reason, haply, more,
 To bandy word for word, and frown for frown :
 But now, I see our lances are but straws ;
 Our strength as weak, our weakness past compare—
 That seeming to be most, which we least are,
 Then vail your stomachs, † for it is no boot ;
 And place your hands below your husband's foot.

Tam. the Shrew. v. 2.

A HINT AT THEIR PRONENESS TO LAY THE BLAME OF THEIR OWN FAULTS UPON THEIR HUSBANDS.

That woman that cannot make her own fault, her husband's occasion, ‡ let her never nurse her child herself, for she will breed it like a fool. As You Like It, iv. 1.

AN APOLOGY FOR TRUANT ONES, ON THE GROUND THAT THE HUS-BANDS THEMSELVES ARE OFTEN THE CAUSE OF THEIR FALLING ; BY A WIFE.

I do think, it is their husbands' faults,
 If wives do fall : say, that they slack their duties,
 And pour our treasures into foreign laps ;
 Or else break out in peevish jealousies,
 Throwing restraint upon us ; or say, they strike us,
 Or scant our former having § in despite ;
 Why, we have galls ; and though we have some grace,
 Yet we have some revenge. Let husbands know,
 Their wives have sense like them : they see, and smell,
 And have their palates both for sweet and sour,
 As husbands have. What is it that they do,

* Gentle dispositions.

‡ An occasion against her husband.

† Bow your prides.

§ Stint our pin-money.

When they change us for others? Is it sport?
 I think, it is; and doth affection* breed it?
 I think, it doth: is 't frailty that thus errs?
 It is so too: and have not we affections, †
 Desires for sport, and frailty, as men have?
 Then, let them use us well; else, let them know,
 The ills we do, their ills instruct us so. Othello, v. 1.

SHREWISH ONES OFTEN TRY TO PREDOMINATE OVER THEIR HUSBANDS FOR APPLAUSE' SAKE.

Do not curst ‡ wives hold that self-sovereignty
 Only for praise' sake, when they strive to be Lords o'er their lords? L. L. Lost, iv. 1.

WOMAN

GENERAL WEAKNESS OF THE SEX.

Frailty, thy name is woman! Ham. i. 2.

A MODEL ONE.

See, where she comes, apparelled like the spring,
 Graces her subjects, and her thoughts the king
 Of every virtue gives renown to men!
 Her face, the book of praises, where is read
 Nothing but curious pleasures, as from thence Sorrow were ever rased, and testy wrath
 Could never be her mild companion.

Her face, like heaven, enticeth thee to view
 A countless glory. Pericles, i. 1.

ANOTHER.

A maid
 That paragons description and wild fame;
 One that excels the quirks of blazoning pens,

* Passion.

† Passions.

‡ Shrewish.

And in the essential vesture of creation,
Does bear all excellency.

Othello, ii. 1.

A WAG'S SATIRE UPON THE SEX.

She that was ever fair, and never proud ;
Had tongue at will, and yet was never loud ;
Never lacked gold, and yet went never gay ;
Fled from her wish, and yet said, " Now I may ;"
She that, being angered, her revenge being nigh,
Bade her wrong stay, and her displeasure fly ;
She that in wisdom never was so frail,
To change the cod's head, for the salmon's tail ;
She that could think, and ne'er disclose her mind,
See suitors following, and not look behind ;
She was a wight, if ever such wight were,—
To suckle fools, and chronicle small beer.

A MONSTROUS SPECTACLE WHEN VICIOUS.

Proper deformity seems not in the fiend
So horrid, as in woman.

K. Lear, iv. 2.

A WEEPING BEAUTEOUS ONE DESCRIBED.

O, what love I note
In the fair multitude of those her hairs !
Where but by chance a silver drop hath fallen,
Even to that drop ten thousand wiry friends
Do glue themselves in sociable* grief ;
Like true, inseparable, faithful loves,
Sticking together in calamity.

K. John, iii. 4.

ONE WEEPING AT A RIVER.

A thousand favours from a maund† she drew,
Of amber, crystal, and of bedded jet,

* Associated.

† A small basket.

Which one by one she in a river threw,
 Upon whose weeping margent she was set ;
 Like usury, applying wet to wet ;
 Or monarchs' hands, that let not bounty fall
 Where want cries Some, but where excess begs all.

A Lov. Comp. st. 6.

AN ENRAGED ONE, AN UNSEEMLY OBJECT.

A woman moved, is like a fountain troubled,
 Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty ;
 And, while it is so, none so dry or thirsty
 Will deign to sip, or touch one drop of it.

Tam. the Shrew, v. 2.

ALLOWANCE TO BE MADE FOR THEM, ON ACCOUNT OF THE GREATER SUSCEPTIBILITY OF THEIR MINDS.

Men have marble—women waxen—minds
 And therefore are they formed as marble will ;
 The weak oppressed, the impression of strange kinds
 Is formed in them by force, by fraud, or skill :
 Then call them not the authors of their ill,
 No more than wax shall be accounted evil
 Wherein is stamped the semblance of a devil.

R. of Lucrece, st. 178.

THEIR DISCRETION OVERMATCHED WITH THEIR PASSIONS.

Wisdom and blood* combating in so tender a body, w have ten proofs to one that blood hath the victory.

Much Ado, ii. 3.

EASILY BEGUILLED, THROUGH THEIR FRAILTY.

How easy it is, for the proper-false†
 In women's waxen hearts to set their forms !
 Alas, our frailty is the cause, not we ;
 For such as we are made of, such we be. Tw. Night, ii. 2.

* Passion.

† Fair-deceivers.

PRONE TO ERR, BECAUSE THEIR MINDS ARE MORE INFLUENCED BY THE EYE THAN THE JUDGMENT.

Ah, poor our sex! this fault in us I find,
The error of our eye directs our mind:
What error leads, must err: oh! then conclude,
Minds, swayed by eyes, are full of turpitude.

Tr. & Cress. v. 2.

BEGIN NOT TO BE HOLY, TILL THE PASSIONS CEASE THEIR IMPORTUNITY.

Think, women love to match with men,
And not to live so like a saint:
Here is no heaven; they holy then
Begin, when age doth them attain.

Pass. Pilgr. canto 16.

THEIR INNER CHARACTER NOT TO BE SCANNED BY THE OUTWARD EYE.

What! are men mad? Hath nature given them eyes
To see this vaulted arch, and the rich crop
Of sea and land; which can distinguish 'twixt
The fiery orbs above, and the twinned stones
Upon the numbered beach? and can we not Partition* make, with spectacles† so precious,
'Twixt fair and foul?

Cymb. i. 7.

THEIR FRAILTY, BEING A RECOGNIZED FACT, SHOULD NOT BE TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF BY MEN.

Women are frail,

Which are as easy broke as they make forms.
Women! help heaven! men their creation mar
In profiting by them.‡ Nay, call us ten times frail;

And credulous to false prints.* Mea. for Mea. ii. 4.

THEIR WEAKNESS NOT SO MUCH TO BLAME, AS THOSE WHO PRACTISE UPON IT.

No man inveigh against the withered flower,
But chide rough winter that the flower hath killed !
Not that devoured, but that which doth devour,
Is worthy blame. Oh, let it not be hild†
Poor women's faults, that they are so fulfilled
With men's abuses ! Those proud lores, to blame,
Make weak-maid women tenants to their shame.

R. of Lucrece, st. 180.

THEIR STRONG PASSIONS, IN SPITE OF VIRTUOUS APPEARANCE.

Behold yon simpering dame,
Whose face between her forks presageth snow ;
That minces virtue,‡ and does shake the head
To hear of pleasure's name ;
The fitchew,§ nor the soiled horse, goes to 't
With a more riotous appetite.
Down from the waist they are centaurs,
Though women all above :
But to the girdle do the gods inherit ;
Beneath is all the fiend's.

K. Lear, iv. 6.

MARRIAGE NO SURE GUARANTEE FOR THEIR CONSTANCY.

Oh, curse of marriage,
That we can call these delicate creatures ours,
And not their appetites ! Othello, iii. 3.

IF WEAK EVEN IN PROSPERITY, HOW MUCH MORE IN ADVERSITY !

Women are not,
In their best fortunes, strong ; but want will perjure
The ne'er-touched vestal. Ant. & Cleop. iii. 10.

* Impressions. † Held. ‡ Talks mincingly about virtue. § Polecat.

THEIR INCONSTANCY AND LOVE OF CHANGE.

Even to vice

They are not constant, but are changing still
 One vice, but of a minute old, for one
 Not half so old as that.

Cymb. ii. 5.

THEIR LOVE—APPETITE.

Alas, their love may be called appetite,—
 No motion of the liver, but the palate,—
 That suffers surfeit, cloyment, and revolt.

Tw. Night, ii. 4.

THEIR LOVE AND CONSTANCY; AS IT OUGHT TO BE.

Oh! that I thought it could be in a woman,
 To feed for aye her lamp and flames of love;
 To keep her constancy in plight and youth,
 Outliving beauty's outward,* with a mind
 That doth renew, swifter than blood decays.

Tr. & Cress. iii. 2.

IRONICAL VIEW OF THEIR CONSTANCY AND SECRECY.

Constant you are,

But yet a woman; and for secrecy,
 No lady closer; for I well believe,
 Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not know.
 And so far will I trust thee.

How hard it is for women to keep counsel!

Jul. Cæs. ii. 4.

HAVE LESS POWER OF CONCEALING THEIR FEELINGS, THAN MEN.

Their smoothness like a golden champaign plain,
 Lays open all the little worms that creep:
 In men, as in a rough-grown grove, remain
 Cave-keeping evils that obscurely sleep.

Through crystal walls each little mote will peep :
 Though men can cover crimes with bold stern looks,
 Poor women's faces are their own faults' books.

Two Gent. of Ver. i. 2.

ALWAYS TO BE WON, BY PERSEVERANCE.

A woman sometimes scorns what best contents her :
Send her another ; never give her o'er ;
For scorn at first, makes after-love the more.
If she do frown, 't is not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more love in you :
If she do chide, 't is not to have you gone ;
For why ? the fools are mad, if left alone.
Take no repulse, whatever she doth say :
For, " Get you gone," she doth not mean, " Away."
Flatter, and praise, commend, extol their graces ;
Though ne'er so black, say, they have angels' faces.
That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.

Two Gent. of Ver. iii. 1.

She's beautiful ; and therefore to be wooed :
She is a woman ; therefore to be won.

WORLD

COMPARED TO A STAGE. HUMAN LIFE REPRESENTED IN SEVEN PHASES, OF PERIODS OF TEN YEARS.

All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players :
They have their exits and their entrances ;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages. At first, the infant,
Mewling and puking in his nurse's arms :
And then, the whining school-boy with his satchel,
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school : and then, the lover ;
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow : then, a soldier ;
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard ;
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth : and then, the justice ;
In fair round belly, with good capon lined ;
With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut ;
Full of wise saws, and modern instances ;*
And so he plays his part : the sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slippered pantaloon ;
With spectacles on nose, and pouch on side ;

* Shrewd sayings, and familiar trite observations.

His youthful hose well saved, a world too wide
 For his shrunk shank ; and his big manly voice,
 Turning again towards childish treble, pipes
 And whistles in his sound : last scene of all,
 That ends this strange eventful history,
 Is second childishness, and mere oblivion ;
 Sans* teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

 WITH FLOWERS.

These flowers are like the pleasures of the world :

A MISANTHROPIC VIEW OF IT.

O God ! O God !

How weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable
 Seem to me all the uses of this world !
 Fie on 't ! oh fie ! 't is an unweeded garden,
 That grows to seed ; things rank, and gross in nature,
 Possess it merely.† Ham. i. 2.

OLD NEWS, ABOUT IT, AND ITS ABUSES.

What news abroad in the world?—None, but that there is so great a fever on goodness, that the dissolution of it must cure it: novelty is only in request; and it is as dangerous to be aged in any kind of course, as it is virtuous to be constant in any kind of undertaking. There is scarce truth enough alive, to make societies secure; but security enough, to make fellowships‡ accursed: much upon this riddle runs the wisdom of the world. This is news old enough, yet it is every day's news.

EASILY DECEIVED BY EXTERNALS, WHICH MAKE EVIL OFTEN PASS CURRENT FOR GOOD.

The world is still deceived with ornament.
In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt,
But, being seasoned with a gracious* voice,
Obscures the show of evil? In religion,
What damn'd error, but some sober brow
Will bless it, and approve it with a text,
Hiding the grossness with fair ornament?
There is no vice so simple but assumes
Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.
How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false
As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins
The beards of Hercules and frowning Mars;
Who, inward searched, have livers white as milk!
And these assume but valour's excrement,†
To render them redoubted. Look on beauty,
And you shall see 't is purchased by the weight;
Which therein works a miracle in nature,
Making them lightest that wear most of it:
So are those crisp'd, snaky, golden locks,
Which make such wanton gambols with the wind,
Upon suppos'd‡ fairness, often known
To be the dowry of a second head—
The skull that bred them in the sepulchre.
Thus ornament is but the guil'd § shore
To a most dangerous sea; the beauteous scarf
Veiling an Indian beauty; in a word,
The seeming truth that cunning times put on
To entrap the wisest. M. of Ven. iii. 2.

WORMS

MAN IS THEIR FOOD AT LAST.

Your worm is your only emperor for diet : we fat all creatures else to fat us ; and we fat ourselves for maggots :
 your fat king, and your lean beggar, is but variable service ; two dishes, but to one table ; that's the end.
Ham. iv. 3.

WORST

THE ; BEST TO KNOW IT.

I swear, 't is better to be much abused,
 Than but to know 't a little. Othello, iii. 3.

* Vanished.

‡ Encompassed.

† The last fleeting vestige of a cloud.

§ That needed it not.

WORTH

REAL; TO BE FOUND AMONG THE LOWLY, AS WELL AS THE GREAT; ILLUSTRATION.

Our courtiers say, all's savage but at court.
Experience, oh, thou dost disprove report!
The imperious seas breed monsters; for the dish,
Poor tributary rivers as sweet fish. Cymb. iv. 2.

WORTHLESS

FELLOWS; THEIR "BEARDS LAUGHED AT."

Your beards deserve not so honourable a grave, as to stuff a butcher's cushion, or to be entombed in an ass's pack-saddle. Coriol. ii. 1.

WOUNDS

VENOMOUS ONES BEST HEALED WITH SALIVA.

Licking of his wound,
'Gainst venom'd sores the only sovereign plaster.
Ven. & Adon. st. 153.

WRINKLES

THE WORK OF CARE AND TIME.

Careful hours, with Time's deform'd* hand,
Have written strange defeatures† in my face.
Com. of Err v.

YOUNG MAN

A NOBLE AND INGENUOUS ONE.

A true knight;
Not yet mature, yet matchless; firm of word;
Speaking in deeds, and deedless in his tongue;
Not soon provok'd, nor, being provok'd, soon calmed:

* Deforming.

† Disfigurements of feature.

His heart and hand both open, and both free ;
 For what he has, he gives ; what thinks, he shows ;
 Yet gives he not till judgment guide his bounty,
 Nor dignifies an impair* thought with breath.

Tr. & Cress. iv. 5.

INSTANCE OF A "NICE YOUNG MAN."

He plays at quoits well ; and eats conger and fennel ;
 and drinks off candles' ends for flap-dragons ; and rides
 the wild mare with the boys ; and jumps upon joint-stools ; and swears with a good grace ; and wears his boot very smooth, like unto the sign of the leg ; and breeds no bate with telling of discreet stories ; and such other gambol
 faculties he hath, that show a weak mind, and an able body.

2 Hen. IV. ii. 4.

YOUNG MEN

ADVICE TO.

Let not the creaking of shoes, nor the rustling of silks betray thy poor heart to women : keep thy foot out of brothels, thy hand out of plackets, † thy pen from lenders' books, and defy the foul fiend.

K. Lear, iii. 4.

THEIR FICKLENESS, AND LOVE OF DRESS AND NOVELTY.

Younger spirits, whose apprehensive senses
 All but new things disdain ; whose judgments are Mere fathers of their garments ; whose constancies
 Expire before their fashions.

All's Well, i. 2.

TOO FULL OF PASSION TO BE TAUGHT PHILOSOPHY.

Young men ; whom Aristotle thought
 Unfit to hear moral philosophy.

Tr. & Cress. ii. 2.

* Impaired, low or vulgar.

† Petticoats.

YOUTH

ITS PECULIAR LIABILITY TO TEMPTATION.

The canker galls the infants of the spring*
 Too oft before their buttons be disclosed;
 And in the morn and liquid dew of youth
 Contagious blastments† are most imminent.
 Be wary then: but safety lies in fear;
 Youth to itself rebels, though none else near. Ham. i. 3.

ITS NATURAL INNOCENCE.

We were as twinned lambs, that did frisk i' the sun,
 And bleat the one at the other: what we changed,
 Was innocence for innocence; we knew not
 The doctrine of ill-doing, no, nor dreamed
 That any did. Had we pursued that life,
 And our weak spirits ne'er been higher reared
 With stronger blood, we should have answered heaven
 Boldly, "Not guilty!" the imposition cleared
 Hereditary ours.‡ Wint. Tale, i. 2.

UNSUSPICIOUS OF THE DECEITS OF MEN.

Sweet prince, the untainted virtue of your years
 Hath not yet dived into the world's deceit:
 No more can you distinguish of a man,
 Than of his outward show; which, God He knows,
 Seldom, or never, jumpeth with the heart.
Rich. III. iii. 1.

ITS "GREENNESS."

My salad days;
 When I was green in judgment. Ant. & Cleop. i. 5.

* Buds.

† Blights.

‡ Original sin excepted.

ITS ARDENT PASSIONS.

The blaze of youth ;
 When oil and fire, too strong for reason's force,
 O'erbears it, and burns on. All's Well, v. 3.

Youth to itself rebels, though none else near. Ham. i. 3.

MORE RULED BY THE BLOOD THAN THE BRAIN.

The brain may devise laws for the blood, but a hot temper* leaps over a cold decree: such a hare is madness, the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel, the cripple.
M. of Ven. i. 2.

LOTH TO BE GUIDED BY THE WISDOM OF AGE.

Young blood will not obey an old decree.
L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

ITS LEVITY.

Our own precedent passions do instruct us
 What levity's in youth. . Tim. of Ath. i. 1.

ITS INCONSTANCY TO ANY ONE OBJECT.

For every passion something, and for no passion truly anything, as boys and women are for the most part cattle of this colour.
As You Like It, iii. 2.

ITS TRUTH NOT TO BE RELIED UPON.

Briefly die their joys,
 That place them on the truth of girls and boys.
Cymb. v. 5.

OFTEN DAUNTLESS, THROUGH WANT OF THOUGHT.

Being scarce made up,
 I mean, to man, he had not apprehension

* Temperament.

Of daring terrors ; for defect of judgment
Is oft the cure of fear.

Cymb. iv. 2.

OFTEN MARRED BY PREMATURE ATTACHMENT.

As the most forward bud
Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
Even so by love the young and tender wit
Is turned to folly ; blasting in the bud,
Losing his verdure even in the prime,
And all the fair effects of future hopes.

Two Gent. of Ver. i. 1.

TO BE HUMOURED, IN REPROOF, ACCORDING TO TEMPERAMENT AND OCCASION.

Chide him for his faults, and do it reverently,
When you perceive his blood inclined to mirth :
But, being moody, give him line and scope ;
Till that his passions, like a whale on ground,
Confound themselves with working.

2 Hen. IV. iv. 4.

Deal mildly with his youth :
For young hot colts, being raged,* do rage the more.

Rich. II. ii. 1.

HAS ITS BECOMING CHARACTERISTICS, AS WELL AS AGE.

Youth no less becomes
The light and careless livery that it wears,
Than settled age his sables and his weeds,
Importing health and graveness.

Ham. iv. 7.

* Irritated.

SONGS.

WHAT SHALL HE HAVE, THAT KILLED THE DEER ?

1. What shall he have, that killed the deer ?
2. His leather skin, and horns to wear.
1. Then sing him home.
- All.* Take thou no scorn, to wear the horn ;
It was a crest ere thou wast born.
1. Thy father's father wore it—
2. And thy father bore it.
- All.* The horn, the horn, the lusty horn,
Is not a thing to laugh to scorn.

As You Like It, iv. 3.

WHO DOTH AMBITION SHUN.

I.

- All.* Who doth ambition shun, and loves to live i' the sun,
Seeking the food he eats, and pleased with what he gets,
Come hither, come hither, come hither ;
Here shall he see no enemy,
But winter and rough weather.

II.

1. If it do come to pass, that any man turn ass,
Leaving his wealth and ease, a stubborn will to please,
Ducdàme, ducdàme, ducdàme ;

Here shall he see gross fools as he,
 An if he will come to me. As You Like It, ii. 4.

PASTORAL.

I.

It was a lover and his lass,
 With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
 That o'er the green cornfield did pass
Cho. In the spring-time, the only pretty rank time,
 When birds do sing, hey, ding-a-ding, ding:
 Sweet lovers love the spring.

II.

Between the acres of the rye,
 With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
 These pretty country folks would lie,
Cho. In the spring-time, etc.

III.

This carol they began that hour,
 With a hey, and a ho, and hey nonino,
 How that life was but a flower
Cho. In the spring-time, etc.

IV.

And therefore take the present time,
 With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
 For love is crown'd with the prime
Cho. In the spring-time, etc. As You Like It, v. 2.

EPITHALAMIUM.

Wedding is great Juno's crown.
 Oh, bless'd bond of board and bed!
 'T is Hymen peoples every town;
 High wedlock then be honour'd.

Honour, high honour, and renown,
To Hymen, god of every town! As You Like It, v. 2.

BLOW, BLOW, THOU WINTER WIND.

I.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind ;
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude :
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.

Cho. Then, heigh ho, the holly !
This life is most jolly.

II.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky ;
That dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot ;
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remembered not.

Cho. Then, heigh ho, the holly !
This life is most jolly. As You Like It, ii. 5.

SERENADE.

Hark ! hark ! the lark at heaven's gate sings,
And Phœbus 'gins arise
His steeds, to water at those springs
On chaliced flowers that lies :
And winking maribuds begin
To ope their golden eyes ;
With everything that pretty bin,
My lady sweet, arise.

Cymb. ii. 3.

DIRGE.

I.

1. Fear no more the heat o' the sun,
 Nor the furious winter's rages ;
 Thou thy worldly task hast done,
 Home art gone, and ta'en thy wages :
 Golden lads and girls all must,
 As chimney-sweepers, come to dust.

II.

2. Fear no more the frown o' the great,
 Thou art past the tyrant's stroke ;
 Care no more to clothe and eat ;
 To thee the reed is as the oak :
 The sceptre, learning, physic, must
 All follow this, and come to dust.

III.

1. Fear no more the lightning-flash,
 2. Nor the all-dreaded thunder-stone ;
 1. Fear not slander, censure rash ;
 2. Thou hast finished joy and moan :
- 1 & 2. { All lovers young, all lovers must { Consign to thee, and come to dust.

IV.

1. No exorciser harm thee !
 2. Nor no witchcraft charm thee !
 1. Ghost unlaid forbear thee !
 2. Nothing ill come near thee !
- 1 & 2. { Quiet consummation have ;
 { And renown'd be thy grave.

Cymb. iv. 2.

SIGH NO MORE, LADIES.

I.

- Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more ;
 Men were deceivers ever ;

One foot in sea, and one on shore ;
To one thing constant never.

Cho. Then sigh not so, but let them go,
And be you blithe and bonny,
Converting all your sounds of woe
Into, Hey nonny, nonny.

II.

Sing no more ditties, sing no mo'
Of dumps so dull and heavy ;
The fraud of men was ever so,
Since summer first was leavy.

Cho. Then sigh not so, but let them go,
And be you blithe and bonny ;
Converting all your sound of woe
Into, Hey nonny, nonny.

Much Ado, ii. 3.

DIRGE.

Pardon, goddess of the night,
Those that slew thy virgin knight ;
For the which, with songs of woe,
Round about her tomb they go.

Midnight, assist our moan ;

Help us to sigh and groan,

Heavily, heavily :

Graves, yawn, and yield your dead,

Till death be utter'd

Heavily, heavily.

Much Ado, v. 3.

TELL ME, WHERE IS FANCY BRED ?

1. Tell me, where is fancy* bred—
Or in the heart, or in the head ?

* Love.

How begot, how nourish'd ?

Reply, reply.

2. It is engendered in the eyes,
With gazing fed ; and fancy dies
In the cradle where it lies.

Let us all ring fancy's knell ;
I'll begin it,—Ding, dong, bell.

All. Ding, dong, bell.

M. of Ven. iii. 2.

WHO IS SILVIA ?

I.

Who is Silvia ? what is she
That all our swains commend her ?
Holy, fair, and wise is she ;
The heavens such grace did lend her,
That she might admired be.

II.

Is she kind as she is fair ?
For beauty lives with kindness :*
Love doth to her eyes repair,
To help him of his blindness ;
And, being helped, inhabits there.

III.

Then to Silvia let us sing,
That Silvia is excelling ;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling :
To her let us garlands bring.

Two Gent. of Ver. iv. 2.

* Beauty is not perfect, where kindness is wanting.

LOVE SONG.

I.

O mistress mine, where are you roaming?
 Oh stay and hear; your true love's coming,
 That can sing both high and low:
 Trip no further, pretty sweeting;
 Journeys end in lovers' meeting,
 Every wise man's son doth know.

II.

What is love? 't is not hereafter;
 Present mirth hath present laughter;
 What's to come is still unsure:
 In delay there lies no plenty;
 Then come, kiss me, sweet, and twenty;
 Youth's a stuff will not endure. Tw. Night, ii. 3.

A LOVER'S LAMENT.

I.

Come away, come away, death,
 And in sad cypress let me be laid:
 Fly away, fly away, breath;
 I am slain by a fair cruel maid.
 My shroud of white, stuck all with yew,
 Oh, prepare it!
 My part of death no one so true
 Did share it.

II.

Not a flower, not a flower sweet,
 On my black coffin let there be strown;
 Not a friend, not a friend greet
 My poor corpse, where my bones shall be thrown:
 A thousand thousand sighs to save,
 Lay me, oh, where
 Sad true love never find my grave,
 To weep there. Tw. Night, ii. 4.

MUSICAL EPILOGUE.

I.

When that I was a little tiny boy,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 A foolish thing was but a toy,
 For the rain it raineth every day.

II.

But when I came to man's estate,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 'Gainst knave and thief men shut their gate,
 For the rain it raineth every day.

III.

But when I came, alas! to wive,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 By swaggering could I never thrive,
 For the rain it raineth every day.

IV.

But when I came unto my bed,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 With toss-pots still had drunken head,
 For the rain it raineth every day.

V.

A great while ago the world begun,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 But that's all one, our play is done,
 And we'll strive to please you every day.

Tw. Night, v.

BACCHANALIAN.

Come, thou monarch of the vine,
 Plumpy Bacchus, with pink eyne;*

* Eyes.

In thy vats our cares be drowned ;
 With thy grapes our hairs be crowned ;
 Cup us, till the world go round,
 Cup us, till the world go round.

Ant. & Cleop. ii. 7.

IN YOUTH, WHEN I DID LOVE.*

I.

In youth, when I did love, did love,
 Methought, it was very sweet,
 To contract, oh, the time, for, ah, my behove
 Oh, methought, there was nothing meet.

II.

But age, with his stealing steps,
 Hath clawed me in his clutch,
 And hath shipped me into the land,
 As if I had never been such.

III.

A pickaxe, and a spade, a spade,
 For—and a winding sheet :
 Oh, a pit of clay for to be made
 For such a guest is meet !

Ham. v. 1.

AND WILL HE NOT COME AGAIN ?

And will he not come again ?
 And will he not come again ?
 No, no, he is dead ;
 Gone to thy death-bed ;
 He never will come again.

* This song, written by Lord Vaux, is preserved entire in Percy's "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry."

His beard was as white as snow,
 All flaxen was his poll :
 He is gone, he is gone,
 And we cast away moan ;
 God ha' mercy on his soul !

Ham. iv. 5.

PASTORAL.

Sleepest or wakest thou, jolly shepherd ?
 Thy sheep be in the corn ;
 And for one blast of thy minikin mouth,
 Thy sheep shall take no harm. K. Lear, iii. 6.

LOVE, LOVE, NOTHING BUT LOVE.

I.

Love, love, nothing but love, still more !
 For, oh, love's bow
 Shoots buck and doe :
 The shaft confounds*
 Not that it wounds,
 But tickles still the sore.

II.

These lovers cry, Oh ! oh ! they die !
 Yet that which seems the wound to kill,
 Doth turn oh ! oh ! to ha ! ha ! he !
 So dying love lives still :
 Oh ! oh ! awhile, but ha ! ha ! ha !
 Oh ! oh ! groans out for ha ! ha ! ha !

T.r & Cress. iii. 1.

* Destroys.

KING STEPHEN WAS A WORTHY PEER.*

I.

King Stephen was a worthy peer ;
 His breeches cost him but a crown :
 He held them sixpence all too dear ;
 With that he called the tailor lown.

II.

He was a wight of high renown,
 And thou art but of low degree :
 'Tis pride that pulls the country down ;
 Then take thine auld cloak about thee.

Othello, ii. 3.

BACCHANALIAN.

Let me the canakin clink, clink ;
 And let me the canakin clink :
 A soldier's a man ;
 A life's but a span.
 Why, then let a soldier drink.

Othello, ii. 3.

LOVE'S LAMENTATION.

I.

The poor soul sat sighing by a sycamore tree ;
 Sing all a green willow :
 Her hand on her bosom, her head on her knee ;
 Sing willow, willow, willow.
 The fresh streams ran by her, and murmured her moans ;
 Sing willow, willow, willow ;
 Her salt tears fell from her, and softened the stones ;
 Sing willow, willow, willow.
 Prithce, hie thee ; he'll come anon ;
 Sing all a green willow must be my garland.

* This song is entire in Percy's 'Reliques of Ancient Poetry.'

II.

Let nobody blame him ; his scorn I approve ;
I called my love, false love ; but what said he then ?

Sing willow, willow, willow :

If I court mo* women, you'll couch with mo men.

Othello, iv. 3.

FAIRIES' LULLABY.

I.

1. You spotted snakes, with double tongue,
Thorny hedgehogs, be not seen ;
Newts and blindworms do no wrong ;
Come not near our fairy queen.

Cho. Philomel, with melody,
Sing in our sweet lullaby ;
Lulla, lulla, lullaby ; lulla, lulla, lullaby.
Never harm, nor spell, nor charm,
Come our lovely lady nigh ;
So, good-night, with lullaby.

II.

2. Weaving spiders, come not here ;
Hence, you long-legged spinners, hence !
Beetles black, approach not near ;
Worm, nor snail, do no offence.

Cho. Philomel, with melody, etc. M. N. Dream, ii. 2.

CANZONET.

I.

The ousel-cock, † so black of hue,
With orange-tawny bill ;
The throstle, with his note so true ;
The wren, with little quill.

* More.

† Blackbird.

II.

The finch, the sparrow, and the lark ;
 The plain-song cuckoo grey,
 Whose note full many a man doth mark,
 And dares not answer, Nay. M. N. Dream, iii. 1.

SEA-NYMPHS' SONG.

I.

Come unto these yellow sands,
 And then take hands :
 Courtesied when you have, and kissed,
 (The wild waves whist ;*)
 Foot it featly here and there ;
 And, sweet sprites, the burden bear.
 Hark, hark !
 (Burden [dispersedly]. Bowgh, wowgh.)
 The watch-dogs bark :
 (Burden [dispersedly]. Bowgh, wowgh.)
 Hark, hark ! I hear
 The strain of strutting chanticleere
 Cry, Cock-a-doodle-doo.

II.

Full fathom five thy father lies ;
 Of his bones are coral made ;
 Those are pearls that were his eyes :
 Nothing of him that doth fade,
 But doth suffer a sea-change
 Into something rich and strange.
 Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell :
 (Burden. Ding-dong.)
 Hark ! now I hear them,—Ding-dong bell.
Tempest, i. 2.

* Silent, hushed.

MARINERS' SONG.

The master, the swabber, the boatswain, and I,
 The gunner and his mate,
 Loved Moll, Meg, and Marian, and Margery,
 But none of us cared for Kate :
 For she had a tongue with a tang,
 Would cry to a sailor, "Go hang!"
 She loved not the savour of tar nor of pitch,
 Yet a tailor might scratch her where'er she did itch ;
 Then to sea, boys, and let her go hang.

Tempest, ii. 2.

CALIBAN'S SONG.

No more dams I'll make for fish ;
 Nor fetch in firing
 At requiring,
 Nor scrape trenchering, nor wash dish ;
 Ban, Ban, Ca—Caliban
 Has a new master ; get a new man.

Tempest, ii. 2.

EPITHALAMIUM.

Juno. Honour, riches, marriage-blessing,
 Long continuance and increasing,
 Hourly joys be still upon you !
Juno sings her blessings on you,
Ceres. Earth's increase, and foison* plenty ;
 Barns and garner's never empty ;
 Vines, with clustering bunches growing ;
 Plants, with goodly burden bowing :
 Spring come to you, at the farthest,
 In the very end of harvest !

* Abundance.

Scarcity and want shall shun you,
Ceres' blessing so is on you.

Tempest, iv.

ARIEL'S SONG.

Where the bee sucks, there lurk I ;
In a cowslip's bell I lie ;
There I couch. When owls do cry,
On the bat's back do I fly,
After sunset, merrily.
Merrily, merrily, shall I live now,
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.

Tempest, v.

LOVE-SONNET.

I.

If love make me forsworn, how shall I swear to love ?
Ah, never faith could hold if not to beauty vowed !
Though to myself forsworn, to thee I'll faithful prove ;
Those thoughts to me were oaks, to thee like osiers bowed.

II.

Study his bias leaves, and make his book thine eyes,
Where all those pleasures live, that art would comprehend :
If knowledge be the mark, to know thee shall suffice ;
Well learn'd is that tongue, that well can thee commend.

III.

All ignorant that soul, that sees thee without wonder ;
(Which is to me some praise, that I thy parts admire ;)
Thy eye Jove's lightning bears, thy voice his dreadful
thunder,
Which, not to anger bent, is music, and sweet fire.
Celestial—as thou art, oh pardon, love, this wrong,
That sings heaven's praise with such as earthly tongue.

L. L. Lost, iv. 2.

LOVE-SONNET.

On a day, (alack the day !)
 Love, whose month is ever May,
 Spied a blossom passing fair,
 Playing in the wanton air :
 Through the velvet leaves the wind,
 All unseen, 'gan passage find ;
 That the lover, sick to death,
 Wished himself the heaven's breath.
 Air, quoth he, thy cheeks may blow ;
 Air, would I might triumph so !
 But, alack, my hand is sworn,
 Ne'er to pluck thee from thy thorn :
 Vow, alack, for youth unmeet ;
 Youth, so apt to pluck a sweet,
 Do not call it sin in me,
 That I am forsworn for thee :
 Thou, for whom even Jove would swear
 Juno but an Ethiop were ;
 And deny himself for Jove,
 Turning mortal for thy love. L. L. Lost, iv. 3.

 THE CUCKOO AND THE OWL.

I.

Spring. When daisies pied, and violets blue,
 And lady-smocks, all silver-white,
 And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue,
 Do paint the meadows with delight ;
 The cuckoo then, on every tree,
 Mocks married men ; for thus sings he :
 Cuckoo !
 Cuckoo, cuckoo,—oh, word of fear,
 Unpleasing to a married ear !

II.

When shepherds pipe on oaten straws,
 And merry larks are ploughmen's clocks ;
 When turtles tread, and rooks, and daws,
 And maidens bleach their summer smocks ;
 The cuckoo then, on every tree,
 Mocks married men ; for thus sings he :
 Cuckoo !
 Cuckoo, cuckoo,—oh, word of fear,
 Unpleasing to a married ear !

III.

Winter. When icicles hang by the wall,
 And Dick the shepherd blows his nail.
 And Tom bears logs into the hall,
 And milk comes frozen home in pail ;
 When blood is nipped, and ways be foul ;
 Then nightly sings the staring owl,
 To-who !
 Tu-whit, to-who !—a merry note,
 While greasy Joan doth keel* the pot.

IV.

When all aloud the wind doth blow,
 And coughing drowns the parson's saw,†
 And birds sit brooding in the snow,
 And Marian's nose looks red and raw ;
 When roasted crabs‡ hiss in the bowl,
 Then nightly sings the staring owl,
 To-who !
 Tu-whit, to-who !—a merry note,
 While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

L. L. Lost, v. 2.

FIE ON SINFUL FANTASY!

Fie on sinful fantasy!
 Fie on lust and luxury!
 Lust is but a bloody fire,
 Kindled with unchaste desire,
 Fed in heart; whose flames aspire,
 As thoughts do blow them, higher and higher.
 Pinch him, fairies, mutually;
 Pinch him for his villany;
 Pinch him, and burn him, and turn him about,
 Till candles, and starlight, and moonshine be out.

Merry Wives, v. 5.

TAKE, OH TAKE THOSE LIPS AWAY!

Take, oh, take those lips away,
 That so sweetly were forsworn;
 And those eyes, the break of day,
 Lights that do mislead the morn:
 But my kisses bring again;
 Seals of love, but sealed in vain.

POWER OF MUSIC.

I.

Orpheus with his lute made trees
 And the mountain-tops that freeze
 Bow themselves when he did sing;
 To his music, plants and flowers
 Ever sprung; as sun, and showers,
 There had been a lasting spring.

II.

Everything that heard him play,
 Even the billows of the sea,
 Hung their heads, and then lay by.

In sweet music is such art—
 Killing care, and grief of heart,
 Fall asleep, or, hearing, die.

Hen. VIII. iii. 1.

HELEN'S SONG.

Was this fair face the cause, quoth she,
 Why the Grecians sack'd Troy ?
 Fond* done, done fond,
 Was this King Priam's joy ?
 With that she sigh'd as she stood,
 With that she sigh'd as she stood,
 And gave this sentence then :—
 Among nine bad if one be good,
 Among nine bad if one be good,
 There's yet one good in ten.

All's Well, i. 3.

A PEDLAR'S SONG.

Lawn, as white as driven snow ;
 Cyprus, black as e'er was crow ;
 Gloves, as sweet as damask roses ;
 Masks for faces and for noses ;
 Bugle bracelet, necklace amber,
 Perfume for a lady's chamber ;
 Golden quoifs, and stomachers,
 For my lads to give their dears ;
 Pins, and poking-sticks† of steel ;
 What maids lack from head to heel.
 Come, buy of me, come ; come buy, come buy
 Buy, lads, or else your lasses cry. Wint. Tale

* Foolishly.
